As a parent, I don't expect a teacher to teach morals. I do expect them to respect the opinions of parents, whether it be worldly matters, religious teachings or family outlook in morals.

And I am almost tempted to ask the state superintendent, "Are you kidding? TODAY'S teachers teaching morals? After they unashamedly go out on strike, or indulge in boycotts, or distribute false and incomplete information about contract negotiations? THOSE people teach morals? You've got to be kidding."

Even if my life depended on a definite answer, I couldn't tell you what political party any of my teachers belonged to through my 12 years of basic education. I couldn't give an illustration of an opinion expressed by a teacher during that time concerning matters other than school work and students' efforts. Even my government and U.S. history teachers made those subjects impersonal and unbiased in their presentation.

By today's standards, my teachers would probably be looked upon with pity by our current crop of young educators. By today's standards, those teachers were stifled, hampered by restrictions on their classroom conduct. By today's standards, they might even be referred to as "second class citizens," a favorite phrase used today by those living off the public and upset over certain restrictions.

But in my book, my teachers were first class professionals. And they left me with a feeling of lasting respect for them.

I don't get that impression from today's students. And I would say that, generally speaking, if teachers are not held in high esteem by today's students, the teachers brought it on themselves.

Heritage Of Indiana's 100th General Assembly Marked

Historical Anecdotes Con-erning The First 100 Indiana General Assemblies

The fall election marked the selection of members to the 100th Indiana General Assembly. The legislature's present members represent the 100th body of individuals chosen by public election for legislative service since the origin of the State of Indiana in 1816.

Indiana began as a wilderness land occupied by but 64,000 residents—not counting the Indians in its northern reaches. Today, Indiana is a major industrial-agricultural state of more than 5 million residents. The state has expanded from 15 counties in the Ohio River basin to 92 counties covering a land area increased threefold and touching on Lake Michigan.

Throughout eras of both simple and complex public needs, it has been the duty of the General Assembly to chart the state's public policy and to organize the governmental units serving those needs. Hoosier lawmakers have served during the intense times of Civil War and dep ession, and during quieter times of peace and prosperity.

From the beginning, charges to Indiana legislators have included the structuring of local governments, the prescribing of penalties to be exacted for crimes, and provision for the care of the infirm and indigent. Where there was the duty of laying out boundaries of new counties in early times, there has been the establishment of zoning standards on land use in more modern times.

Historically, Indiana legislators have been called upon to resolve public issues, which have differed only because of the starting point of each General Assembly session. Wooden-plank roads have become concrete highways. Public education has progressed from one-room schools to consolidated school districts. The right to vote for blacks and women has advanced to civil rights on a broad range of life's transactions. Public debt and taxation have remained the most consistent of problems.

This historical message is intended to help mark the heritage of today's 100th General Assembly. The gratitude of all Indiana citizens is due the first legislators of 1816 and those others who have fashioned, debated and enacted the state's public laws throughout the Assembly's history.

(This article is one of a series recognizing Indiana's heritage as the Indiana General Assembly meets in its 100th session during 1977 and 1978. The material is provided as a public service by the Assembly's Select Committee On the Centennial History of the Indiana General Assembly.)

Elza Moore

Elza Moore, 79, who had previously resided at R1 Saint Joe, died Monday at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne where he had been a patient about a month. He had been living near his daughter for the last seven years at 12810 Hardesty Road in Fort Wayne.

Mr. Moore was born July 22, 1897, in Ravenswood, West Virginia, the son of William and Alcena Robbins Moore. He came to this area in 1905 and in 1921 he was united in marriage with the former Blen Kain. They lived in Newville Township almost all their lives with Mr. Moore engaged in farming. He served as township trustee eight years and later was custodian at the elementary school at Saint Joe for about eight years. Mrs. Moore died in 1973.

The deceased was a member of the Newville United Methodist Church and attended the Hopewell United Brethren Church at R2 Auburn for several years. He was a veteran of World War I, a past member of the Saint Joe American Legion post and a past member of the Spencerville masonic lodge.

Survivors include the daughter, Mrs. Herbert (Alice) Dillander of rural Fort Wayne; two grandchildren; three great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Lyle (Mary) Platter of rural Butler; and three brothers, Ira and Bill of Payson, Arizona, and Bert Moore of Eustis, Florida.

Perkins & Reeb of Hicksville were in charge of funeral arrangements. Services were held at the Hopewell church Thursday with Howard Cherry and Phillip Lutz officiating. Burial was in Newville Cemetery.

CROP Gets $9000

The 1976 CROP drive has been completed. Total contributions were almost twice the goal of $4,500.

Beverly Dunn, CROP treasurer, reports that $8,000 was turned in, plus another $600 from the Ashley Bike-A-Thon that went direct to the state office. Late contributions in 1975 credited to the county for 1976 make the total over $9,000.

Sometimes you find the most efficient energy ideas right under your nose.

Take your thermos bottle.

It works on the same principle as a European home heating system we're now testing.

Heat in the bricks is stored inside this "thermos" until it is distributed through ordinary ductwork to heat your home.

The beauty of this system is that it uses less energy during the day, when we have our heaviest electric demand.

This could let us use our generating equipment more efficiently. Which, in turn, would help us reduce our costs. And yours.

With the way the cost of everything is going up these days, that's a pleasant switch for all of us.

While we've already pioneered the use of high voltage transmission lines, we're also continuing to research even higher voltages to move even larger chunks of electricity. The advantage here is that we can move more electricity over fewer lines. And fewer transmission lines mean lower transmission costs.

But, while we continue our search for ways to keep costs in line there are some things you can do to keep costs in line, too.

Not just by turning off lights and lowering thermostats, but by insulating your home properly, using appliances efficiently, and by considering the use of more energy-efficient devices that are already available.

Working together. It's the only way we can hope to lick the problems that affect the cost of electricity today. And tomorrow.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Gals Win Another

The DeKalb Eastside Blazettes defeated Southern Wells Wednesday night in the ACAC girls' varsity basketball tourney. They now advance to the semi-finals, playing Carroll Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at host Woodlan High School.

In the other Wednesday contests, postponed from Monday due to heavy snows, Norwell defeated Leo 54-52 and Carroll edged Woodlan 37-35.

The Eastside gals now have an 11-2 record for the season thus far and the bench-coaching of Bob Brown has led the predominantly underclassmen squad to an eye-opening first year for the young misses.

Films Shown To MotivateStudents

A series of motivational films and discussions was conducted by Elementary Principal Charles Ray and teachers for all students in grades 4, 5 and 6 at the Riverdale and Butler elementary schools recently.

The three topics and films discussed were: "The Surprises of Failure," "Accept and Excel," and "All Successful People Have it."

The films are part of a series put out by former Miss America Marilyn Van DerBur to motivate young people to work up to their capacity. Miss Van DerBur has been named the outstanding woman speaker in America.

The films depict numerous examples of famous Americans who have not let failure nor handicaps defeat them, but rather have gone on to reach new and higher achievements in their lives.

The importance of setting goals is emphasized, to avoid wandering aimlessly through life without ever producing accomplishments. Planning is stressed so that students realize that forethought and hard work accompanies most every success.

A follow-up program is now being discussed by the students on "How To Study and Why." Topics include "How To Listen," "How To Take Notes," "How To Do Homework," "How To Speak Better," "How To Write Clearly" and "How To Read More."

Mr. Ray said the programs are being presented to show students the importance of believing in themselves as well as challenging them to give the extra effort it takes to aim for high goals and be successful in these endeavors.

Blazers Lose 2

Dave Kandel popped in 23 points last Friday and 26 Saturday. But the DeKalb Eastside Blazers lost anyhow, 61-59 to Woodlan there and 68-66 to Churubusco in a home game.

Free throws made the difference in both games, with the Blazers' opponents having more opportunities at the free throw line.

Chris Sipe had a good night against 'Busco, getting 9 field goals and a free throw for 19.

From The Editor's Desk....

Why I Am Anti-ERA

This week the Indiana House of Representatives passed the Equal Rights Amendment. State Representative Norman Gerig voted against it because he believes there are more dangers than benefits in the amendment. I agree.

Now the ERA is subject to vote by the Indiana Senate. State Senator Woodrow Wilson of Monroeville, who is our Senate representative, has said he will vote for the amendment.

If you think he is wrong, send a card or letter, or make a telephone call and let him know about your opposition. It's a last-minute deal, because the Indiana Senate will vote on the ERA next week.

There is a legislative "hot line" available to voters. That is, you can call Indianapolis toll-free to a number specifically related to conveying voter messages to our state representatives and state senators.

The numbers to call are:

TOLL-FREE HOT-LINE TO YOUR STATE REPRESENTATIVE: 1-800 382-9841

TOLL FREE HOT-LINE TO YOUR STATE SENATOR: 1-800 382-9467

Use them—you're paying for them!

Right now—RIGHT NOW—the Senate hot-line is taking a "yes or no" poll about the ERA. Since the House has already voted, it's now up to the Senate. If you want to cast a vote in the ERA matter, whether against or for, just dial the above Senate number and say, "I want to vote (yes or no) on the ERA." That's all there is to it. Your expression of opinion could be the deciding factor in the Senate's decision. Legislators DO heed public opinion when it's made known to them.

On any legislative matters now under consideration or to come up later on, the above numbers can be used to convey a message to your area legislators. Or you can send a card or letter to them at the State House, Indianapolis 46204.

My opposition to the ERA is based on what could happen if it passes. I know the intent is good. But intentions often overlook possible dangers.

For instance, ten years ago, who would have thought girls would be playing on boys athletic teams BY COURT ORDER, TO FORCE COMPLIANCE WITH LEGISLATION. Who would have thought boys would be playing on girls athletic teams, because what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Yet, here we have this odd situation now existing—a boys team has girls and a girls team has boys.

A government agency said recently that school-sponsored Father-Son or Mother-Daughter affairs were discriminating and could not be held. The order was rescinded when President Gerald Ford intervened.

But the agency was not charged with issuing an illegal directive. The order was rescinded ONLY because of the power and prestige of the Presidency.

Thus, if someone still wants to press the point, Father-Son and Mother-Daughter affairs CAN be prohibited because regulations state, or can be interpreted to state, that such functions ARE "discriminatory in nature."

I don't think so—but the authority nevertheless does exist to enforce such rulings.

It's ridiculous—yet, under the good intent of anti-discrimination laws and regulations, extremes have been upheld. In the process, the rights of some citizens have been infringed.

Further—

I believe a property owner has the right to determine who can or cannot buy or rent his property, even though I may disagree with his reasons for making his choice.

I believe a business has the right to say it will or will not hire women, negroes, anyone over 40, and so on, even though I may not agree with its reasons.

But civil rights laws, human rights laws, anti-discrimination laws and now the Equal Rights Amendment—all of these, while having good intent geared toward a certain area of function to grant protection, have gone beyond that certain area into the greater area of "the rights of all individuals." And in today's society, there are those who will take advantage of the intent of the law to gain greater consideration than that given to others.

—And that's why I am opposed to the so-called "Equal Rights Amendment."

'Do You Serve Niggers?'

Man entering tavern with an alligator: "Do you serve niggers?"

Bartender: "Yeah."

Man: "OK—then gimme a shot and a beer and give my alligator a nigger."

For those who may have been offended by last week's indication of something to come concerning "niggers," the above ought to complete the offense.

Then why print it?

The above joke, according to a parent of a student in a Fort Wayne school, was part of an audio-visual presentation shown to students. At the conclusion of the presentation which apparently had other ethnic (pertaining to race, national origin, area birthplace, etc.) illustrations—at the conclusion, students were told that if they laughed at such things as the above joke, they are probably prejudiced.

I point this out to justify my contention that parents and taxpa ers don't know what is being said and read in public schools today.

While students come out of our grade schools and high schools unable to read, write or spell, time is being devoted to such presentations as described above. One reaction I received last week when I repeated the joke and explained where it was used was something like: "What's that supposed to teach?"

I have the same question in my mind, and so does the parent of the student who was in that class.

The basic wrong in the matter as a whole is that "prejudice" is a universal human trait. We are all inclined at one time or another, and to varying degrees, to form an opinion without adequate investigation of true facts. And that's what "prejudice" is all about.

Take note that I am not saying it is wrong to try to eliminate prejudice. What IS wrong is to take a chance on burdening a boy or girl with an overwhelming feeling of guilt becaused they laughted at a certain type of joke and, therefore, probably are prejudiced—as the Fort Wayne students were told. The presentation didn't teach—it accused.

One glaring fact stands out: the educators who devised such a program as desc ibed above and the teachers who utilize the program are prejudiced themselves.

The reason we have had such a change in teaching methods and materials is that certain self-appointed judges of education and human beings considered past methods and behavior to be inadequate and wrong. In other words, the mass of parenthood and adulthood fell under condemnation because we don't have a perfect society and here we've had 200 whole years to reach perfection or near-perfection. Thus, to me, most "new ideas" in education the past ten to twenty years have been based on prejudice.

My strongly critical remarks about education sound as if the whole teaching world is at fault for having instigated drastic changes. It sounds that way but I don't mean it that way. I am quite aware that there are teachers, older AND younger, who are not happy with what has happened; they are as upset as many parents. But, like many parents, their voices have not been heard. The voice of the reformer is often quite loud and takes advantage of throwing "conventionalists" off-balance by an inference of wrongness if "change" is opposed.

However, one of these days the voice of the "traditional" teacher must be heard; those teachers must stand up and be counted. Parents cannot do it alone, "it" being to stop the "new ideas" in education which will not work because they are so often directed toward the idea of "fun" rather than toward the discipline of productive work.

Teachers generally today are too inclined to become hostile when criticism is made of today's educational methods and materials. They are inclined to automatically dislike the criticizer, without examining all the facts. That's prejudice, one of the human faults they want to eliminate!

Isn't it weird? "Little Black Sambo" has been banned from school textbooks. But it's OK to present an ethnic joke like the above to a room of students, and then tell them, "If you laughed, you're probably prejudiced."

George Doup—Great Farm Leader

—from "The Hoosier Farmer" for January 1977

Hoosier farmers and thousands of Farm Bureau leaders all over the state will miss the inspiring leadership of George Doup, Columbus, past president of Indiana Farm Bureau, who entered retirement December 7. He had headed the farm organization for 19 years.

Under Doup's leadership, countless new programs in behalf of farmers were initiated, and many legislative successes were scored by the farm organization. Highlights among these are the property tax relief programs of 1963 and 1973. Nationally, movement to the market system and away from national government controls of agricultural production, and revision of the federal estate tax laws rate high to Doup's credit.

Literally thousands of farmers and businessmen throughout the state and nation have listened to Doup speak as the voice of agriculture in Indiana. During his period of leadership Farm Bureau's public power has expanded from fighting for "equality for agriculture" to fighting for agricultural leadership in the arena of public affairs.

People don't join Farm Bureau lightly. They join because they feel the need for the educational, promotional, legislative and economic services offered. Best evidence of their approval of the good job done during the Doup administration of 19 years is the fact that during that period membership has grown from 130,700 families to nearly double that number—240,125—for 1976.

Doup has been a truly great farm and business leader.

Extension Clubs Called 'Different'

"Indiana women are talking —53,000 of them," according to Ann Handcook of Purdue.

"Today's Extension Homemaker Clubs are far different from the Home Demonstration Clubs of years gone by. The 3,000 clubs located throughout Indiana's 92 counties are meeting the needs of today's women by offering stimulating experiences for all age groups," the Purdue University Extension Program Organization Specialist continued.

"Programs such as personal growth seminars, parent effectiveness training, and resource management are but a few of the many offered. Programming is determined at the grassroots level with representatives of the local Extension Homemaker Clubs attending 'program determination' meetings to provide input for county and area programs. Local clubs study areas of the program which best meet their needs," she said.

"Membership in an Extension Homemaker Club also provides the opportunity to participate in leadership training experiences," declared Mrs. Hancook. "Members can improve their skills in parliamentary procedure and learn better ways to plan and carry out group action."

Heritage Of Indiana's 100th General Assembly Marked

ASSEMBLY DRIVING FORCE IN INDIANA'S 1816 BIRTH

When a state is born, what gives umpulse to its existence? As with a newborn baby ready to draw its first breath of air, what agency of action transforms a new commonwealth's written Constitution into a living and functioning government?

When Indiana was born, its first driving force was the Indiana General Assembly. That first Legislature was convened at Corydon on November 4, 1816 — even before Indiana statehood had been formally confirmed by resolution adopted by Congress and approved by President James Medison. That action was to come on December 11, 1816.

Three days after the General Assembly's convening, Jonathan Jennings of Charlestown was installed as first Governor, and Christopher Harrison of Salem as first Lieutenant Governor. Those officers and members of the Assembly had been elected on August 5, 1816. The election had followed by five weeks the close of the convention which adopted Indiana's first Constitution.

When the first General Assembly was constituted, there were but 15 counties and the state's population was 64,000 persons. Under the initial apportioning system, there were 29 members of the House of Representatives and 10 members of the Senate. Public elections were to be held annually, with members of the House selected for one-year terms and members of the Senate for three-year terms.

The lawmakers were required to meet annually, remaining in session as long as they thought necessary. The first session was adjourned on January 3, 1817, or, it developed, 61 calendar days after convening. Members were paid $2.00 per day of attendance, plus $2.00 for every 25 miles they traveled going to and returning from the General Assembly.

Their first concerns involved governmental finance and organization, but also required legislative election of Indiana's first two United States Senators. Also Senate confirmation was needed on the Governor's appointment of three Supreme Court judges. A provisional carrying over of Indiana territorial law narrowed the range of legislative action immediately required.

(This article is one of a series recognizing Indiana's heritage as the Indiana General Assembly meets in its 100th session during 1977 and 1978. The material is provided as a public service by the Assembly's Select Committee On the Centennial History of the Indiana General Assembly.)

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Your articles on education are certainly appreciated and hope you will continue to send any in the future.

Thanks you for your thoughtfulness.

Yours truly,
Joan Gubbins

(State Senator Joan Gubbins, 1000 East 81st Street, Indianapolis, Indiana 46240. Committee assignments: Benevolent and Penal Institutions, Education, Public Health, Welfare & Aging, R.M.M.)

Senator Gubbins has led public opposition to questionable classroom textbooks and the general undisciplined trend of education in recent years. However, her efforts to get more public input into educational matters have not been too successful. Bills she has introduced have thus far not gained adequate support in the state legislature, despite the dissatisfaction expressed by taxpayers and parents about conditions in the schools. —Ed.

Old Fort To Re-open In April

The reconstructed Old Fort, long a dream of those interested in local history, completed its first season of operation on October 31. Public response to the fort and its programs has been most encouraging, and 59,640 visitors were recorded between June 5 and the end of October. Nearly 7,000 of these were schoolchildren in organized groups. Visitors arrived from all over, and, during the summer, fifty percent of them came from outside Allen County, including twenty-seven percent from states other than Indiana.

Without a doubt the most popular aspect of the fort proved to be the living history program. Each of our eighteen soldiers and women employed a "first person" approach to their interpretation of Fort Wayne life of 1816. Exhaustive research on the individuals who made up the garrison allowed all of the Old Fort interpreters to assume the name, history and, in some cases, the personality of original residents of the fort.

Plans are already being prepared for the fort's 1977 season. The gates will open in mid-April, and the fort will be available for inspection until the end of October. We hope to improve and expand all of our programs for 1977. Further research and more comprehensive training will allow the interpreters to be even more convincing in their roles.

The popular season tickets will be available once again. In addition to the fort's normal displays and activities, a series of special events are planned for next spring and fall. One weekend in April will be devoted to recreated soldiers of the Civil War. The British and Continental soldiers of the Brigade of the American Revolution will return probably in May, to display their eighteenth century military skills. Other events are being planned for late summ- giving a unique historical gift. Wayne season tickets will admit their holders to all such events.

Season tickets for 1977 are now available from Historic Fort Wayne. They may be ordered by those interested in giving a unique historical gift. Family season tickets are priced at $10.00 and individual tickets at $6.00 each. Historic Fort Wayne season tickets will allow admittance throughout 1977 and may be ordered direct from:

—that the State Board of Health proposes to require milk refrigeration at lower temperatures than Amish milk producers can provide without violating their religious practices. A spokesman for County Line Cheese Company has stated the firm has never had a problem related to contaminated milk bought from the Amish. Grade B milk is used in the production of cheese to a great extent. The proposed regulation would raise the price of cheese and put Amish milk producers out of business. State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn said this week he will co-sponsor legislation to protect Amish milk producers.

—that Loretta Loy of Saint Joe was injured Friday morning when her car skidded out of control on icy State Road 1 north of Saint Joe and slammed broadside into a utility pole. It was necessary to pry the car door open in order to get her out. She was taken to a Fort Wayne Hospital and was returned home Wednesday.

—that Henry Woods of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that Leo Thorp, 65, of Butler died Wednesday of last week at his home.

—that Leisha Moonevhan of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that several men were busy early Monday morning helping to make paths in Saint Joe after the heavy snowfall overnight Sunday. Seen from the News Office were Pat Crow and Larry Kinsey, driving their trucks on town streets to break a path. Then came Chuck Arnett with his tractor and blade to move snow off the streets, as did Kenny Roberts later with the town tractor. Pat Crow was using his loader from the fertilizer plant to push and scoop snow. Harold Yeiser had his tractor out and cleared a path on sidewalks in the business section. Still later Mel Herschberger came in town with his small tractor and cleared some sidewalks. —And we probably overlooked somebody.

—that State Senator Joan Gubbins (R-Indianapolis) will introduce a bill that would allow citizens to sue striking public employees. The bill "will be an amendment to the public employees and teachers laws now on the books" governing collective bargaining. "Their no-strike clauses are worthless," she said. "The governmental body usually agrees as part of the settlement not to exercise any penalty, but my bill will give the citizens an opportunity to go to court. A parent could sue because his child lost educational benefits or a resident could sue because of lost services such as in a sanitation workers' strike."

—that Doris Stuck says "thanks for all the concern shown Mark and I during our illness and stay in the hospital. This has been a blessed Christmas and New Year, being together and having friends and neighbors like you." Mark and Mrs. are improving some.

—that State Senator Graham Richard of Fort Wayne will have a public conference Saturday, January 15, from 10 a.m. to noon in Room A of the Fort Wayne Public Library. And State Senator Woodrow Wilson will have a news conference Monday, January 17, at 9:30 a.m. in Room 128 of the Fort Wayne City-County Building.

—that Betty Brown says thanks to the good Samaritan who cleared the snow from the Brown residence driveway east of town. Whoever it was on the John Deere was so bundled up that Betty and Ivan couldn't tell who it was.

—that Forrest Camp, 76, of Hamilton died Sunday at Angola. He was the brother of Robert J. Camp of Spencerville.

★ FOR THE PROPERTY OWNER ★

WHO WANTS TO KNOW what the Assessor does!

He first reviews all property to be assessed.....

He then values it. To do this he is constantly searching.....and digging ...for significant facts to accumulate and analyze in order to estimate... the FAIR MARKET VALUE of your property.

WHAT IS MARKET VALUE?

Finding the market value of your property is simply a matter of discovering the price most people would pay for it in the shape it's in today.

That is the Assessor's job. It's not quite that simple, however, because he has to find what this value would be for every piece of property in the County, no matter how large or small.

But it doesn't stop there. Each year he has to do the whole thing all over again, because the market value of almost everything changes from one year to the next—as we all know.

This is done so that those of us who want the advantages of having schools, fire and police protection, health and recreational facilities and other public benefits (which means just about all of us) can absorb our fair share of the cost of these privileges, that is, in proportion to the amount of money our individual property is worth.

HOW THE ASSESSOR GOES ABOUT HIS JOB

To find the value of any piece of property, the Assessor must first know what properties similar to it are selling for, what it would cost today to replace it, how much it takes to operate and keep it in repair, what rent it may earn, and many other dollar facts affecting its value, such as the current rate of interest charged for borrowing the money to buy or build properties like yours.

Utilizing these facts, he can then go about finding the property's value in three different ways.

THE FIRST WAY is to find properties like yours which have been sold recently. Their selling prices, however, must be analyzed very carefully to get at the true picture. One property may have sold for more than it was really worth because the buyer was in a hurry to occupy the property and would pay any price to get in.

Another may have sold for less money than it was actually worth because the owner needed cash right away. He was willing to sell to the first buyer who made him an offer.

Using this approach — comparing the selling prices of properties similar to yours — the Assessor must always consider such over- or-underpricing to arrive at a fair evaluation of your property's value.

THE SECOND WAY the Assessor can go about this is based on how much money it would take, at current material and labor costs, to REPLACE your property with one just like it. If your property is not new, he must also determine how much it has depreciated.

A THIRD WAY is used in addition to the other two if you happen to own property that provides you with a rental income, like an apartment house, a store, or a factory. Here the Assessor must consider such dollar factors as your operating expenses, taxes, insurance, maintenance costs, the degree of financial risk you take in earning income from your property, and finally, the return most people would expect to get on this kind of property.

Of course, if your property is the home you live in, he cannot use the third approach since you derive no income from it. But in any case, you can be sure he carefully considers all the available, reliable money factors pertaining to your property.

ASSESSED VALUE AND THE TAX RATE

The Assessor is not the Tax Collector, and the Assessor has nothing to do with the total amount of taxes collected.

His primary responsibility is to find the fair market value of your property, so that in proportion to this value you and other taxpayers may contribute your fair share of support for the community services you receive.

For these services to continue, other taxing agencies, as well as the County, must levy taxes. Here again, state laws define the powers of these taxing agencies and the kinds of properties that are exempt from taxes, such as schools, scout camps and churches.

It is in this area of taxes in general that the assessed value of your property comes in. The sum of the monies needed each year by all the taxing agencies, as well as by the County, determines what is called the TAX RATE. This tax rate is applied to each one hundred dollars of your property's ASSESSED VALUE.

WHY ASSESSED VALUE CHANGES FROM YEAR TO YEAR

When market value changes, naturally so does assessed value. For instance, if you were to increase the total market value of your property by building a swimming pool in your backyard, the assessed value would increase proportionately.

Similarly, should your property value be decreased by a fire, or other catastrophe, the assessed value would decrease to show the downward effect of this damage on the market value of your property.

In fact, the economy of the entire community affects your assessed value. Since, for example, the economy of DeKalb County has been growing steadily over the years, and more and more people have taken up residence here, property values within most of the County have increased.

The Assessor has not created this value; he simply has the legal responsibility to discover it as it exists and appraise your property accordingly, since PEOPLE MAKE VALUE by their transactions in the market place.

Mathes' Persistence Serves To Protect Public Safety

Governor Otis Bowen Intervenes — Need Continues For Corrective Legislation

—by The Editor

(NOTE: After the following article was written, the News received a call from Mary Mathes indicating that Governor Otis Bowen had replied to her letter written in early December. The Governor apologized for having taken so long to reply, but he indicated he was seeking information about the Pierce matter before making a response.

Mrs. Mathes indicated that the Governor said the head of the State Mental Health Department is to be notified if and when the release of Kenneth Pierce comes up in the future.

Thus, it appears by the Governor's intervention, public security in this particular mental-criminal case has been strengthened.

Mrs. Mathes expressed deep appreciation for not only the Governor's attention in the matter but also for the cooperation of the public and the news media.

She is the mother of Kenneth Mathes. Ed.)

If you want to give a boost to the morale of Ken Mathes, drop him a line or give him a call to thank him for his efforts to protect you and the public in mental patient matters related to criminal activities. Because it was Ken, and his attorneys, circulating petitions to the Governor in the past few weeks, who prompted a letter from the Norman Beatty institution to DeKalb Prosecuting Attorney H. Charles Winans stating that Kenneth Pierce is "a very sick man" and that no plans are foreseen in the immediate future for the release of Pierce as "rehabilitated."

The petition now has over 500 names, according to Mr. Mathes. He is continuing the solicitation for signatures.

I don't know that Governor Otis Bowen formally received the petitions. But I do know that State Representative Norman Gerig was working on the matter despite other pressing legislative preparations. And I know that a high-ranking state official was helping to make the situation known to the Governor.

In addition, articles in DeKalb County newspapers, a review of the situation on more than one occasion by WIFF-radio at Auburn, and news reports in the Fort Wayne newspapers helped to establish in the public's mind the fact that law enforcement officials have no jurisdiction in mental cases once a person is committed to an institution through court action. This leaves the public without the protection it is entitled to in criminal mental cases.

BUT THE JOB ISN'T OVER.

While the Pierce matter may now be under control, to all appearances, it is only because of pressure that such control came about. The most important purpose of the Mathes petition is to get legislative action requiring that information be provided to law enforcement officials in the county where court action resulted in confinement in a mental institution for anyone involved in criminal action.

Norman Beatty spokesmen have been somewhat defensive in their comments about the matter. They tend to make it sound on occasion as if they are being asked to disclose disposition of ALL cases under their jurisdiction. This is not the intent of the Mathes efforts. The intent is to get remedial legislation in CRIMINAL cases.

Points stand out to prove the vulnerability of the public in those cases involving institutional confinement due to court order in criminal matters:

1. A spokesman for Norman Beatty hospital has indicated that Pierce is a very sick man and that no further "weekend home visitation passes" will be given. BUT PIERCE WAS GETTING SUCH PASSES until the Mathes effort was undertaken to correct the situation.

Thus, for the second time, mental health "experts" have goofed in the handling of Kenneth Pierce. He was being treated for mental problems at the time he kidnapped Brenda Mathes, then murdured her by holding her head under water near the Spencerville dam because she was making too much noise in resisting his advances. He had abducted her from the coin laundry at Saint Joe, leaving the Mathes' three-year-old daughter alone until a custodian came in.

Pierce was being treated at that time because he had made advances toward a young woman from Auburn, but the parents of the girl agreed not to file charges if Pierce would submit to treatment, which he did. That girl could be dead, except that she had the presence of mind under terrifying circumstances to "talk him out of it" when Pierce approached her.

2. Local law enforcement officials were not aware of the release of Pierce when first investigating the Mathes killing. When a chance remark from a county resident indicated that Pierce had been seen locally, law enforcement "zeroed in" on Pierce and had all but a few minutes of Pierce's time accounted for when he was arrested. In other words, lack of notification from mental institution officials to local law enforcement agencies was a prime factor in the Mathes murder investigation. And the public was endangered because of it. There were some terrified women in DeKalb County—literally terrified.

3. Defense attorney John Martin Smith, Prosecutor Winans and Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump reportedly urged officials at Norman Beatty not to give weekend passes to Pierce when recent reports indicated Pierce was "out" on weekends. A request from Judge Stump for information in the matter was virtually ignored by hospital officials. Mental institution officials are above the law, as matters now stand.

4. Many laymen working to improve mental health care are sometimes blamed for such things as the Pierce situation. However, such laymen have not been working to get freedom for mental patients regardless of the seriousness of the patient's condition. I know. I've been a board member in the past of the county mental health group. I was a member of the board of the Northeastern Psychiatric Center at Kendallville, not only after the facility was put into operation but for several years before when a small group of people literally struggled to get an area mental health program under way.

The purpose was—and is—to provide adequate facilities and personnel for mental patients. At no time was there a statement that law enforcement was out of place in such matters. At no time were the courts considered out of place in mental health matters of a criminal nature. I personally never participated in mental health matters for the purpose of seeing to it that a mentally unstable individual be allowed to circulate in society despite their potential danger to the public and to themselves. I stated publicly in the paper: if there is a question about whether or not a mental patient has been adequately rehabilitated to be released, THE BENEFIT OF THE DOUBT SHOULD GO TO THE PUBLIC, THE PATIENT SHOULD CONTINUE TO BE CONFINED.

But—the important thing at the moment is that the job is not finished in protecting the public. Ken Mathes has filed a suit for damages and has had considerable legal expense due to that personal decision and action. However, that action has resulted in greater protection for the public at the moment—AND FOR KENNETH PIERCE, THE PATIENT.

Legislators must correct the situation by appropriate legislation which, while still protecting the privacy of mental patients, gives provision for mandatory notification of the law enforcement agencies directly involved in criminal cases that the patient has been or will be released. The Mathes petition to the Governor suggests that a hearing be held in the local court before release is given.

Ken Mathes deserves a thank you for starting a job which is not yet finished but must be, for the welfare of everyone.

Tired EHS Misses 2nd In Tourney

When you're tired, and a player on the other team gets a hot streak with everything she throws going in the basket, it's difficult to win a basketball game.

The young lady basketballers from Eastside found that out last Saturday afternoon in the championship game of the girls ACAC tourney at Woodlan. The Lady Knights from Norwell won the title game 64-37.

Norwell played a 9 o'clock game Saturday and won, and the Blazers played at 10:30 or so and defeated Carroll 43-30.

With only an hour's rest between games, plus lunch, the gals just couldn't get going. It didn't help either that many shots just wouldn't bounce the right way on the hoop. The Blazers made only 15 out of 60 shots.

Miss Rosinski of Norwell had the hot hands, getting 29 points on 10 fielders and 9 free throws. Her deadly accuracy sparked her teammates to the win.

Saturday Movies To Be Shown

Rex McFarren, Butler Park Board representative, has announced that the Park Board's "Saturday Morning Movie" will begin Saturday, January 22, and continue into spring.

Movies will be shown in the old high school gym with the same admission price, 50 cents. Movies begin at 10 a.m.

Children in the Riverdale area will again be provided with bus transportation. The bus will leave Chaney's Restaurant at Spencerville at 9:20 and Hep's Dairy Store at Saint Joe at 9:40 a.m. Children will be back at the pickup sites at about 12:30 p.m. There is no extra charge for the bus ride. Cooperation is asked from all those riding the buses to do as the drivers ask. Parents are invited to attend, also.

At intermission, a drawing will be held for a free season pass.

"See ya at the movies!"

FamilyEducation Series Jan. 25

A Family Education Series, sponsored by the DeKalb County Mental Health Association and the McIntosh School PTO, is scheduled to be held at the McIntosh School in Auburn starting Tuesday, January 25.

The sessions will be conducted by Homer Kiracofe of the Alfred Adler Institute and will concern how to deal with children from a parent's point of view.

The theme for the January 25 session will be, "Understanding Children's Behavior." The second meeting will be February 1 with the topic, "Understanding the Significance of Birth Order." The final meeting will be February 8 and will have to do with "Diagnosing the Child's Goals and Misbehavior."

Any parent in DeKalb County is invited to one or all of the meetings. Each session begins at 7:30 p.m. and there is a charge of $1.00 per person per session.

Previous meetings by Dr. Kiracofe and others from the Adler Institute have been attended by Charles Ray, principal of the DeKalb eastern elementary schools; Rex McFarren, DeKalb eastern social worker; and Mrs. Janice Vick, DeKalb eastern psychometrist.

Local Temp Hits 20-Below Marks

This winter has been an unusual one throughout the United States. From freezing temperatures and snow in Florida to comparatively mild readings in Alaska and Canada, the pattern has caused a lot of talk—as weather often does.

Readings elsewhere in DeKalb County Monday morning were around 17 below. However, in this immediate area readings of 22, 23 and 24 below were reported.

With winds of 15 to 20 miles an hour during the extreme cold temperatures, the "wind chill factor" made it feel like 40 to 50 below zero.

At mid-week, readings had risen considerably and a "heat wave" took the temperature into the 20's (above zero) Wednesday.

The cold weather has resulted in cutbacks or shutoffs of gas for heating in residential and industrial heating, plus peak demand loads registered by electric utilities.

WIFF To Air Girls' Sectional

Dave Martin will be at the mike to bring play-by-play action in the Girls' Sectional basketball tourney to be played at DeKalb Central High School.

Sectional dates are February 2, 3 and 5.

WIFF air time is as follows: 6:20 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday; 8:05 p.m. Saturday.

Six teams will participate in the sectional: DeKalb Eastside, DeKalb Central, Garrett, Hamilton, Fremont and Angola.

Red Flannel Days For Girl Scouts

Pokagon State Park will be the site for the Limberlost-sponsored Red Flannel Days on January 28 and 29.

Small group events will offer tubing, ice fishing, snow sculpture, ice painting, toboganing, nature observation, sledding, ice skating and a yule log hunt. Girls will see demonstrations of skate sailing, cold weather first aid ice rescue, and figure skating.

This event offers older Girl Scouts an opportunity to teach younger girls new Girl Scout programs. One highlight of the 2-day event will be a Yule Log Ceremony. Following a custom still observed in many English and American homes, troops will decorate one yule log from used Christmas decorations and wrappings. A troop representative will lay their yule log on the fire and offer a troop wish to the group for the New Year.

Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts will stay overnight and participate in events through Saturday.

I&M Has Last Laugh On Energy

I think the height of stupidity is the recent announcement of proposed milk-cooling regulations by the state board of health, those regulations threatening the welfare of Amish milk producers.

There hasn't been a death reported, or even an outbreak of illness, related to contaminated milk from the Amish. And County Line Cheese has done business with the Amish for 50 years, including "Grade B" milk, and never had a problem.

Remember a couple of years ago when environmentalists succeeded in convincing the bureaucrat planners that coal should not be used so much? Remember the "fuel cost adjustment factor" which increased your electric bill by one-third in the dead of winter? That additional cost was because the government told the generators of electricity that they had to use fuel oil instead of coal. And fuel oil is more costly in generating electricity than is coal.

Know what the government planners have cooked up now? They've drawn up regulations to REQUIRE the burning of COAL instead of fuel oil to generate electricity.

Also, remember all the hell electric companies (including I&M) were catching a couple of years ago not only because of requested rate increases but also because they were spending too much of the customers' money on advertising?

Well—I&M has the last laugh on that one, but it isn't funny—and they aren't laughing either. Why do they have the last laugh? Because those ads which were so wasteful of customers' money—according to some people, like Winfield Moses of Fort Wayne—those ads were saying:

If we use our tremendous coal reserves lying within the boundaries of the United States, we can relieve our dependency on foreign oil.

In other words—"big bad big business" knew what it was talking about and the bureaucrats didn't.

If we had followed the electric companies' advice, we wouldn't be paying 60 cents a gallon for gas—and the local hardware wouldn't have had to shell out (no pun intended) over $200 to heat the store FOR ONE WEEK during this cold spell, for fuel oil.

Oh well, it's only money—and why should the bureaucrats worry about that? They have a guaranteed income, cost of living pay increases, retirement benefits and all the other goodies—paid for by private enterprise-related taxpayers.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

Here is a check for $10 for my subscription. Please let me know how much more I owe. I enjoy reading the paper if I don't know many people there anymore. I moved away in Mar 1940. All my people are buried there so I'll be back there to stay someday.

I enjoy your editorials.

Yours truly,
Wilma M. Kees

Dear Ted:

Thank you for the continued correspondence.

The morals in all facets of society seem to have eroded to an alarming level. This even includes SOME churches, which are the very places we would least expect it.

Parents should be more involved in the material matter selection that their children are exposed to for 12 or more years.

This may be partially due to complacency on the part of parents.

Hopefully, your editorials will generate increased participation by parents, as well as increased cooperation between teachers and parents.

Sincerely,
Norman L. Gerig
State Representative
R1 Auburn, Indiana 46706

Parental complacency IS a part of the problem. We have heard it referred to many times by teachers. However, what about those who ARE concerned and are willing to participate? Our personal experience has been—in school (and church) matters—the more you want to participate, the less consideration you are given. —Ed.

(Editors note' Unsigned letters are a sign of cowardice. The following is published because it happens to express a point with which we agree—and it is apparently written by a teacher or someone close to a teacher and we wouldn't want to be accused of denying someone the opportunity to express an opinion.)

Why is it that the tax payers complain to giving a raise to teachers when they themselves can go to their employer and ask for a raise. The difference is that on the one hand the money is coming out of their pocket while on the other hand it is going into their pocket. Since the public doesn't want to give out of their pocket, they yell and scream against it. If the money is going into their pocket, they cry all the more for more.

I quote from your paper.... "Management in the private sector can control its revenues while management in the public sector must depend upon the taxpayer for its revenues." As far as some are concerned this is the answer.

Teachers need more money because the taxpayer keeps asking for more raises of their employers, who in turn raise their prices in order to give the pay increase. As the public seemingly sees it, it is okay for him to cause the prices of consumer goods to go up (which eventually comes out of his pocket the same as taxes). This is justified in order to pay the employee the raise he wants. It is not justifiable to raise taxes to give public employees a raise, or so it seems. Teachers have to buy the increased price of consumer goods as well as pay taxes.

Editor's P.S. The above hits the nail on the head—almost—because the punch line is left out. What is the punch line? Just this: EVERY PAY RAISE LEAVES THE RECIPIENT as well as the general public WITH LESS PURCHASING POWER. This isn't just an opinion or a theory—it's an absolute fact, evident in American society for many years.

So, what's the answer? We say NO MORE PAY RAISES OR additional fringe benefits. But who should—or is willing to—start the ball rolling in that direction? Certainly not organized labor, including teachers, because labor's LEADERSHIP does the talking, not the general membership. And that leadership has a job only so long as it can create a continuous state of unrest among its members. Even the Congress,. Democrats and Republicans alike, doesn't have the guts to set an example for the nation. It voted itself a big pay hike in 1969 under Richard Nixon, it voted itself automatic cost of living increases under Gerald Ford, and it is about to vote itself another pay raise under Jimmy Carter, under recommendation of Mr. Ford.

We have an idea that these astronomical figures in Washington, D.C., to rent an apartment or buy a house, came as a result of the 1969 Congressional pay hike. Therefore, it seems that, to keep prices down, you keep pay down. But that's a crackpot idea, isn't it???—Ed.

Blazers Lose In ACAC Tourney

Wtth a dismal 3-point third quarter, the DeKalb Eastside Blazers dropped their Wednesday night encounter with Southern Wells 61-41 in the ACAC tourney at the Coliseum in Fort Wayne.

Adding to Blazer woes was the early foul trouble of Dave Kandel, leading scorer for the team. It seemed every time there was a scramble under the basket for the ball, Kandel was determined too aggressive.

But there were other factors involved in the defeat—butterfingers and bad passes, leading to interceptions and turnovers.

The Blazers scored only 9 points in the second period, but trailed by only 31-25 at the half. Thereafter, it was all Southern Wells.

Heritage Of Indiana's 100th General Assembly Marked

FREE SCHOOLS' ORIGIN A 50-YEAR STRUGGLE

Indiana's system of public schools was envisioned by the framers of its first Constitution in 1816 when the state government itself had its beginnings. It was to be the duty of the General Assembly, then also created, to establish a general system of education "wherein tuition shall be gratis and equally open to all."

However, some 50 years were to pass before this objective was achieved uniformly and solidly. The pioneer institutions were county seminaries and rural and village schools. But they were not free, and public land revenues gave but token assistance to education. By 1846, not even a day in school was being experienced by more than 60 percent of the state's children. Only one child in eight could read, and Indiana's literacy rate was termed a disgrace.

The record of the General Assembly from 1849 to 1867 was one of trial and error in adopting plans which could gain both public acceptance of the taxation involved and constitutional approval by the Indiana Supreme Court. Intervening during this period was the Constitutional Convention of 1850 with its more emphatic prescription for the establishment of common schools.

Comprehensive public school laws were enacted in 1849, 1852 and 1867. General tax levies to support free schools were so hotly questioned that the 1849 law authorized each county's voters the option of accepting or rejecting the law. Immediately exempting themselves were 31 counties. The education taxes they would not accept were 10 cents per $100 of taxable property and a poll tax of 25 cents annually.

Under that law and the ensuing law of 1852, however, 2,700 schoolhouses were built and opened. But they were soon to be closed because school revenues were shut off throughout the state. Taxpayer lawsuits had led to Supreme Court decisions striking down the Legislature's delegation of taxing powers to townships and cities. A resurgence of private seminaries and academies filled part of that gap. Finally, the 1867 law firmly legalized a general system of free, public schools for Indiana.

—that the first of nine meetings with area legislators will be held Saturday morning, January 22, from 8 to 10 a.m. in the DeKalb County courthouse. The series is sponsored by the Uniserv office at Auburn, a branch of the Indiana State Teachers' Association. It is reported that State Representative Norman Gerig and State Senator Woodrow Wilson will speak and answer questions. A continental breakfast will be available for a donation. Additional meetings will be held in other cities. The next one for Auburn will be on March 12.

—that an Inauguration Special will be observed at luncheon sites in northeast Indiana for senior citizens Tuesday, January 25. The luncheon sites are a project of the Northeasct Area III Council On Aging serving nine northeast Indiana counties. Special guests to be invited for the day are the presidents of the site councils, presidents of the county councils on aging, and several area council officials. The menu will feature golden fried chicken, Washington hominy, southern baked potatoes with sourcream, cranberry-gelatin salad, cornbread and peanutbutter cookies. There is no fee; contributions are accepted. Otherwise, the taxpayer foots the bill.

—that Terry Kern of R1 Saint Joe was on the distinguished honor roll at Indiana State University for the fall semester.

—that Indiana taxpayers will be required to pay $10.5 billion in federal taxes as their share of the federal budget for 1978. That's almost $2,000 for every man, woman and child in the state just for federal spending. It's $250 higher than the 1977 per-person amount. In 1971 the per-person amount was only $955.28. The increase since 1971 is more than 100 percent!

—that the Auburn YMCA provides babysitting service to parents participating in YMCA programs. Cost is $50 per program.

—that Donald E. Miller has been appointed to fill the unexpired term of John Mason on the Concord Township Advisory Board.

—that the Northern Indiana Health Systems Agency will hold its annual dinner meeting Friday, January 28, at South Bend. 250 people are expected for the meeting, covering 24 counties. Health Systems Agencies are a new federal project on a nationwide scale under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). The Northern Indiana Agency has prepared an application for full recognition, with a proposed budget of $1,158,315, including $953,765 in federal funds, $104,550 in state planning contracts and $100,000 in local fund-raising. The budget lists 36 staff positions. This is but one of the programs resulting from the recent trend to planning procedures to control every local area. Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne recently had an expansion program stymied after a sub-committee had studied and approved the proposal but the Area III Coordinating Council rejected it. More and more planning by "experts" is in store for the American public in the future.

Harnessing energy used to be simple.

Years ago, most energy needs were met by what you had in your right arm. Or by something you kept in a stall, in your barn.

Today, meeting energy needs is a gigantic undertaking. And a complex problem. Because the need is still growing.

Even conservative estimates tell us the demand for electricity alone will double in the next 15 years.

Just keeping up with this increase is going to be tough. It's going to take new facilities. But major facilities take from five to ten years to build.

Building a power plant today, for instance, costs five times what it did 15 years ago. And it was costly even then.

Besides that, everyone knows how the price of fuel used to generate electricity has skyrocketed since 1973.

But, while we continue to make every effort to hold down our costs in meeting your future energy needs, there are some things you can do to help conserve that energy and keep your costs in line at the same time.

By using your electricity wisely. Insulating your home properly. Checking into more energy efficient appliances and systems, like the heat pump.

And by understanding that the generation of electricity is a costlier and more complicated process than it used to be.

When you get right down to it, the best way we know to harness the energy we all need for the future is by working together today.

Working together is the only way.

Prosecutor, Judge Efforts Mark Legislative Need

Ted:

Enclosed is a copy of a letter I received today (January 17) from Beatty Memorial Hospital concerning Pierce.

I feel that the efforts of my office and Judge Stump have paid off in this respect; there was apparently a very definite plan of release which has now been abandoned. Although the hospital now claims that there has been no such plan in the mill, they were almost certainly very evasive about their position for a period of months while Judge Stump and I were bombarding them with inquiries. Now suddenly they are taking the firm position that no such plans are in the offing and Pierce is a very, very, sick man.

I think we have forced them to make a change of plans. My heart pours out for Mr. Mathes and the child Brenda left.

I certainly appreciate all that you have done. I can assure you that as long as I am the prosecutor in this county, I will do everything I can to insure that Pierce is not released upon our society without medical and psychiatric proof that he is mentally capable of living in our society as a decent citizen.

Best regards,
H. Charles Winans

Dear Mr. Winans:

This is in reply to your letter concerning the above-mentioned case. To this date, nor in the immediate future, nor relative to long range release plans for Mr. Kenneth Pierce has not been considered at all. We are rather perplexed as to why information of this nature that release plans for Mr. Kenneth Pierce are in the offing when there is nothing to that effect being considered as a matter of record.

Mr. Pierce is a very sick young man and undergoing a highly individualized intensive treatment program and activities. Based on a recent evaluation, the prognosis of his illness is VERY GUARDED. Regardless, I am confident that he being seriously ill Mr. Pierce is entitled to the whole spectrum of treatment services available at this hospital inasmuch as that is the primary reason why he is being confined in this hospital.

Part of his overall treatment program is participation in individualized prescribed rehabilitation activities which are highly structured to meet his needs.

I quite understand your concern about the threat being made by certain individuals in the community that you are aware of. Our concern carries with it a moral responsibility to maintain the welfare and safety of our patient. I repeat, there are no release plans being considered for Mr. Kenneth Pierce. Passes off grounds with his family have been discontinued.

Yours truly,
George A. Batacan, M.D.
Superintendent

Editor's note: No, there are no typographical errors in the letter from Norman Beatty Hospital. If you had to go back and re-read portions of the letter to try to understand what was being said, you are not alone; so did we. It is one of the most incoherent letters we have ever seen, and it comes from a supposedly highly-educated well-trained professional.

It is totally contradictory to describe Kenneth Pierce as a "very sick young man," then to close with the statement: "Passes off grounds with his family have been discontinued."

Also—how anyone can be "perplexed" at concern shown in this community about weekend releases of Mr. Pierce, while at the same time stating he is a "very sirk young man," is not only beyond comprehension, it is beyond reason, in our opinion.

The next-to-last paragraph is a classic in today's bureaucratic hodge-podge of words which tell people absolutely nothing.

And an inference in the final paragraph that the prosecutor's concern—reflecting the concern of this area—DOESN'T include a feeling of moral responsibility for the welfare and safety of Mr. Pierce reflects what seems to be an attitude of superiority as far as understanding the TOTAL responsibility in such mental health matters.

If the handling of the Pierce matter is an indication of the manner in which other mental health cases are being handled (those of a potentially physically harmful nature)—heaven help us. The "experts" have goofed twice in this matter, as we have stated more than once in the past, and a young mother is dead because of it.

The need for corrective legislation continues to be obvious. That legislation should make criminal mental health cases a continuing responsibility of the local courts. It should make mental health "experts" answerable to local law enforcement officials in the disposition of cases involving serious unlawful activities wherein "innocence by reason of insanity" has been ruled.

PositiveAttitude Week Feb. 14-18

Riverdale Elementary School will promote "Positive Attitude Week" February 14-18, according to Principal Charles Ray.

The idea of stressing positive attitudes and respect on the part of the pupils was developed by the Riverdale Student Council, according to Mr. Ray. Members of the student council felt that emphasizing positive attitudes towards others, school work, etc., would be a worthwhile school-wide project.

Spot announcements are now being made over the school intercom as an introduction to "Positive Attitude Week." The announcements will be followed by the appearance of posters throughout the building.

On Monday, February 14, an assembly program will be conducted by the student council to give all the details to the students. A week-long contest will be held to determine which class displays the best positive attitude. This will be broken down into two winners, one for the primary grades and one for the intermediate grades. There will also be one boy and one girl selected from each room as demonstrating the best positive attitude and respect toward themselves, toward others, and toward the school.

Classes and students will be judged by the actions in the classrooms, in the hallways, in the lunchroom, on the playground, etc. Judges will be student council members, teachers and aides.

The week will conclude with an assembly on Friday. Mr. Ray will make the presentations to the class and individual winners at that time.

As a follow-up, there will be a Positive Attitude Day once a month for the remainder of the school year.

The sponsor for the student council is Rex McFarren and he is being assisted in the project by Mrs. Betty Wagner, Mrs. Judy Baker, Mrs. Lori Fox and Mr. Ray.

Homer Abel Killed At Sawmill

Homer L. Abel, 53, of near Auburn was killed Thursday of last week when he forgot how close he was to a whirling saw blade at the Abel Saw Mill and backed into the blade. He was killed instantly as the saw teeth pulled him into the blade. He and his son, George, were sharpening a chain saw when the accident occurred. The mill is located on County Road 43 just north of County Road 50.

Born June 20, 1923, near Auburn, Mr. Abel was the son of George and Zadie Allen Abel. In 1944 he married the former G'nell Seely. He worked at the saw mill all his life and the Abels resided there.

Survivors include the wife; the son; a sister, Mrs. Harold (Mildred) Harnish of Hamilton; and three grandchildren. He was a member of First Christian Church.

Services were held at the church Sunday with burial in Roselawn Cemetery.

Mrs. Ewell had resided in Kendallville for four years after moving from Ohio where she resided after the death of her husband, Albert, in 1961.

Mrs. Ewell was born May 28, 1897, in DeKalb County, the daughter of George and Alta Stark Kern. She married June 20, 1920.

Report From Rep. Gerig

Legislation to relieve Amish milk producers from proposed State Board of Health regulations related to cooling requirements has been reported out of the Indiana House Agriculture Committee. State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn informed DeKalb County news media Wednesday of this week that the legislation was approved by a 6-4 vote in committee and designated "emergency" due to approaching deadline dates for conforming to state regulations.

Proposed milk temperatures would force the Amish either to violate their religious practices concerning artificial refrigeration or give up the production of milk from dairy herds.

Mr. Gerig reported that the Board of Health spokesmen did not have any record of illness or death from use of Amish-produced milk. The only case of illness cited occurred in 1958 in Wisconsin. It took probing questions by the Agriculture Committee to bring this out, however.

Apparently the only reason the legislation received support in committee was because of the reluctance to override a governmental agency in its regulations.

Governor Deserves Support In Veto

Your name may not be Rosalynn Carter, and you may not have the "pull" she had in calling an Indiana State Senator last week to get him to vote for the "Equal Rights Amendment" making its passage certain by that one vote. But you do have effect on your State Legislators in other legislative matters if you are consistently reasonable and persistent in your support of or objections to particular bills coming before the state legislative body and its executive, the Governor.

There are exceptions, of course, such as State Senator Woodrow Wilson who voted for the ERA because he said he represented the wishes of a majority of his constituents. I don't know how he came to that conclusion. But that's what he said.

Right now, with a pari-mutuel betting bill passed by the House and due to come before the Senate, it is important to let Governor Otis Bowen know of your opposition to such legislation and back him in a veto of the bill if it passes the Senate. He vetoed a similar bill the last time around and it appears he will veto it again. But support of his action before he takes it will serve as a means of expressing confidence in his wisdom in the matter. And when you're in public office, such support often is a godsend.

Senator Wilson has indicated he will oppose the bill. But it wouldn't do any harm to let him know you back him. State Representative Norman Gerig voted against the bill in the House.

Governor Bowen stepped in on behalf of the public in this area in the past few weeks in the matter of Kenneth Pierce's treatment by state mental health authorities at Norman Beatty Hospital.

Now there is an opportunity for those who believe that state-sanctioned gambling is basically contrary to the total welfare of the public to register their support of Governor Bowen in his opposition to such legislation. It would be sort of a "thank you" for his interest in this community and people in general.

With the pari-mutuel betting bill passing the House by some 10 or so votes, it is obvious that some state legislators are forgetting moral responsibilities in the search for sources of increased state revenue. So - the Governor - and State Representative Norman Gerig - deserve expressions of support for their stand on pari-mutuel betting. They are truly trying to protect the total welfare of the people of Indiana.

Evidence seen in other states which have legalized gambling shows that: (1) legalized gambling brings increased illegal gambling activities; (2) the income for the state is minimal after administrative costs are paid for (more governmental personnel and facilities); and (3) a greater burden is placed on law enforcement officials who already have their hands full.

On the moral side, "legal" gambling serves as an enticement or temptation for those who may not be able to control the degree to which they participate as they look for a "fast buck."

COOK PLANT REFUELING

When I&M shut down its Donald C. Cook Nuclear Plant for refueling at the end of December, a number of letters were received from disturbed customers stating the shutdown was ridiculous at a time when customers' power requirements were greatest. Some newspaper editorials were also critical of the refueling schedule.

We realize that the timing of the refueling operation which takes the plant out of service nearly two months may seem ill advised, but the shutdown was unavoidable. It simply comes down to the fact that when you run out of fuel, you can't operate a plant.

What happens is that the fuel assemblies in the center of the reactor core are consumed much faster than the others and therefore must be replaced every 12 to 13 months of operation at full load. Under normal operation, the plant would have come down in September for refueling the assemblies in the center are removed and placed in a holding tank. The others are moved to the center and the new fuel is placed around the perimeter.

Cook Unit I went into commercial service in August 1975 after several months of test operation at less than capacity and then was not authorized by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to go past 100% or full power until June 1 73. Because of the delay in getting the plant to full production, original refueling schedule was pushed ahead and unfortunately fell during the winter's coldest period.

The result, of course, was that I&M had to purchase more power from outside sources. Fortunately, this power was available but at a price considerably more than our own generation. In the future this power may not be available at any price.

Phonics To Be Reviewed Monday

The "Alpha Program" will be featured at the Pokagon Reading Council winter meeting Monday, January 31 at the Butler Elementary School Cafetorium. The program begins promptly at 7:30 p.m.

Richard Goodman, midwestern representative for Alpha, will explain and demonstrate the strong phonics method of teaching reading to teachers and administrators from DeKalb, Steuben, Noble and LaGrange counties. Alpha is the only commercially-available program that has been cited by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) as a model reading program. It is now the basis for a TV program seen on some 60 public broadcasting stations.

Principal Charles Ray has issued a special invitation to any parents interested in listening to an overall view of this reading program to attend the meeting. Particularly invited are those who have children in kindergarten or first grade, or will have children entering school in the near future. All other interested persons are invited.

Mrs. Gayle Aylsworth, third grade teacher at Butler, is in charge of program arrangements for Monday night.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after prayer by Mildred McKinley, all enjoyed the bountiful potluck supper at tables beautifully decorated for the Christmas season.

A short business meeting was then conducted by President Ida Reed. She read a poem called "December," and gave a resume of the club's meetings during the past year.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I want to thank you for your love gift of $10 and for doing our feature in your paper. We did not make our goal this year, but we did raise $2,047 to buy warm clothing and food for 230 children.

Because of people like you who cared enough to help, we can help them to realize God still lives and He still cares.

Thank you and may God richly bless you.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Thanks to Fern Carr who called last week, I can add another name to the list of those who help us to "dig out" when heavy snow falls.

And this is someone who shouldn't have been overlooked because he is one of the first ones out with his little tractor and miniature "heat houser" to clean sidewalks. I'm talking about Erwin Rinard.

Our family's thanks to Kay Strombeck, Sid Long, Bob Obendorf, Pugs Beard and two other fellas whose names I can't remember for their help last week.

Mark has some sort of allergy and naturally he ran out of medication when everyone was snowed in. Without it, he has seizures of continued sneezing and runny nose.

I thought Kay might be on EMS duty at Butler, but she was at home when I checked. I told her the problem and that I had thought maybe she could bring needed medication back from Butler—if she was up there. She wasn't—but she said "Let me check—there might be somebody up there who can bring it down."

So with Sid responding to our need by going down to his drug store for the medication and dropping it off at the police station, and with Kay making connections with some snowmobilers at the police station—and with snowmobilers Obendorf, Beard and their two buddies making the delivery, Mark got his medicine which stopped the sneezing.

I invited the men in for a "hot chocolate" which they preferred with water and one with no ice—and the evening ended up with everyone right on the beam—Jim, that is.

I told Mark: "Now I'll hafta quit writing about the EMS and snowmobiles!"

'Letters' Reflect Governor's Promise, Vacationers' Pleasure

January 31, 1977

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for your recent letter expressing your opinion concerning legislation which would legalize pari-mutuel betting.

For many years I have voiced my opposition to any form of legalized gambling, and this includes pari-mutuel betting. In fact, one of my campaign promises was to veto any legislation which would legalize gambling. I have kept my promise by vetoing such legislation before, and I intend to do the same this session.

Kindest personal regards,

Otis R. Bowen, M.D.

Governor

Our letter was, in a way, a very unusual one. For the first time in our recollection, we expressed our opinion in only 22 words!. —Ed.

To the Editor of the St. Joseph newspaper:

We would appreciate it very much if you would print this in your next edition.

If there is more than one paper, would you please pass this on to them? Thank you!

During our vacation the last week of July, we met a family from St. Joseph in a rest area in Oberlin, Kansas. We don't remember their name.

We were camped in the back of the rest area by the county Hiway Department buildings.

We became acquainted and since we had never been that far west, he told us they had enjoyed the Rocky Mountain National Park. They also suggested we visit Mt. Evans, Idaho Spring and Central City which we did and enjoyed immensely. Thank you for your help.

We left the Village camping area the day before the flood went through the Big Thompson Canyon.

We would like to return after it is open to the public again.

If the family I am referring to reads this, will they please get in touch with us and let us know where they spent their vacation in the Cheyenne, Wyo. area.

We are very grateful to you for making our vacation so enjoyable.

Thank you so much.

Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beesley and daughters

GalsAdvanceInSectional; Face 'Central' Saturday

The gals from Eastside won their first encounter in the sectional basketball tourney Wednesday night, downing Garrett 32-22. DeKalb Central won the other game 50-18 over Fremont.

With more snow Wednesday night bringing a delay in further sectional play, the locals do not see action again until Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. when they play "Central." The 12:00 noon game is between Angola and Hamilton. The two games were originally set for Thursday night of this week.

The championship game has been re-scheduled for Monday night. Games are being played at DeKalb Central.

Wednesday night, Garrett gained a 12-8 first quarter advantage. But Eastside's cuties came back to make it a tie at 16-all at the half.

Thereafter it was all Eastside as Garrett scored only 4 points in the third quarter and only 2 points in the final period. In the meantime, Eastside scored 8 points in both final periods to gain the win. The locals had an even-Steven scoring pattern for the evening, getting 8 points in each of the four quarters.

Cong. Dan Quayle To Address Lincoln Day Dinner February 10

The annual Lincoln Dav Dinner in DeKalb County will be held Thursday, February 10, at DeKalb Central High School at 7 p.m.

Recently-elected Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle of Huntington will be the featured speaker, according to DeKalb County Republican Central Committee Chairman Robert Wilder of R1 Saint Joe.

Congressman Quayle has proposed a Constitutional amendment to limit the President and vice-President to one six-year term, rather than the present limit of two consecuvtie four-year terms; Senators to one eight-year term instead of the present six with re-election priviliges; Representatives to two four-year terms, rather than the present unlimited number of two-year terms; and federal judges to one ten-year term, instead o fthe present lifetime privilege.

Quayle's reason for such a proposal is to "fulfill the citizen-statesman model of our Founding Fathers" and eliminate the "professional politician."

In the eastern portion of DeKalb County, Grace Phelps of Butler is ticket chairman. She should be contacted by those who want to reserve tickets for the rally.

Zero Temps, Snow Stop 'Living'

After sub-zero weather the past two weeks, Indiana and other areas of the nation experienced higher temperatures which went up to the 20's early this week. School was again in session Wednesday this week after being closed Thursday and Friday last week and Monday. and Tuesday this week due to drifted snow on state and county roads.

But the mild Wednesday overnight temperature also brought another three inches of snow to this area. And with winds again gusting strongly, schools were closed Thursday. The blustery winds caused further drifting and in places made road visibility also nil, according to one rural resident Thursday morning this week.

So, once again, residents find it necessary to "dig out" and try to get back into the normal routine of living.

One advantage this community has had over other areas in the nation is the fact that there has been no problem with a natural gas supply; such service is not available here. (It was to have been installed at Saint Joe in the 1960's when Town Board President Ted Haberkorn and board members Jack Bowser and Lynn Lake passed an ordinance granting Northern Indiana Fuel & Light company the authority to bring natural gas to Saint Joe. The project was to have been carried out within four years of the May 1968 final reading of the natural gas ordinance. But increased cost of financing and a short supply of capital investment money prevented the gas company from fulfilling its intentions.)

Problems have been experienced, however, by the local Vulcraft plant which uses propane gas. The plant has cut its temperature level in the assembly area to around 38 degrees, it is reported.

The use of electricity has been curtailed by many residents. A drive down the main street one evening last week at about 6 p.m. by The Editor brought the impression that Saint Joe was a ghost town. Only one electric light was noticed at first, giving the impression that most homes had been abandoned. However, a return trip showed that life was still going on in the homes, as evidenced at one home with the sight of a youngster peeking through a frost-coated window, probably to see who was "nuts enough" to be driving around under such bad weather conditions.

Motorists in the county were warned of possible arrest if caught driving on roads and highways, except for emergency purposes.

White County in southern Indiana was probably the first to take extreme precautions last week, the county placed under martial law to keep residents safely at home.

Senator Wilson To Hold Conferences

State Senator Woodrow Wilson of Monroeville will hold "constituent conferences" Saturday, February 5.

At 8 a.m. he will be at the Monroeville Elementary School after which he will go to Woodlan High School at 11 a.m.

Anyone wishing to talk to the Senator about any matters pertaining to the current session of the Indiana General Assembly or about any other matters is invited to stop in at either of the two above locations.

The Senator plans to have similar constituent conferences every other weekend, if possible.

You can mark Tuesday, February 15, as an opportunity for a "night out" for supper.

The Riverdale PTO will serve its annual chili supper on that date. Serving time will from 5 to 8 p.m.

The Riverdale PTO meets five times during the school year. The third Tuesday is the regular meeting night. However, there is no business meeting conducted the night of the Chili Supper.

GS Cookie Sale February 11-20

Limberlost Girl Scout Council's annual cookie sale will be held February 11-20, with Girl Scouts taking orders door-to-door throughout DeKalb, Adams, Allen, Huntington, Steuben and Wells counties. The cookies will be delivered to homes March 14-24.

Thousands of Scouts will be involved in the operation, which has been a nationwide Girl Scout tradition since 1936.

For the first time, all cookie varieties will be kosher. The assortment offered will be old-fashioned shortbread, chocolate mint, peanutbutter sandwich cremes, chocolate and vanilla sandwich cremes, peanutbutter patties and chocolate-coconut cookies.

All trops who sell cookies earn money for the troops' treasuries which the girls themselves decide how to spend. In addition, the cookie sale provides about 40% of the funds needed to carry out the work of the Council.

Cookie sale proceeds are used for camp development, camp program and maintenance equipment, property and liability insurance, and to help keep camp fees at a reasonable level. Cookie profits are also used to provide scholarships to Girl Scouts for camping and for program opportunities outside the Council jurisdiction.

Limberlost Girl Scouts sold in excess of 212,000 boxes of cookies during the 1976 sale and have set the 1977 goal at 238,000 boxes.

Public Deceived About 'Doing'

Among the clippings scattered around the News Office, on the floor, on a make-up table, on the desk, etc., I came across a news item I clipped not too long ago concerning the uproar over a negro seeking admittance to the Plains Baptist Church, the congregation which has among its membership President Jimmy Carter and his family.

The headline said: "Carter triumphs; Church to admit blacks."

The story told of Jimmy Carter's efforts to get the congregation to "admit all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ." It said that the vote was 2-1 in support of Mr. Carter. The news story began:

"Eleven years ago, Jimmy Carter and his family stood almost alone in seeking to accept blacks to the Plains Baptist church....."

Why bring the matter up? Well, after that meeting another story came out, about another meeting held by the congregation including the President-elect. THAT story told of a unanimous vote to reject the application for membership of Rev. Clennon King, a negro from a community 40 miles away.

The story was in the papers, the second story, I mean. But it didn't get the notoriety which the first one did. And it illustrates how the public can be misled by the manner in which a story is written and the manner or consistency with which it is offered to the public.

I mention the incident because of a "political conversation" with a friend this week in which my friend said, "Carter has done more in two weeks than Ford did in two years."

I don't remember what it is that the new President has "done," in my friend's opinion, but I do remember asking "what's he done???"

I haven't seen anything yet to indicate action beyond that taken by any new President.

But I do know that people often THINK something is being done when that may not actually be the case. In this instance, the public was led to believe that Bible-totin' Jimmy Carter had led his church to a great triumph for human justice. Remember, the headline, said, "Carter Triumphs."

But what really had been approved the first time was to allow negroes to ATTEND worship services. The second vote was on admitting negroes to membership and it was voted down UNANIMOUSLY, with Mr. Carter present.

You must watch carefully the way words are used. They can be very misleading— like "Trust me."

"I'm proud of my church, God's church," Mr. Carter was quoted by United Press International after the first meeting.

Then, when a negro sought membership several days later in the church which said it would admit "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ," that individual is rejected unanimously and the President is among those voting.

So, the President really didn't "do" anything in that instance.

One thing he HAS done, on second thought, is grant a pardon to draft-dodgers from the Vietnam conflict. However, it isn't only the American Legion which has reacted unfavorably to the pardon—it's a lot of other Americans, too.

When Gerald Ford pardoned Richard Nixon, the President's popularity plummetted to an extreme degree. Why hasn't President Carter's popularity also dropped as drastically???

Laws Brought Shortage Of Gas

I wonder if the implications in legislation giving President Carter power to order natural gas from one area to another in an emergency have been fully noted by some people, including members of Congress.

I know the action sounds like "concern" for the welfare of our citizens. But— in the process of putting together such legislation, there is a disturbing factor and a disturbing inference.

The factor—that it takes A LAW to provide for aid to emergency areas suffering from a natural gas shortage.

The inference—that private enterprise (gas suppliers) are NOT interested in the welfare of their customers.

Are we so "down" on business that we believe it will not function in the interest of the people it serves? Are we so bound by regulations that the Congress MUST legislate in order to allow the transfer of gas from one state to another to ease the crisis?

The situation reflects an unfortunate reliance on laws to cope with adversities. We have forgotten the power of public opinion and individual action in counteracting unexpected or unfair situations. And the controls exercised by the government in our private lives grow with each instance that our legislators and chief executives add another law to the thousands of laws already on the books.

The reason for the gas shortage is in the price controls imposed by law to keep millions of homeowners happy with low-cost energy supplies. The gas industry has been unable to expand because of these price controls. The cost to heat the average home with natural gas in the past, especially the past few years, has been unrealistically low. The people who have benefitted by such controls have been living in a "dream world" as far as home heating costs are concerned.

But there is always a price to pay for an unfair advantage. In this instance, that price is— not enough gas.

There is a lesson to be learned from this hard winter. I wonder if we recognize it.

Winter 'Rough' On Heat Bills

Bitter cold hit this area as well as other parts of the nation last week. Snowfall plus winds gusting up to 50 miles per hour brought closed highways, closed schools and closed businesses and industry.

The continued winds made it impossible for state and county snowplows to open roads and keep them open. It was Monday of this week before motorists could be certain of open roads, and then only by knowing round-about-routes in some instances to get to work in other cities or provide for daily needs.

At the south edge of Saint Joe, snow was piled 10 feet and more deep where plows had been able to get through. In some spots only one lane of traffic was possible. At Riverdale Elementary School, snow drifted above the top of classroom windows.

The number of "degree days" went over the 4500-mark by the weekend. "Degree days" is a measure of the heating season from July 1 of one year to July 1 of the following year. Reports that one fuel oil dealer had sold "twice as much" fuel by last week compared to a year ago matched the "twice as many" degree days thus far as compared to last year at the corresponding date.

The average number of "degree days" for this area is around 6,500, July 1 to July 1.

So, while it may appear that winter is two-thirds gone already (but it's only the first of February), there is also the fact that last year's "degree days" totaled only some 5,600. If the law of averages applies here, it is probable that "normal" weather for the remainder of the winter season is in the offing. And the heating bill for the average home will be 25 to 50 percent higher than usual this year—unless homeowners have turned down their thermostats and have become accustomed to cooler indoor temperatures.

School Board

The DeKalb eastern school board meets Monday, February 7, at 8 p.m. The agenda includes minutes; claims and checks; elementary principal Charles Ray to have an audience with the board concerning a brief "State of the School" message and a review of all non-tenured teachers; board to consider and to possibly issue a directive regarding adding to the food selection at the junior-senior high school; need for a directive from the board regarding the Kenneth Olin request to become a bus driver; sign contracts as necessary; and any other business that may come before the board.

Club Keeps 'Little' Railroad Going

Those who have made the trip to the lake country around Angola the past summer may have noticed an old-time steam engine pulling a short train on old railroad tracks bewteen Pleasant Lake and Angola. The group which sponsors the historic short line calls it the "Little River Railroad." There is a news letter put out from time to time, and the latest one indicates some of the problems—and progress—encountered by the group. It reads as follows:

"TRACK LEASE, Part II: Here we go again . . . waiting for the track lease. The Hillsdale County Railway HAS ICC authority to operate the section of track we want for our excursions. They say they WILL issue a lease to us, and set a tentative lease amount which will save us about $1000 compared to last year. HOWEVER: Due to FRA inspections, we cannot haul passengers over the track until HCRy upgrades it. HCRy promises to get one mile upgraded by MAY and gave us the choice of Angola south or Pleasant Lake north. We chose P. Lake north. Until the rest of our line is upgraded, we will be running a 2-mile round trip out-and-back operation. We MAY operate over the rest of the line, but not with passengers. A revised temporary fare schedule will go into effect to reflect the shortened ride. Another FRA hurdle may be inspection of our locomotive boiler. It is still being ascertained whether we need FRA approval on it. We are also waiting for final arrangements with ohr liability insurance.

"NEW EQUIPMENT!: John Marty has purchased a 13-ton gas engine switcher for operation on LRR. This engine will be excellent for work train use and emergency backup. The loco is currently in a scrapyard in Decatur, IN and will be moved on FRIDAY, 28JAN77. We need people to come along and assist with the move. Please contact John Martv at 219-347-1915 or Charlie Willer at 219-665-3003 if you can make it - OR - meet us in Angola early in the morning Friday or early in the afternoon Saturday to help load/unload. This little Plymouth will be given the number 213 in honor of John's street address. (Such an honor!) AND . . . LRR is also getting TWO stock cars from Northern Pacific (No. 82990 and No. 83022) that we will strip down and rebuild into open-air observation cars. One of the cars was last used for grain hauling and is lined with plywood inside. These cars should arrive sometime in the middle of February.

"LRR PATCHES: Assistant PR Officer Herman Schnelker has laid out a considerable amount of capital to obtain cloth sew-on patches with the LRR logo embroidered upon. You may have received a mailing already about them. If not, they are $2.50 each and are worth that amount as they are quite large and well-made. Send your order with a check made out to Herman Schnelker to LRR Patches, c/o Herman Schnelker, 660 Lincoln Highway West, New Haven, IN 46774. Any order received at the PR dept or LRR box will be forwarded to Herman for processing.

"OLD ST. JOE VALLEY SHOP PURCHASED: Dick Hutchens has purchased the old shop facilities of the St. Joe Valley Ry. in LaGrange, IN. Among the goodies found inside were a HUGE lathe capable of turning 24" stock and many tools useful to railroad mechanics. Dick will need people to help load/unload the lathe sometime soon. If you are interested, contact the PR dept.

"MEMBERSHIP LIST? Would you like a copy of the membership list? We have over 175 members now and if the PR dept. can obtain some free time or assistance, you should receive a copy of the list in the next mailing.

"Also, if you would be willing to put up LRR posters in your town, please contact the PR dept."

It takes about one pound of coal and a few hundred people just to bake a meatloaf.

Baking a meatloaf is simple. But making the electricity that bakes it isn't.

It only takes about a pound of coal to generate enough electricity to operate one oven for one hour. But, when you figure in the hundreds of other ways electricity works for you each day, and multiply that by the thousands of other homes and businesses where electricity is working around the clock, the job of supplying power takes on a different perspective.

Behind all the plugs, switches, lights, appliances, tools and machines in our area is a gigantic and complex power system.

Where thousands of tons of coal are burned every day to make the steam that turns the turbines that generate your electricity.

But that's only the beginning. Getting that electricity where you need it, when you need it, also requires thousands of miles of power lines, transmission towers, substations, poles and transformers.

And people.

The hundreds of specially-trained people who manage and maintain this vast network that serves you 24 hours a day.

We're not offended if you take electricity for granted, though. Because that means we're doing our job; keeping the power coming.

But there's a job you can do, too.

Make sure the electricity we provide isn't wasted.

How? Turn off lights and appliances when you're not using them. Wash only full loads of clothes and dishes.

Or, better yet, make sure your home is properly insulated. And look into appliances that have the new energy-saving features.

Working together this way we can make something even better than meatloaf.

Progress.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

Congress Pay Raise Termed 'Hyprocrisy' And 'Rip-off'

Presidential Request For 'Frugality,' Congress' Pay Raise Totally Contradictory

—By The Editor

One of the biggest rip-offs in the history of the U.S. taxpayer is due to occur February 20. If neither the U.S. Senate nor House of Representatives takes action to stop it before that date, an automatic pay raise for Congressmen, Supreme Court justices, cabinet members, other top executive branch officials and some other high level bureaucrats will go into effect. The Congressmen's pay raise, almost $13,000, represents more than the median income of American families.

Senator James B. Allen, a Democrat from Alabama, tried to stop the pay hike last week with an amendment which would have in effect wiped out the "automatic" pay increase. But the amendment was defeated 56-42. Among those voting to defeat the amendment and let the raise go through was Indiana's Richard Lugar, a Republican elected just last November in a campaign reflecting his concern for the high cost of government.

Senator Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, a Democrat from West Virginia who opposed the raise in the past, switched his vote to favor the pay hike.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, Jr., a Republican from Tennessee, also voted to let the pay hike go through.

Under the pay raise recommendation included in former President Gerald Ford's proposed budget and approved by President Jimmy Carter, increases for—

Senate and House members will go from the present $44,600 up to $57,500 per year;

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, Vice President Walter Mondale and Chief Justice Warren Burger from $65,500 up to $75,000;

Cabinet members from $63,000 up to $66,000;

Associate Supreme Court justices from $63,000 up to $72,000;

Lower federal court judges from $42,500 up to $54,500;

Top civil servants from $39,000 up to as much as $46,900;

Deputy Public Printer from $37,800 up to $47,500.

The pay hike opposition has been led in the House by Charles Grassley, a Republican from Iowa, and Patricia Schroeder, a Democrat from Colorado. Indiana's freshman Congressman Dan Quayle is also outspoken in his opposition to the pay raise.

But Grassley's resolution (H-Res. 115) now before the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, probably will get nowhere due to the time element. A Congressional recess for Lincoln Day observances reduces the actual time available between now and February 20 which can be devoted to consideration of the bill. It must pass the committee before it can be presented to the full House, and that is a long, long shot.

The hypocrisy in the matter is reflected in headlines the day after President Carter's first "fireside chat" last week. The headlines:

"CARTER URGES FRUGALITY; CONGRESS ACTS" and the other said that the Congressional pay raise would probably go through.

The entire situation seems to illustrate that oft-heard observation that "Washington does something to a man."

Significantly, Republicans and Democrats are in on the shameful probability.

The only possibility of stopping this selfish gouging of the American taxpayer would appear to be a mass reaction by the general public by phone calls or letters to their respective members of Congress and to the President of the United States. Since a Lincoln Day recess is here, those elected representatives should be in home territory and readily accessible to the public.

There is no justification for such selfish "set-ups" as this, where a Commission makes a recommendation, the President approves it, and it becomes effective without a vote by the Congress. In reality, by not voting, the Congress votes itself a pay raise.

What really puts the icing on the cake is the fact that Senators Byrd and Baker support a move to appoint a committee to draft a "tougher code of ethics" for Congress!

"Tougher code of ethics"!??? Give yourself a pay raise by sneak methods and also talk about a "tougher code of ethics"????

Hypocrisy. Absolute hypocrisy.

LADY BLAZERS WIN SECTIONAL TITLE

—By The Editor

Determination.

That's the story of "Brown's Bombers" who defeated DeKalb Central Monday night to enter the sectional championship game Wednesday against Angola at the Central gym in the girls' basketball sectional tourney.

Who are the "Brown Bombers"? They are the gals on the DeKalb Eastside girls' varsity team. Only they didn't exactly "bomb" their way to victory. It was free throw accuracy that brought the win for the mighty midgets—Central had two 6-footers on its squad. But the Lady Blazers rebounded well enough to stay in the game. And with Central having 25 infractions whistled while Eastside had but 7, the Central advantage from the field was overcome.

Central defeated Eastside earlier this season with some grumbles heard from Blazer fans about the officiating. This time it appears the grumbles about officiating, especially related to a female official, came from the other side, according to an account in the Auburn Evening Star.

Coach Bob Brown once again used only five players, as he has done many times during the season. And they hung in there, despite a 5-point Central advantage at half-time.

Determination.

That word again became descriptive of the DeKalb Eastside girls' varsity basketball team as it won the sectional tourney held at DeKalb Central.

The Wednesday night thriller against Angola went to the locals 41-39. They face Leo at Northrop High School at Fort Wayne Saturday at 1:30 or thereabouts in the next step up the ladder in state tourney competition.

Down by 6-0 before getting a mark on the scoreboard and outscored from the field once again, the plucky misses from Eastside didn't give up, kept picking away at their opponent's lead, and came out winners.

Their usual deliberate, set style of play early in the game seemed to keep them back on their heels as Angola outrebounded the locals. Angola's height advantage was not new to Bob Brown's five "ironmen" ("ironpersons"????).

Then they perked up and in the third quarter especially began to hold their own under the Angola basket in rebounding.

Amy Hampel popped in five fielders, but high scoring honors went to Lisa Johnson with 13 points.

The victory and sectional title was a "shot in the arm" for the whole school district, judging from the number of fans who attended, the presence of the varsity cheereleaders (although there was a boys' game played also Wednesday night) and the overall enthusiasm obvious in the crowd, It was a welcome bright spot for a school beset in recent months by other matters which unfortunately had been carried into the student body.

The remarkable thing about the spunky misses from Eastside is that they now have a 16-3 record against opposition consistently taller and consistently represented by upperclassmen (or is it "classpersons"???). But Eastside's five starters include a junior and four sophomores. And they play without substitution, unless someone runs into foul trouble. Bench strength is the team's major problem.

After a hard-fought loss in December to DeKalb Central, these columns said:

"...if they're as good as they seem to be, as determined as they seem to be—they'll come back.

"Hang in there, gals!"

They hung in there—and they came back.

Person oh person, did they come back!

Pay, Allowances For Member Of Congress Are $300,000 Each Year

—By The Editor

(Source of information—the national wire services)

The list of allowances for every member of Congress is a long one. While they do not reflect "income" to the elected officials' pockets for the most part, they do represent expenses covered by the taxpayer which, in private enterprise, would be an out-of-pocket expense and therefore a significant business expense.

Some in Congress cite the fact that they have not had a pay raise since 1969. That is a misleading statement. Between August of 1975 and August of 1976, they received a cost-of-living increase of $2,100, raising the pay from $42,500 to $44,600, about a 5% increase. Their base "salary" has not been increased technically, but their pay HAS been increased with that cost-of-living adjustment.

The proposed "automatic" pay increase set for this month is $12,900, representing an increase of over 28%—not bad for a one year period.

The allowances for each member of Congress include those for essentials, such as assistants and office equipment. However, one allowance for which Congressmen do not need to make an accounting, is of $6,500 for stationery. The full $6,500 can be drawn each year, but part of it can be for a house payment, or campaign expenses, or a vacation, or you name it. They are not required to tell what they used it for.

Other allowances involved include (and these are ANNUAL allowances):

A $47,000 life insurance policy for which they contribute only $36.16 a month;

$238,584 staff allowance for up to 18 persons, with the highest salary "limited" to $37,355;

$200 per month rent allowance for each of up to three district offices, and up to $500 a month if cheaper space cannot be found;

$5,000 for furniture and equipment in addition to the furniture and equipment already provided in his or her three-room office in Washington;

Up to $750 per month to lease office equipment, and $5,500 annually for purchase of electrical and mechanical office equipment, and $1,500 for carpeting and draperies in the district office as well as $500 per quarter expense allowance—these in addition to the previously-listed office allowances;

Health insurance;

Civil service retirement program to which they contribute and can become eligible for up to $50,000 per year retirement pension, depending on the number of years in Congress;

$5,000 for newsletters to constituents (which often come out "conveniently" at campaign time);

15,000 minutes for long-distance phone calls;

26 round trips to the home district;

Recording studio privileges at a cost of $1.50 for a six-minute radio program (on the open market the cost is $35 to $50 for John Q. Public);

Personal services like a barbershop ($2 per haircut), check cashing, gymnasium with swimming pool, paddleball courts and steamroom, travel assistance from a travel service, unrestricted parking in Washington, special dining rooms and restaurants with prices far below what the average citizen can find when eating out, five inside garages, a doctor on duty at all times, loan counseling and auto loans, plus several other conveniences and services such as flowers and greenery to enhance their offices — and 2,000 calendars costing 50 cents each (paid for by taxpayers) and 70 subscriptions to the Congressional Record at $45 each (paid for by taxpayers).

GS Cookie Sale February 11-20

Limberlost Girl Scout Council's annual cookie sale will be held February 11-20, with Girl Scouts taking orders door-to-door throughout DeKalb, Adams, Allen, Huntington, Steuben and Wells counties. The cookies will be delivered to homes March 14-24.

Thousands of Scouts will be involved in the operation, which has been a nationwide Girl Scout tradition since 1936.

For the first time, all cookie varieties will be kosher. The assortment offered will be old-fashioned shortbread, chocolate mint, peanutbutter sandwich cremes, chocolate and vanilla sandwich cremes, peanutbutter patties and chocolate-coconut cookies.

All trops who sell cookies earn money for the troops' treasuries which the girls themselves decide how to spend. In addition, the cookie sale provides about 40% of the funds needed to carry out the work of the Council.

Cookie sale proceeds are used for camp development, camp program and maintenance equipment, property and liability insurance, and to help keep camp fees at a reasonable level. Cookie profits are also used to provide scholarships to Girl Scouts for camping and for program opportunities outside the Council jurisdiction.

Date Changed

The date for the Riverdale PTO Chili Supper has been changed. And it has been combined with a carnival.

The new date is Friday, April 1, and the time is 4 to 8 p.m.

The severe winter weather of the past few weeks brought the decision to postpone the PTO activity.

So, scratch out February 15 and mark April 1 for the Riverdale PTO Chili Supper and Carnival.

Singers Wanted For Cantata

The cantata "No Greater Love," by John W. Peterson, will be presented in St. Peter Lutheran Church at Spencerville Sunday evening, April 17, at 7:30 p.m. by a community chorus.

Anyone interested in singing the cantata is invited to join in the rehearsals at St. Peter church, according to Jay Blauser, director.

Rehearsals begin Sunday, February 27, and will be held from 3 to 4 p.m.

Tourney 'In Black'

Wednesday night's attendance of around 525 at the girls' sectional tourney enabled the tourney to show a profit of some $600 or so this year. Last year, the tourney "lost" around $200, according to DeKalb Central's atheltic department.

Last year, a meal allotment was igven each school. This year that allotment was eliminated. The schools do receive a mileage allotment, however, to cover transportation costs.

Last year, total attendance was 785. This year it was 1,025.

Profits are split equally among participating schools. In contrast, state tourney profits in boys' basketball are split acing to enrollment.

—that the school board voted Monday to add to the selection of food in school lunches at the junior-senior high school.

—that Congressman Dan Quayle has joined a bi-partisan group in Congress in asking Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to reject any agreement with the Panamanian Government which would lead to the eventual relinquishment of U.S. control over the Panama Canal.

—that General Tel has been allocated $18.4 million for its 1977 service expansion program in the northeastern division.

—that Theo Webb of Auburn has been appointed to the 1977 Personnel Committee of the United States League of Savings Associations. It is the principal trade organization for the savings and loan business and represents over 4,500 associations in the nation.

—that if the "automatic" pay raise for Congress and others in government goes through, former Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford will receive an additional $3,000 per year in pension benefits. Both receive other federal pensions.

—that Mary Rutherford of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that five new scholarships are available at Saint Francis College in Fort Wayne for premed students enrolling for the 1977 fall term.

—that the "Amish milk bill" passed the Indiana House this week 84-14, according to State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn. It eases the milk cooling requirements set by the State Board of Health.

—that the Indiana House passed a bill eliminating the necessity of having township trustees post notices of elections in public places.

—that a judge, a prosecuting attorney and several detectives have praised efforts by citizens to mark their property with a personalized number to thwart the theft and sale of stolen property and to aid law enforcement agencies in the apprehension and conviction of thieves and burglars. Now if there was some way to get courts to hand down decisions on the guilty persons and make them stick, and get lawyers to quit using legal technicalities to get the guilty off free and not pay for their crimes, justice would be on a real upswing.

—that the Monroe County Community School Corporation will implement a voluntary 45-15 year-round school calendar in the Grandview Elementary School. The regular calendar will also be offered, giving parents a choice. Under the 45-15 plan, students attend school 45 days, then have a vacation of 15 days, on a rotating basis, until the required 180-day school year is fulfilled.

—that a crisis has arisen in Lansing, Michigan. A theater showing X-rated movies applied for a live entertainment license. It was turned down because new-addition facilities of the theater did not make them "accessible" to persons with handicaps. So the question is—does the theater have to accommodate "handicapped" strippers? There was no detailed explanation of what a "handicapped" stripper is — and that's not the worst of it. In areas forced to cut back on thermostat settings due to the shortage of natural gas for heating, strippers in some cities got goosebumps on their — — working time. — Listen, this winter has been REALLY rough.

—that minor injuries were suffered Thursday of last week by Michael Work and Toni Wilges of Saint Joe and Elaine Jones of Grabill in a two-car accident on State Road 1 south of town.

—that the thermometer plunged to 14 below zero early Tuesday morning. Then a warm front brought temps in the 40's thereafter..

—that Marine Lance Corporal John W. Tipton of R1 Auburn has reported for duty with Force Troops, Twentynine Palms, California. He joined the Marines in November 1974.

—that Jan Goshert will lead a discussion on food fads February 15 at 9:30 a.m. in the Exhibit Hall at Auburn.

—that Governor Otis Bowen and Lieutenant Governor Robert Orr are urging the Indiana Congressional Delegation to actively support the community effort to land the RDX/HMX explosives and ammunition facility at the Newport Army Ammunition Plant in Vermillion County.

—that the Indiana State Teachers' Association has hailed the passage of the "Equal Rights Amendment" in Indiana as "the historical breakthrough for the women of Indiana and the nation." ISTA has been working through ERA Indiana and local teacher association legislative action committees to secure passage of the ERA. More than half the ISTA membership of 38,000 are women.

—that recent State Highway Department opening of bids included that of proposed resurfacing of State Road 1 from the Allen County line north to the junction with State Road 8. However, no bids were below the estimated cost. Presumably, further estimates and bids will be made.

Date Changes

School cancellations during the past four weeks have caused program postponements at the DeKalb eastern elementary schools.

The Riverdale Science Fair has been moved to Thursday, March 10. The Butler fair will be held Tuesday, March 1.

"Positive Attitude Week" at Riverdale has been rescheduled for February 21-25, while the same observance at Butler is now set for February 23 through March 4.

(This article is one of a series recognizing Indiana's heritage as the Indiana General Assembly meets in its 100th session during 1977 and 1978. The material is provided as a public service by the Assembly's Select Committee On the Centennial History of the Indiana General Assembly.)

1827 LAWMAKER SAW NEED TO "BEND" HIS OPINIONS

Throughout the history of the General Assembly, Indiana Legislators have communicated with the people of their home districts through articles or letters printed in local newspapers.

Among the earliest of such communications was one written in 1827 by Samuel Judah of Vincennes, when he was serving his freshman term as a member of the House of Representatives. A large part of the first page of "The Western Sun & General Advertiser" was given over to Representative Judah's letter in its edition of October 20, 1827.

The 29-year-old lawmaker addressed his remarks to the voters of Knox County. The young attorney expressed his philosophy about positions he would take on issues before the General Assembly, indicating many would not be clearcut and would require compromise.

This is the way he put it:

"Here permit me to observe that it is difficult for one member of a legislative body to do much of himself, and if he is a new member, he may, by attempting too much, deprive himself of the power of doing anything.

"By my own fireside I can contemplate many projects, apparently most feasible, of great importance to you, but I well know that in the Legislature a mild, quiet course without the appearance of pretension will enable me to do some good, when I should be entirely disabled by the contrary.

"I now candidly offer you my opinions and my projects, and with an honest zeal I shall labour for your benefit with which my own welfare and prosperity is identified. But during the session you must permit me to bend these opinions and to remould these projects in such manner as will certainly be required of me by that conciliating and compromising course which a regard for myself and my fellow citizens points out."

Apparently the voters of Knox County thought him to be right in the "bending" of his opinions. Between 1827 and 1840, Judah was elected to the House of Representatives six times. He was named Whig Speaker of the House in 1840.

GS Troop 29

Junior Girl Scout Troop 29 of Saint Joe has been invited to participate in the kickoff of the Girl Scouts' annual cookie sale in a broadcast session from the Southtown Mall in Fort Wayne.

The kickoff is this Saturday, February 12, and four members of the local troop will participate in the WOWO broadcast session. from 10 a.m. to noon.

Saturday's event includes the sacking of an assortment of the various types of cookies available and combining them with a serving of milk to sell to mall patrons for 25 cents.

Six troops from the Limberlost Council will participate in the promotion.

Troop 29 was third in DeKalb County last year in the sale of cookies, selling 1,416 boxes.

Because the Spencerville troop is temporarily without an adult leader, Saint Joe adult leader Nancy Garman has combined members of the Spencerville group with hers and now has some 18 young ladies in the troop.

'Letters' Include Objection To Lack Of Investigation Before ERA Vote

Feb. 2, 1977

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

Sorry I didn't get my renewal paid when due but am sending it today.

As old as I am, I have never seen a city tied up by winter before. Believe me I never want to see it again.

We live on quite a busy street but it was far from busy this past weekend. Schools are still closed today but now it is gas shortage that has them closed.

Believe the enclosed check will pay my subscription till Jan. 1, 1978. If I'm mistaken let me know.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. Nancy E. Coburn

Hi Ted,

Thought it is about time to send you some money.

We left St. Joe in 1958, we have a lot of freinds up there, lots of them have passed away.

We still enjoy your paper very much. Also the editorials. I like the way you speak out, the one about not giving Pres. Ford a chance. One thing we stil have is freedom of speech.

We don't know how much we owe you, so if any left, just put it on the next year. Thanks a lot.

You may print this in the paper if you care to.

Thanks.

For those who have paid their subscription in the past several months—yes, you're OK. I just haven't brought them up to date. —Ed.

February 2, 1977

Dear Sir:

Opponents of ERA do not feel that leadership of the Indiana House and Senate allowed full consideration of this controversial issue.

The enclosed letter makes this point with specifics not covered by the press in general. The letter should be of interest to your readers.

Thank you for printing it.
Sincerely yours,
Jean H. Harvey
(Mrs. Dale W. Harvey)
Monticello, Indiana 47960

In our opinion, the ERA matter is similar to the conditions existing when the voting age was lowered from 21 to 18. A majority of the public did not favor it—but it wasn't "nice" to be against it, so Congress passed it.

The passage of ERA in Indiana had too much of a "let's get it overwith" atmosphere, and the press—the "big guys" and not the "little guys"—gave plenty of space to pro-ERA spokesmen. Obviously, some legislators were intimidated into going along with the passage of ERA. And the "butting-in" by the President's wife to influence a state legislator was as unethical as you can get. That is the latest example of incidents which make us laugh at the pious declarations calling for "ethics" coming from the President and the Congress. Unfortunately the "disease" is contagious. Even our Indiana state legislators are concerning themselves with written ethics.

Too bad for everyone that our leadership has forgotten that ethics, like morals, cannot be legislated.

To the Editor:

The vote in the Indiana House and Senate to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment has not settled the many questions that have been raised over the ERA.

Something conclusive could have come out of the ERA battle if the House Human Affairs Committee and the Senate Judiciary Committee had taken the time to weigh the testimony presented to them in the three hours long public hearing on ERA January 4, 1977. In instances of conflicting testimony, the committee chairmen could have called for a study to determine the facts.

For example: Proponents of the amendment were saying that there had been no problems in states that had adopted a similarly worded state ERA. Opponents cited specific instances of problems in these states. An official inquiry could have been made to the states involved that would have cleared up this question.

However, neither the House nor the Senate committee made any attempt to evaluate the testimony. All the leadership was interested in was getting the ERA out of committee and onto the floor for a vote as soon as possible. They realized that as public opposition to ERA mounted, they could lose what earlier was thought to be a sure victory for ERA.

With so many questions unresolved, we do not think that ERA should have been put to a vote this year. It is most regrettable that the motion made in the Senate for an independent study of ERA was defeated. This would have been in the public interest.

As it is many Indiana voters feel cheated. ERA was not an issue in the 1976 elections. Attention was on national politics. Hoosiers learned belatedly that they had voted in state legislators without considering how they stood on ERA.

We believe that Indiana voters would turn ERA down if it were put to them squarely. It is clear that they do not want the "restructuring of society" expected with ERA.

The move to rescind should be pursued.

PositiveAttitude Week Feb.21-25

Riverdale Elementary School will promote "Positive Attitude Weew" February 21-25, according to Principal Charles Ray.

The idea of stressing positive attitudes and respect on the part of the pupils was developed by the Riverdale Student Council, according to Mr. Ray. Members of the student council felt that emphasizing positive attitudes towards others, school work, etc., would be a worthwhile school-wide project.

Spot announcements are now being made over the school intercom as an introduction to "Positive Attitude Week." The announcements will be followed by the appearance of posters throughout the building.

On Monday, February 21, an assembly program will be conducted by the student council to give all the details to the students. A week-long contest will be held to determine which class displays the best positive attitude. This will be broken down into two winners, one for the primary grades and one for the intermediate grades. There will also be one boy and one girl selected from each room as demonstrating the best positive attitude and respect toward themselves, toward others, and toward the school.

Classes and students will be judged by the actions in the classrooms, in the hallways, in the lunchroom, on the playground, etc. Judges will be student council members, teachers and aides.

The week will conclude with an assembly on Friday. Mr. Ray will make the presentations to the class and individual winners at that time.

As a follow-up, there will be a Positive Attitude Day once a month for the remainder of the school year.

The sponsor for the student council is Rex McFarren and he is being assisted in the project by Mrs. Betty Wagner, Mrs. Judy Baker, Mrs. Lori Fox and Mr. Ray.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Mothers' March Brings More $

The Mothers' March for the March of Dimes has been completed. It was held January 15-23 and then extended due to sub-zero temperatures and heavy snow.

Penny Sechler was chairman for the Riverdale area. Her workers collected $155.74 at Saint Joe and $46.67 at Spencerville. It was the first year the local area participated in the march.

Other area receipts were:

Butler $231.81, up $12.50 from 1976; Auburn $1,311.79, down $217.19 from 1976; Garrett $835.54, up $208.16; and Waterloo $250.00, down $50.00.

Mellody Mason, county chairman, said total contributions increased $538.73 over 1976. She commended all the area chairmen, co-chairmen and captains for their cooperation.

The largest contributor in the county is the Auburn Moose Lodge who hold an annual March of Dimes Dance and cake auction. The organization raised $632.86.

The Waterloo contribution is from the Waterloo Civic Organization rather than from door-to-door canvassing, Mrs. Mason said.

Funds raised by the Mothers March have been used to purchase equipment for DeKalb Memorial Hospital's OB ward and the pre-school for handicapped children. Funds are also used to send nurses to Riley Hospital in Indianapolis for extensive training in the care of newborn babies.

60% of the funds raised in the county are sent to the National Foundation for training and research in birth defects as well as administrative costs. The balance is used locally.

Anyone who was missed in the recent campaign and who wishes to contribute may send their donation to The March of Dimes, c-o City National Bank, Van Buren Street, Auburn, Indiana 46706.

Anyone wishing to volunteer their services for March of Dimes work may contact Mrs. Mason at 1202 Mark Drive, Auburn, phone 925-4426, or Mrs. Jean Krontz, 110 E. 16th Street, Auburn, phone 925-0151.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The other evening I had a phone call from Lavon Hart. He said I had gotten him in trouble. He is audio-visual director for the Fort Wayne Community Schools. The trouble: my recent comments about audio-visual material used in the grade schools. Lavon said the material is basically good stuff and that students sometimes exaggerate a bit when telling Mom and Dad about what happened at school.

While I wasn't too happy that I had put out questionable information, I did feel good that this little sheet does get around, what with its contents evidently being made known to the higher ups in the Fort Wayne school system.

Lavon said some other things that I would like to repeat but won't, because it might put him on the spot without his permission. But I will say that those remarks indicate a potential way to bring teachers and the public into an area of greater understanding, if certain steps were taken. His thoughts substantiated my opinion that lack of communication is the primary factor in teacher-public disagreements. Conversations with several teachers in the past couple of years brought that conclusion to my mind—along with a possible way to bring all of us closer together.

It was near the end of Lavon's call before I was aware that he was in the hospital. His back "went out" a couple of weeks ago.

Lavon passed on a chuckle, obviously recognizable by teachers who have had students try to cut corners on book reports—and by students who have tried to cut corners:

"5th grader's book report—
The book: The Bible.
Category: personal development.
Author: God.
Main character: Jesus."

Leo Downs Lady Blazers —But It Was A Successful Season Due To Hard Work, Sacrifices

—By The Editor

Hopes in the minds of fans supporting the "Lady Blazers" of DeKalb Eastside High School for advancement in the state basketball tourney were smashed Saturday afternoon at Northrop High School near Fort Wayne. The gals lost 58-34 to Leo.

The Lions had defeated the locals earlier this year in a regular-schedule game. In Saturday's contest, the Lady Blazers couldn't generate a consistent scoring pattern. And after a 4-all first quarter, Leo began to click and built a 20-8 halftime margin.

Then in the second half Leo couldn't miss, especially in the fourth quarter when they hit a hot streak. Though fouling heavily late in the game the Lionesses ran into no problems. The Lady Blazers hit respectably on their free throws, But their opponent's lead was too much to overcome as Leo matched Blazer free throws with field goals.

But the young misses from Eastside never gave up, especially Connie Oberlin. That gutsy miss played her heart out and time after time was involved in rebounding scrambles which found her ending up on the floor, shook but not hurt, and ready to go at it again. In the closing minutes, knowing her team needed points, she did all she could to get the ball headed toward the basket, even while on the way down to the floor in another tumble.

"Augie" Augustyniak was the mainstay for Leo, though two or three other players helped to dominate the game. Lanky, likeable Sue Miller, whose height and athletic prowess gave Leo that devastating second half punch, seemed to be everywhere beneath the boards when the Blazers tried to get a rebound.

Despite elimination from the state tourney, the Lady Blazers brought honor and distinction to their school with a tremendously successful season overall and a sectional championship.

Credit must be given Coach Bob Brown and "chaperon" Melanie Myers for their patient leadership—and their attire at games, including corsages which added "class" to Eastside's appearance in a time when society's "casual look" often is more accurately described as "sloppy."

Credit goes also to the local school board for providing capable coaching, and to Sue Spangle for stepping down as coach in recognition of her own lack of experience as a coach so that some talented misses would have a greater opportunity for success.

Credit must go, too, to the unsung heroes, the players on the bench who knew they had little prospect of getting in games, but still remained faithful and were there if they were needed.

While there is an over-emphasis on athletics in the public school systems throughout the nation, there is also a need to recognize the lessons to be learned from athletic participation. Those lessons apply also to everyday living. Our Lady Blazers showed that physical size isn't everything. They showed that, even when you appear to be in for a loss, sticking to your guns and keeping "cool" in your own methodical way has a way of turning the tables on adversity (how many times did those gals fall 6, 8, and 10 points behind, only to come back and win?).

FFA-HERO Week

The second week in February was observed as National FHA-HERO Week by the Eastside Future Homemakers of America. It was held in conjunction with Vocational Education Week.

Barb Mumma, Eastside chapter president, said the local group participated with special attention given the bulletin board, help given in shoveling snow during the recent heavy snowfall, and distributing Valentines in area nursing homes.

Future Homemakers was established June 11, 1945. There are two twpes of chapters. FHA chapters place major emphasis on consumer education, homemaking and family life education combined with exploration of jobs and careers.

The HERO chapters for students in home economics related occupations place major emphasis on preparation for jobs and careers with recognition that workers also fill multiple roles as homemakers and community leaders.

Since winter is still with us and snow is still a probability, any elderly residents who would like their sidewalks shoveled free of charge should contact Mrs. Rufner at the high school, 868-2186.

'President's Day'—Selfish Legislation

I have a guilty conscience because there was no editorial comment in last week's issue concerning Abraham Lincoln's birthday and his importance in the history of our country. My remarks were devoted to a current matter, the pay raise for Congress and other governmental officials and workers.

It is usually appropriate to make comments before or on a date of national significance, rather than after. But with a Democrat-controlled Congress having "messed up" several national historic dates and traditional holiday observances in recent years, making those observances fall on Monday to give organized labor a day off with pay (and we wonder what causes inflation!!!), the trend has been to lose sight of the importance of those dates in the history of this nation.

Instead of observing Lincoln's birthday ON his birthday, we now call the Monday holiday "Presidents' Day." That's supposed to give recognition to all who have served as President of the United States. In this change, those who control Congress have led the nation to "de-frock" Lincoln and George Washington as the two most notable Presidents in our history. Instead of making our citizens aware of, or reminding them of, the outstanding qualities of these two patriots, the elected majority leadership, out of a sense of debt to those who bring a lot of votes, have established a pattern which reflects more concern for "days off with pay" than for "days on which to think about our nation's greatest leaders."

No, Lincoln and Washington were not perfect. However, their contributions to this nation and the cause of freedom far outdistance any faults which some modern-day thinking delights in finding concerning the two men. Young people especially are misled if they get the idea that Lincoln and Washington made no mistakes. Young people are similarly misled if they do not grow up having great respect for these men, due to the negative comments they hear. A mistake made far too often in recent years is to dote on the "bad" in people and in the process forget the overriding "good" in evidence.

When the question is asked these days, "What's happening to us?", whether it be of human behavior or mis-behavior, of lack of consistent leadership, of morals, of the breakdown in the family unit, of the loss of religious convictions — when that question is asked, the answer, the ONE answer, which covers all is: "We've thrown out the rules."

If you carefully examine the conflicts and lack of direction in the above matters, and if you are not afraid to face the truth, there is one basic element involved and that element has brought heartaches, heartbreaks, hardships, and many problems. The element is — selfishness.

There is only one explanation for changing national holiday dates to Mondays and that is to get paid for doing nothing.

There is only one explanation for changing rules of behavior and make them "looser" and that is to please one's self.

There is only one reason for saying "We have our own life to live" (leading to day care centers and retirement homes) and that is to give Mom and Dad more time for their own pleasure.

There is only one reason for changing the interpretation of the Bible and discarding traditional practices and that is to give some "church people" (including some clergymen) a clear conscience in doing pretty much as they please.

There is only one reason for backing down on principles as an elected official and that is to attract enough votes the next time for re-election.

Despite the unselfish contribution made by Lincoln and Washington to the establishment and development of our nation, conditions today reflect a sorry mess. Instead of preserving their individual character in our nation's history, American society is listening to the voice of the Devil, reflected in the diversion of national holidays from their traditional dates to Mondays, to create a "long weekend." That weekend is used more for selfish pleasure than for respectful observance of such things as the birthday of Abraham Lincoln and the birthday of George Washington.

I was appalled a couple of years ago when, in a conversation about history, a teacher at Riverdale Elementary School, a teacher whom I consider dedicated, sincere and capable, said: "It was quite a surprise to grow up and go through school thinking of Washington as a great man, then go to college and find out what he REALLY was like."

Perhaps last week's comments on an "automatic" pay raise for Congress and others were not so out-of-place after all. Though neither Lincoln nor Washington were mentioned, those comments unwittingly projected the image and spirit of those two great men into the matter of pay for elected and appointed officials. The unspoken question arises: "Does today's Congress reflect the dedication seen in the lives of Lincoln and Washington?"

I know what my answer is.

Girl Scout Statement Out-of-place

A good illustration of the abuse of privilege is in the recent announcement that the national board of directors of the Girl Scouts of America endorsed the Equal Rights Amendment.

By so doing, that board infringed upon the rights of every member of the Girl Scout organization and every adult leader working with local Scout units.

The wrong people are in control of the Girl Scouts, inasmuch as national leadership had never before made such an endorsement on what was called a "political issue."

Those who are heard the most about "rights" are, time and time again, the first to take advantage of the opportunity to make declarations obligating other people who have had no chance whatsoever to express themselves.

Why couldn't they leave the Girl Scouts alone, why did they inject an issue which is totally out of place in a youth activity? —And right at a time when the Girl Scouts are having their annual cookie sale. This uncalled for announcement jeopardizes Girl Scouts of all ages because there are those who will refuse to buy cookies because of the national board's statement.

A radio news item last week included a statement from a Girl Scout leader (a woman) who burned her uniform in protest to the action of the national committee.

I haven't heard of any local reaction, cutting down on the sale of cookies. But if someone DOES say, "I'm not buying because I don't like the Scouts being dragged into such things as the ERA matter," I can't say that I would blame them. Yes, in a way it would be penalizing the young women in Scouting. But how else can you get a message across sometimes?

The blame lies more correctly on those zealous individuals who get themselves into positions of responsibility in order to establish their will in domination over others.

If you think it's "crazy" to believe that some people are active in youth activities to gain influence to further their ideas (which just happen to involve drastic social changes) remember that someone got into a position of responsibility to have the Boy Scout handbook rewritten. And in the handbook's suggestions for rules for good health was: take a bath every day.

I pointed out that the time that the suggestion was contrary to public welfare because the shortage of water had become a major issue. In addition, the more baths you take, the more electricity or gas you use to provide hot water.

Individual circumstances like type of work, hours worked, determine individual needs. But generally speaking, good health does NOT require a daily bath. Some "know-it-all" forgot that daily bathing is, in fact, a drain on our resources of energy and water. And that's exactly the area we're having trouble in right now, big trouble.

Another development in Scouting has been co-ed Scout activities—that is, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts doing things together, including overnight campouts.

I'm not saying that's what OUR Scout units are doing. I AM saying that's what is now allowed in Scouting. There was at least one article about co-ed campouts in the dailies in the past year.

The national committee for the Girl Scouts stepped 'way out of line in their recent ERA endorsement. However, there is one benefit—the situation serves as a warning to all citizens of the fact that ambitious people will use anyone—even Girl Scouts and the adult leaders—to further their own ideas. They thus violate the very purpose of Scouting—to teach good citizenship.

And just like pilots who have been flying for years, power plant operators must keep on learning and training so they can continue to perform quickly and efficiently in any emergency.

That's why we have a control room simulator in our power plant training center that works much like a pilot's flight simulator.

It helps our people sharpen their skills by simulating totally realistic equipment failures that, if not handled quickly, could wind up being power failures.

Why do we go to this extreme?

Engineers, technicians, power plant personnel, line crews, dispatchers, computer experts, people who man the consoles at the control centers. . .everybody plays a critical role in making sure the power keeps flowing to our homes and factories.

But, while we're doing everything we can to maintain dependable service and electric supply, there's one thing we can't do.

Make sure none of that electricity we make is wasted.

That's your job.

Turning off unused lights and appliances, making sure refrigerator and freezer doors aren't left open, and washing only full loads of clothes and dishes will not only conserve electricity, it can help you keep your bills in line.

Working together. It's the best way we know to see that you continue to get the power you need, when you need it. And the most out of it when you get it.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

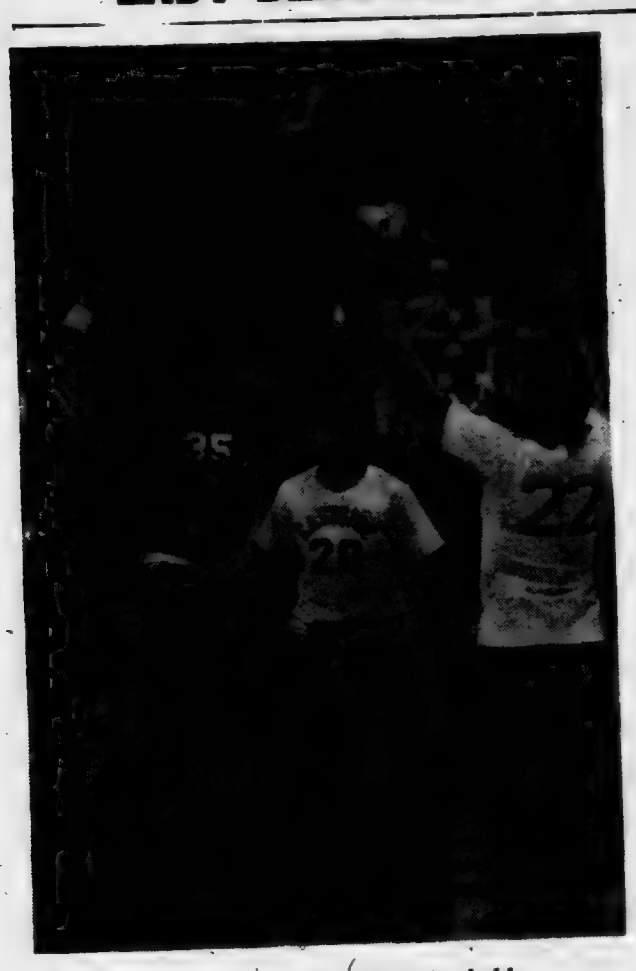
LADY BLAZERS SHOWN IN ACTION AT REGIONAL AGAINST LEO LIONESSES



In the regional tourney held at Northrop High School at Fort Wayne two weeks ago, a scramble for the ball at midcourt brought what might be called "the long and short of it," what with diminutive Blazer defensive ace MaryJo Baughman (20) finding herself in a jump-ball situation against Leo's Sue Miller (35). Number 22 is Connie Oberlin who was a unanimous choice by ACAC coaches for the all-conference team. She was also a "Prep of the Week."

In the action below, Lisa Johnson (10), the Lady Blazers' leading scorer for the season, is shown as she drove toward the basket for a layup shot. Lisa was another unanimous choice for ACAC all-conference and is the first girl athlete ever to be named "Prep of the Week" by the Auburn Evening Star.

Troop 29 Members Helped To Get Cookie Sale Started

When the annual Girl Scout cookie Sale got under way recently, local Junior Troop 29 assisted Carol Ford of WOWO radio in "Carol Ford's Cookie Cupboard" at Southtown Mall in Fort Wayne.

The troop, made up of girls from Saint Joe and Spencerville, sold $473.86 worth of sample packs of cookies plus boxed assortments. Six troops from six counties representing the Limberlost Council sold 1,109 sample packs.

National Scouting Trend Disturbing

The reference I made here last week to the statement by the national committee of Girl Scouts of America is not alone in its opposition to the statement which endorsed the Equal Rights Amendment.

Pamela Daub expressed her disagreement in the Auburn Evening Star on February 11. Evidently other objections were made because on February 15, Freddie Frank, president of the local Limberlost Council, sent a statement to all registered Limberlost Council adults. The purpose was to try to "clarify" the action of the national group and Limberlost Council pertaining to ERA.

Mr. Frank's remarks include that the national committee statement "does not preclude councils, girls, and adults from acting on their own individual opinions."

I think Mr. Frank has things a bit mixed up. The question is not "Do young women and adult leaders give up their individual rights in joining Girl Scouts?" No such demand or suggestion has ever come up, the answer is so obvious. Scout participants are never prevented ("precluded") from practicing their individual rights and liberties. The question is: WHAT RIGHT DOES THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE HAVE TO MAKE ANY STATEMENT OBLIGATING THE GIRL SCOUTS ON ANY MATTER PERTAINING TO PUBLIC OPINION?

To illustrate how little is actually known about the commitments of the Girl Scouts, consider the following, taken from Mr. Frank's letter and identified as taken "from the minutes of January 12th board meeting of Limberlost Girl Scout Council":

"Be it resolved that Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. will participate in these aspects of the National Women's Agenda and the activities of other coalitions concerned with the foregoing objectives and will continue its support of the National Women's Conference, mandated by Public Law 94-167, which will be organized by the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year and preceded by 56 state and territorial meetings, and will disseminate regular reports to its councils on the issues and strategies with which each is dealing.

"Be it further resolved that a program be developed in acceptance with the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. Educational Guidelines to encourage local councils to engage in REFLECTION AND DISCUSSION ON THE PROS AND CONS OF THE AMENDMENT FOR EQUAL RIGHTS and other topics contained in the World Plan of Action as a means to help girls to form independent opinions."

Mr. Frank ends the memorandum with:

"No further action is anticipated or planned."

I don't know—maybe I'm "over-interpreting" the situation. But every time I read the above "explanation" of the national committee's statement and the resolution from the Limberlost Council's minutes, it scares the hell out of me because of the wording ". . . . reports on issues and STRATEGIES . . . ."

Pardon the language, girls, but I think you're being "used"—and there is another matter to add to the suspicion in my mind. It is this:

Tuesday of this week the national office of Boy Scouts of America announced it was changing the name to "Scouting - U.S.A." the reason: the word "boy" is objectionable to minorities and because young women are enrolled in the coed Exploring Program.

The group's legal name will remain "Boy Scouts of America" but everyday useage will be "Scouting - U.S.A."

What is interesting to note is that Girl Scouts of America doesn't like the change and expressed opposition to the change when the change was approved last year. Their objection: the term "Scouting - U.S.A." might lead backers to think that a donation to the Scouting - U.S.A. is a donation also to the Girl Scouts.

The entire situation is ridiculous, and contrary to the purpose of Scouting.

Those in positions of leadership of the Girl Scouts at the national level on the one hand promote ERA (which in essence is promoting the elimination of supposedly prejudiced words like "man" and "woman"), and on the other hand object to the elimination of the word "Boy" because it might hurt Girl Scout financing.

In my opinion, such activities indicate a frightening trend in American society—a trend away from tradition, distinction and healthy differences and toward constant change, loss of identity, and uninteresting "sameness."

However, the most disturbing factor is that a handful of people take it upon themselves to make official statements of policy without regard for the opinions of other participants. Girl Scouts of America's national committee had no right to inject the Equal Rights Amendment into its program in any way, nor did the Limberlost Council. And Boy Scouts of America's national organization had no reason to change its name because "boy" is "offensive" to some people.

The reason given for changing to "Scouting - U.S.A." —that it is offensive to some minorities to use the word "boy"—is the product of a simple mind. The reason is so far-fetched as to suggest that national leadership in the Boy Scouts has a serious deficiency in basic education and the true meaning of basic words in our language.

Subversive elements are apparent more and more in today's American society. These elements are subtly brainwashing our kids and taking advantage of the trust dedicated local adult leaders have had in the past in the national leadership of worthwhile programs such as Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Parents of Scouts and community Scout leaders ought to take a long, hard look at what is happening to Scouting. "Coed" (boy-and-girl) Scouting programs are an absolute "no-no" in my book.

Personally, as matters now stand, I wouldn't want my offspring participating in Scouting because of NATIONAL and AREA COUNCIL actions. These actions do not reflect traditional high standards of Scouting.

Group Finds Hope For Highway

A group from this area conferred this week with Roger Marsh, State Highway Commissioner, concerning improvements on State Road 1 north of State Road 8. The hilly highway is used extensively by DeKalb eastern school buses.

In the group were county GOP chairman Bob Wilder, School Superintendent Kenneth Cole, former county commissioner Frank Laub, Sheriff John Graham, State Representative Norman Gerig, school board member Norman Kinsey, bill Rosenberry, Jim Dwyer and Bill Mickelson.

While no commitments could be made by Mr. Marsh, the group gained the impression that prospects for improvement of the highway are good.

Lady Blazer Stats Given For Season

With a season record of 17 wins and 4 losses, the locals totaled 1,002 points for an average per game of 48.0. Their opponents scored 781 points for a 37.0 average. Team turnovers per game averaged 11.0.

Team accomplishments were: Sectional Champions, ACAC Co-Champions; 2nd place ACAC Tourney, 2nd place DeKalb Central Holiday Tourney.

Individual achievements include:

Connie Oberlin— unanimously picked for ACAC All-Conference team; Auburn Evening Star "Prep of the Week"; team captain.

Lisa Johnson—unanimously picked for ACAC All-Conference team; first girl athlete ever to be picked as Auburn Evening Start "Prep of the Week"; team captain.

Amy Hampel—honorable mention for ACAC All-Conference team; "Prep of the Week" for sectional play.

Not on Coach Brown's sheet of statistics, but he has the figures (no pun intended), are the defensive accomplishments of the team. Their opponents were held to a minimum of chances at the free throw line. On at least two occasions their opponents didn't shoot a single free throw in the entire ball game.

Minute MaryJo Baughman was the backbone of Eastside's defense. Super Sunda Obendorf divided her talents between offense and defense to balance the team's overall pattern of play, styled by Coach Brown to compensate for opponents' consistent height advantage.

The Lady Blazers closed their season last Thursday in a game previously cancelled due to heavy snow. They defeated the Adams Central Jets 57-23 to gain a tie for first place in the ACAC standings.

The tie will stand if Leo, with a 5-1 record, wins a makeup game which will not be played until after the IHSAA tournament. The Blazers are 6-1, and it would seem a safe guess to say Leo will win their remaining game. But maybe . . . .

In last Thursday's game, it was 9-6 Eastside after one quarter. The young ladies then ripped the net for 26 points in the second period and had a commanding 35-9 halftime lead. The Lady Blazers then outscored Adams Central 10-4 and 12-10 in the last two quarters for the win.

Johnson, Oberlin and Hampel led scoring for Eastside. Lithe Lisa had 9 fielders and 4 free throws for 22 points, Curvy Connie had 6 fielders and a half dozen free throws for 18, and Adorable Amy had 5 fielders for 10 points.

Butget Cuts, Textbook Appointments, Resignations Head Board Meeting

At Monday night's school board meeting, Superintendent Kenneth Cole presented seven recommendations for budget cuts "over and above the individual grade level, building, and departmental working budget cuts already recommended."

With operating costs constantly on the increase, with inflation resulting in less and less return for the school dollar, and with another salary negotiation session about to begin, economizing has become an absolute necessity in the school budget.

The superintendent's recommendations are as follows:

1. At the elementary school level drop the Riverdale Elementary music teacher and assign Judy Washler to both schools.

2. At the elementary level place one of the two Butler Kindergarten teachers elsewhere, and replace the kindergarten teacher with a carefully selected aide.

3. At the junior-senior high school level charge students taking driver education $30.00 each for the course.

4. At the junior-senior high school level drop the reading teacher and the whole reading budget.

5. In the school district at all levels K-12 cut all professional leave at least half and consider as much as a three-quarters cut in professional leave.

6. Strongly consider not replacing the retiring counselor at the junior-senior high school, Iva Scheuring.

7. Since neither elementary school has a "Teachers' Clerk," the school board may want to consider dropping the position of Teachers' Clerk at the junior-senior high school, and let the teachers do their own clerical work.

The school board adopted the recommendations Monday night with the stipulation that after all negotiations are settled, the board may elect to re-examine its position.

A "state of the school" report from Principal Robert Williams included his statement that discipline and attendance by students were greatly improved.

He also indicated that there is a "lack of esprit de corps" among some of the faculty and he thought it is a carryover from the strife caused by the teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities last fall.

A letter was read from Ball State University indicating that Eastside graduates Cheryl Kandel, Darlene Wolf and Roger Miller had tested into advanced level college courses, thus obtaining college credit for their high school foreign language efforts.

The school textbook adoption committee members were announced at the meeting this week. They include:

Letters of resignation were accepted from Annacarol Lampe, high school English, speech and drama teacher, and teacher-coach Allan Peugeot.

Bloodmobile To Be HereMarch 11

Delores Hicov, local coordinator for the appearance of the Red Cross Bloodmobile in the Riverdale area, has announced that the unit will be at the Riverdale Cafetorium Friday, March 11, from 1 to 6 p.m.

Once again blood is urgently needed and local donors are asked to mark the date on the calendar.

Appointments make it easier to process donors and more convenient for the donors themselves, Mrs. Hicov noted. When a card is reecived, the donor is asked to make an appointment, if at all possible..

Last year Riverdale met its quota of 100 pints for the first time. There were 102 donors in 1976. Last year's success was due in part to the efforts of Emma Frank and Connie Hollabaugh in getting blood donors at the local Vulcraft plant. It was Vulcraft workers and teenagers who put Riverdale "over the top" last year.

Once again—the Bloodmobile—at Riverdale—Friday, March 11—1 to 6 p.m.

Girl Scout Leaders Disagree With National Committee; Object To 'Politics' In ERA Statement Made By That Committee

Rational Procedure By Local Leaders Serves As Lesson In 'Good Citizenship'

—By The Editor

Seven adult leaders of local Girl Scout units issued a statement this week in an open letter presented to The Saint Joe News. It pertains to the recent action by the National Girl Scout organization supporting the Equal Rights Amendment.

The open letter is as follows:

"An Open Letter to the Parents of all Girl Scouts:

"As local Registered Adult Girl Scout Leaders, we do not approve of the National Board of Directors speaking out on political issues. The current issue will not effect the quality of the local troops. Our program will continue as in the past. We encourage all parents to continue allowing their girls to attend as usual. Steps are being taken at this time to present our view to the National Board of Directors. We feel that by working through the internal system open to us as Registered Adults, we will accomplish more than by simply dropping out or protesting publicly.

"Perhaps it should be pointed out that The Boy Scouts of America and The Girl Scouts of America are two entirely separate and individual organizations. Co-ed Scouting, to our knowledge, is only practiced in the Explorer Posts of Boy Scouting.

Sincerely,

The Local Girl Scout Adults (signed)

Nancy Garman, Jr. Troop Leader

Cheryll Hollabaugh, Asst. Brownie Leader

Sharon Baker, Troop Committee

Pat Osmun, Cadette Troop Leader, Asst. Jr. Leader, Br. & Jr. Consultant

Judy Tejan, Brownie Troop Leader, Troop Organizer

Allen R. Osmun, Asst. Cadette Leader

Debbie Heffelfinger, Asst. Cadette Leader"

The issuance of the above open letter follows editorial comments made in this paper last week expressing disagreement with the national committee's action, and concern about the manner in which Girl Scouts and local adult leaders are being "used." The national committee stated its support of the ERA without contacting adult leaders in the total organization. By this method, the committee obligated the entire organization in a matter which is considered to be "political," as stated by local Girl Scout leaders above, or "social" as it would probably be considered by many of today's would-be "reformers."

A similar situation exists in the Boy Scout program wherein a change has been made from "Boy Scouts of America" to "Scouting - U.S.A." Reasons given for the change include: the word "boy" is old-fashioned, the word "boy" is offensive to some members of the organization, and young women are involved with boys in the Explorer program (a Scout activity of older youth).

It should be noted that, to the credit of the seven adult leaders who have made a public statement, they intend to use methods of communication within the Girl Scout organization to bring their disagreement to the attention of higher-ups. This is a commendable way to do it and serves as an example for local Girl Scouts of the proper and reasonable manner in which to seek correction of an undesirable situation. Though the above open letter is a form of public protest, it also serves as notice to the public of the intent of the local adult leaders to function within the Girl Scout organization.

Thus, in a moment of conflict, when it may seem unfortunate to have a controversy within Scouting, that controversy and the manner in which our own local leaders are dealing with it becomes AN OPPORTUNITY TO TEACH GOOD CITIZENSHIP. It serves to illustrate that something "good" can be made of something "bad."

The young ladies in our local Girl Scout units are fortunate to have the above adult leaders who are making the proper and reasonable moves as responsible American citizens.

It should be remembered, however, that should their efforts fail to bring a more responsible attitude toward individual troops and leaders by the national organization, then resignations and/or public protests become reasonable actions in upholding basic principles and beliefs.....but only after primary channels within the organization have been exhausted and no results forthcoming. Because, in this instance, the national organization violated the confidence and trust Americans have had in Scouting leadership by going beyond the area in which it properly should function, thus dragging young people into a controversy with which they should not be confronted.

Blazers Win Sectional Opener 59-56

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers won the opener of the DeKalb sectional tourney, defeating Hamilton 59-56.

It took a come-from-behind effort Wednesday night to bring the win. Hamilton held a 56-53 lead with 1:38 left in the game. Then a foul on a Hamilton player brought too strong a reaction to suit the officals, and a technical foul was also called. Dave Kandel sank three free throws as a result, Chris Sipe got 2 free throws thereafter and Kandel hit on another one with just 5 seconds to go.

The Blazers jumped to a 9-0 lead in the first period near the halfway mark before Hamilton got on the board. The Marines trailed by only 15-13 at the end of the first quarter.

The Blazers opened the second quarter with a spurt of 6 points to take a 21-13 lead. At that point, all Blazers in the game had scored. Hamilton then closed the gap and took a 31-28 halftime lead.

The Blazers outscored Hamilton 16-12 in the third quarter to get a 44-43 lead at the end of three periods. The locals then hung on in the final quarter, scoring 15 points, including the vital free throws in the closing seconds. Hamilton scored 13 in the last period.

Kandel and Sipe hit 7 fielders each, with the former also getting 15 points on free throws for a game total of 29. Sipe had 2 free throws to make his total 16 points.

In addition to working a full-time daytime job, Larry has many of his evenings devoted to presentation of programs for youth, acquainting the youngsters with his reptile world.

Pierce Put In Max'm Security

An item in the Auburn Evening Star of February 25 indicates that Kenneth Pierce has been transferred from the civil division to the maximum security division of Norman Beatty Hospital. The information was received by Judge Harold Stump of the DeKalb Circuit Court for inclusion in Pierce's court record.

Recent reports of weekend passses granted to Pierce resulted in efforts by Judge Stump, county prosecutor H. Charles Winans, and others to find out how the matter was being handled. No response from Norman Beatty Hospital then brought appeals to Governor Otis Bowen to investigate. He did, and then directed hospital authorities to notify the commissioner of the State Mental Health Department of any decicions under consideration concerning temporary or permanent release of Pierce.

Pierce was sent to Norman Beatty as the result of the murder of Brenda Mathes in 1973. He was found not guilty by reason of insanity. Testimony at his trial by one psychiatrist included the opinion that the accused man would require long confinement and might not ever be capable of re-entering society. But within two years, reports came to Kenneth Mathes, husband of the victim, that Pierce was getting weekend passes.

While the superintendent at Norman Beatty Hospital never stated directly that Pierce was getting weekend passes, he did state in a letter than passes were no longer being granted.

In the recent transfer from the civil division to maximum security, no reason was given for the transfer. Pierce reportedly signed a statement agreeing to the transfer, thus waiving patient rights to have an administrative hearing on the transfer.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

When you hear how bad it has been in other places you feel thankful that it isn't any worse in Indiana.

My sister wrote from Niagara Falls, N.Y. that they had 180 inches of snow since in Nov. Her daughter went to a Country Club card game on a Friday and didn't get home till Sunday afternoon when she walked to an Emergency Station and had a jeep take them home.

I'm still glad that I live in Indiana!

Yours truly,
Mrs. Nancy E. Coburn

That must have been some card game!. —Ed.

Dear Ted,

I have been getting back issues of the newspaper through my mother and I have been wanting to subscribe to the paper but after scanning every inch of the January 27 and February 23 issues I can not find a subscription rate. It may be there but I sure can't find it. So anyway, enclosed is a check for $10 for a subscription of whatever length that will buy.

I really enjoy reading about my old home town. You were not alone in fighting the bad weather. We live on state road 19, about 800 feet south of the Nappanee city limits and there was a 24 hour period when we could not get through the 800 feet by car. The only vehicles which did get through were 4 wheel drive vehicles and snowmobiles. So after suffering through this winter of '77 I have resolved to purchase a 4 wheel drive truck by the winter of '78. Next year I will be ready!!

Yours,
Merle R. Holden

According to the letterhead, Merle (a 1964 graduate of DeKalb Eastside High School and a former student sportswriter for The News) is a representative of the Horace Mann insurance group. His sales have qualified him for "Millionaires Club Individual Life," "Millionaire Club Annuity" and "$100,000 Club Group." —Ed.

Dear Sir:

I'm sorry to always be late on paying for my paper.

I always depended on Paul to take care of this as he enjoyed talking with you.

We (Jean and I) are like Paul, we enjoy the paper and the way you tell it like it is.

Sincerely
Mrs. Paul Coplin

United States Senate
Dear Ted February 23, 1977

Thank you for communicating to me your opposition to the pay increase for various government officials.

The entire problem of individuals acting on their own pay increase is especially regrettable. In my opinion, it is essential that methods be established to resolve government employee pay levels without the involvement of the affected employees. The best solution available presently is to seek recommendations from "blue-ribbon" panels of private citizens, such as the Peterson Commission, which proposed the salary increases which recently took effect. The increase was submitted to Congress by former President Ford, and has been endorsed by President Carter.

The Peterson Commission recommendations did not come to a vote in the Senate. After listening to all of the arguments, I had reached a tentative decision not to oppose the Commission report if a vote did occur. The increase will not close the gap between government salaries and those in the private sector, nor will it cover losses caused by inflation during the past eight years in which these salaries have remained almost unchanged.

In a free market economic system in which government must compete with private enterprise for the services of talented individuals, taxpayers should demand performance commensurate with the salaries received. I regret deeply that you were dissatisfied with the work of the Peterson Commission and with the final result in this matter, but I am grateful for this opportunity to review my own views with you.

I am hopeful for your ongoing support and trust in future decisions.

Best regards.
Sincerely,
Dick Lugar

Our letter, sent February 8, was as follows:
"Dear Senator:

As one of your most enthusiastic supporters in the November election, I am dumbfounded at your recent vote to table an amendment which would apparently have stopped the pay raise for governmental and judicial officials, including the Congress.

Truly representative Republicans campaigned in part on the 'big spending' tactics of Democrat leadership. Now it appears that ethics have gone out the window even for some Republicans in Congress in that they are willing to be part of voting themselves a pay raise by not voting! The 'automatic' system begun in 1967 is totally unfair to the public and totally selfish for Congress.

The biggest part of the disappointment is that our elected representatives, the majority, that is, overlooked the most important question related to the matter. That question: what does THE PUBLIC think about it? —Ed.

St. Joe News March 3, 1977

As our life changes, so does the way we use electricity.

A lot of people believe that higher electric bills are caused by higher electric rates.

In part, that's true.

But a big reason many electric bills are up is because the amount of electricity we use is up.

Today, for instance, an average family uses about four times more electricity than in 1950. And for a lot more things.

In 1950, most of the electricity used in the home was for lighting, cooking, refrigeration and washing clothes.

Now, less than half a family's electricity is used for that. Instead, more than 50% is used for air conditioning, color TV, dishwashing, clothes drying and hundreds of other electrical conveniences you wouldn't want to be without.

Unfortunately, inflation has drastically increased the cost of supplying the electricity needed to meet this steady growth in demand.

And with new families continuing to join the ranks of our customers every day, the demand is going to keep on growing.

So, keeping the power coming, and finding ways to keep its costs down, is getting tougher every day.

But, while we continue to do everything we can to hold down our costs as we keep up with this growth, there are some things you can do to help keep your costs in line, too.

Use the appliances you have more efficiently. Make sure your home is properly insulated. And, when it comes time to buy new appliances and systems, look into energy savers like the heat pump.

If everyone makes an effort to do just a few of these things, we'll have a brand new source of energy to rely on.

Bloodmobile To Be HereMarch 11

Delores Hicov, local coordinator for the appearance of the Red Cross Bloodmobile in the Riverdale area, has announced that the unit will be at the Riverdale Cafetorium Friday, March 11, from 1 to 6 p.m.

Last year Riverdale met its quota of 100 pints for the first time. There were 102 donors in 1976. Last year's success was due in part to the efforts of Emma Frank and Connie Hollabaugh in getting blood donors at the local Vulcraft plant. It was Vulcraft workers and teenagers who put Riverdale "over the top" last year.

Once again—the Bloodmobile —at Riverdale—Friday, March 11—1 to 6 p.m.

'Yankee Doodle' March 11-12-13

The DeKalb Eastside Junior-Senior High School Cafetorium in Butler will be the site for the presentation of "Yankee Doodle" Friday, March 11, and Saturday, March 12, at 8 p.m. A Sunday, March 13, performance will begin at 2 p.m.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

"Gentlemen's Evening" of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser February 16.

The meeting was called to order and the president welcomed the guests.

Mrs. Yeiser introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Harriett Oberlin. She told of her experiences in Alaska and her desire to visit Australia to get opals to replace her mother's ring. She was very interesting in telling of her joys and trials.

Afterwards delightful refreshments were served by the committee including Mrs. Yeiser and Mrs. Forrest Bevington.

The collect and pledge were given in unison.

Mrs. Bevington gave a book review of "There's a Rhino In the Rose Bed, Mother," by Betty and Jack Leslie-Melville. It was a delightful story of events in their life in America and on safaris in Africa.

For entertainment Mrs. Yeiser conducted a contest.

County Convention will be held at St. Mark Lutheran Church at Saint Joe March 21 at 12:30 p.m.

Mrs. Baker gave critic's report. Mrs. Perkins mentioned Lela Northrup had a birthday March 2. Mrs. Bevington said the Bloodmobile would be at Riverdale School March 11.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

EHS Baseball Team Sponsors Car Wash-Wax For Homerun Fence

The DeKalb Eastside Varsity baseball team will conduct its third annual car wash and wax March 22 and 29 from 5 to 9 p. m., and March 26 and April 2 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The project also includes cleaning and vacuuming the interior and trunk of each car. Normally, such work costs $40 or more at a commercial establishment. The local baseballers will charge only $15.00 The work is guaranteed. If the car owner is not satisfied with the work, the car will be redone without additional charge.

The ambitious young men are doing the wash and hand wax of cars to raise money for financing the purchase of fence to complete the home run barrier at the Eastside ball diamond. At present only a portion of the field has such an enclosure.

All cars will be done on an appointment basis. Persons will be contacted as to the exact time. Transportation of cars by adults can also be arranged.

Car owners in the area are asked to be ready to make a reservation when contacted. If they are not contacted, they are asked to call the coach or get in touch with one of the players.

In the Riverdale area, baseball players who can be contacted are Mark Haberkorn and Lane Hart (Saint Joe), and Brent Resor and Gary Rinard (Spencerville).

Blazers Downed In Sectional Final

The DeKalb Central Barons took advantage of a third period scoring famine on the part of the DeKalb Eastside Blazers Saturday night and won the championship game of the basketball sectional at DeKalb Central. The score was 79-58.

The Barons' rebounding advantage was a big factor in the game, although the Blazers did keep up through the first two periods as far as scoring was concerned. They trailed 18-16 at the end of the first quarter and 36-31 at the half.

Then came the downfall. The Barons got 15 to the Blazers' 5 in the third period and edged farther ahead in the final period, scoring 28 while Eastside hit for 22.

Dave Kandel was held to only 9 points but still was the tourney high scorer. Rick Richmond had been held down in an earlier game. But against the Barons he got 21 points.

The Blazers won their way into the championship game by defeating Prairie Heights 67-57 Friday night. Kandel scored 27 points and Chris Sipe 18 including a string of 10 straight at the end of the third quarter.

But the spark plug was Ed Moughler, brought up from the reserve squad and inserted in the lineup for Randy Cook who had an ankle injury. He had only 5 points, but 3 of them were clutch free throws. In addition, he had four defensive rebounds and three steals in the final quarter—and that's where the story was told. Prairie Heights scored only 8 points in the final period while the Blazers put in 20.

Kandel has been named to the ACAC All-Conference team by vote of conference coaches. An honorable mention was given to Sipe.

Rapping With Youth About..... How TV Maligned Sen. McCarthy

While watching a recent TV program about the late Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin entitled, "Tail-Gunner Joe," one of our boys asked, "Was he as bad as they make him out to be?"

My answer was something like, "Well, there were times during those committee hearings held about Communist in filtration in our government that it appeared he was more insistent than was necessary, to the point of perhaps being unfair. But in the early '50's there WAS public concern about Communistic influences in our government; McCarthy wasn't the only one concerned about it. And there WAS the belief in the minds of many people that McCarthy was on the right track. At that time, Pete Walters had the grocery across the street and he also had TV and appliances. Big-screen TV was just coming in, and Pete invited the public to see them in operation at the store. I watched some of the McCarthy hearings at the store, and there were times when it became a waste of time to watch. But my recollection of the times is that there wasn't a feeling in the general public that reflected the question, 'How did such a man ever get into public office?' "

In a later conversation with one or more of the boys, I noted that some of those who are writing about the 1950's weren't even born yet, or were just kids. What they are saying now, including the idea that Joe McCarthy was "bad," comes not from their own experience but from what they have heard from certain sources. I said, "Look at what they've done to J. Edgar Hoover the past few years." By coincidence, the late Mr. Hoover was also warning about subversive elements in American society while he was director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

With the above background a paragraph in the February 19, 1977, issue of "Human Events," a Washington, D.C., publication, seems very significant. It reads:

"Prof. Richard M. Fried of the University of Chicago, author of an anti-McCarthy book, agrees that the TV presentation was lopsided. 'There were some exaggerations, some splicing of scenes out of context, and some resort to fiction. The emphasis on booze was excessive and often irrelevant. The scene in which a McCarthy staffer made an anti-Semetic remark has no apparent basis in fact. (Nor was it noted that Roy Cohn and David Schine were Jews—McCarthy's was an ecumenical staff.) The scene near the end showing McCarthy on a violent rampage in the hospital was a cheap shot. Coverage of McCarthy's early years follows the hostile journalism of the day; a 1952 book by Jack Anderson and Ronald W. May was heavily exploited as a source."

In addition to the above quotation, there are many columns in the papers the past three weeks about NBC's presentation of "Tailgunner Joe" wherein nationally-known syndicated writers have consistently criticized the manner in which the "story" of Joe McCarthy was presented. Left out of the TV presentation were facts related to former Communist Party members or sympathizers then in positions of great influence.

One man in particular refused years ago to answer questions about his connection with the Communist Party. The columnist who reported the incident noted that Senator McCarthy, a man seeking to root out subversive elements in the United States and the State Department, is held in low esteem today, due to such things as the NBC presentation.

But the man who refused to answer questions about his background was recently named chairman of the California state Democrat organization. No, that writer wasn't saying, "California Democrats are Communists." He was pointing out the irony in the condemnation of one individual and the honor bestowed upon another individual, that irony related to the efforts to preserve individual liberty.

So, young people, if you took in "Tailgunner Joe" when it was on TV, don't be "taken in" by the message it gave. The presentation was distorted and one-sided. Most columnists have referred to the matter as an illustration of how some people in our midst are "re-writing history."

If you, as a young citizen, are really interested in knowing more about what is happening today, read the syndicated columnists appearing in both the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel and the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. That's the only way you are going to get "both sides" on a day to day basis.

The Evil Of Collective Bargaining

There hasn't been too much in the headlines—yet—about legislation to satisfy the Indiana State Teachers Association's quest for "open scope" bargaining in teacher-school board negotiating sessions.

Collective bargaining is already a fact. Plus — the ISTA wants to get virtually everything subject to negotiation, a seemingly natural follow-up to achieving collective bargaining and binding arbitration.

Also sought by the ISTA is the power and authority to serve as the bargaining agent for non-certificated school personnel—that is, the maintenance staff, the cafeteria workers, the office clerical staff—maybe even the bus drivers. Whether those people have asked for it or not, the ISTA (and its subdivisions such as the National Education Association and UniServ) are attempting to be the "voice" for those in school work other than teachers.

It's wrong. And an illustration of how bad off things are under collective bargaining was illustrated in a recent column by James L. Kilpatrick in "The Washington Star" of December 21, 1976.

The story concerns a meeting in December of 1971 in Madison, Wisconsin, a public school board meeting. At the meeting a two and one-half minute presentation was made by a non-union teacher, speaking for some 400 teachers in his district, who were opposing teacher-union demands that non-union teachers pay the union the same fees and dues they would pay if they belonged to the union—their "fair share" of the cost of collective bargaining. The non-union teachers did not want to be represented by the union.

But before the non-union teacher representative made his speech, the union president spoke at length. Then the union's business manager attempted to talk the non-union teacher out of saying anything.

To continue, quoting from Mr. Kilpatrick's column:

"Incredibly, the union later filed a complaint with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission charging the Board of Education with an unfair labor practice by permitting Holmquist to speak. What is even more incredible is that this ludicrous complaint WAS UPHELD (our emphasis—Ed) by the commission. It found the board guilty; and the finding was affirmed by the Supreme Court of Wisconsin.

"The tale has a happy ending. Two weeks ago the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously reversed the Wisconsin decision. In a stinging opinion by Chief Justice Burger, the court held that 'to permit one side of a debatable public question to have a monopoly in expressing its views to the government is the antithesis of constitutional guarantees.' Non-union teachers, the court ruled, still have their First Amendment right of free speech."

While the story has a "happy ending," it relates only to Madison, Wisconsin, AND it took legal action (which means paying legal expenses) to get the matter resolved.

Perhaps the U.S. Supreme Court decision has established a precedent and such union efforts to "take over" for those who don't want to be "took over" are now stopped.

But I wouldn't count on it. Right here in our own DeKalb eastern district, I have been told by more than one non-teacher that the ISTA through the local UniServ office has planned to become the bargaining agent for non-teachers, whether they like it or not.

As Mr. Kilpatrick points out in his column, when public employees unionize and their power to negotiate includes the power to strike, "the concept of government by the people is imperiled. At such a point—and the point may not be far down the road—public servants cease to be servants. They become our masters instead."

The National Right To Work Committee is currently working feverishly to cope with the looming passage of common situs picketing (one union having problems with a contractor can completely stop all work on a project involving other unions who have no grievance).

President Jimmy Carter has stated he would sign such legislation and George Meany is pushing hard to get it through.

The effect would be that, despite the opposition of the vast majority of the public to forced union membership, a minority group (the powerful union leaders) would have control over the working force of America.

What to do? Write your Congressmen AND the President; tell them you oppose compulsory union membership as a condition of employment.

Unfortunately, the Indiana State Legislature a few years ago tossed out the state's "right to work" laws. Now organized labor seeks FEDERAL legislation to compel those states still protecting workers' rights to knuckle under to union power.

Random Thoughts From Headlines

Headline: "Tax Increase Stopped By Political Pressure."

The story: a $1 billion increase in Social Security taxes next year has been dropped because HEW Secretary Joseph Califano called committee chairman Russell Long and said the administration doesn't want any Social Security tax increase.

Thought: how can the matter be treated so lightly when now even those WITHIN the Social Security system are warning about collapse of the system. Social Security is now committed to TRILLIONS of dollars in liabilities in future years. It is estimated that our children and grandchildren face Social Security taxes of 25% under current projected obligations.

Story: Tax shelters and other provisions allowed 162 persons who earned $200,000 or more in 1975 to escape paying any income taxes.

Thought: why didn't the headline read, "Less Than 1% Of All Taxpayers Went Tax-Free in 1975"? That information was also contained in the UPI story. And if tax loopholes are so bad, and if Democrats are going to continue to use tax loopholes and "the filthy rich" in association with Republicans, why haven't they plugged the loopholes long ago; they've had control of Congress for 41 of the last 45 years.

Headline: "House Sets Tough Ethics Code."

Story: to improve the image of Congress, the House voted to set outside income limitations on its members, theorizing that income from other sources has a tendency to create "conflicts" of interests."

Thought: if you set a limitation on outside income, doesn't that make the member of Congress more dependent on Congressional pay, thus opening the door to more Congressional pay increases and allowances PAID FOR BY TAXPAYERS?

ETHICS CANNOT BE LEGISLATED. Some has it, some don't.

Headline: "Capitol Feud."

Story: the House Assassinations Committee chairman said he would resign because of the actions of chief counsel of the committee. The counsel was called a "scoundrel" among other things by the chairman. Why? Because the counsel requested something like $14 MILLION to carry on the legal investigations of the Martin Luther King and Kennedy brothers assassinations.

Thought: what responsibility does the House or the Senate have to investigate what has already been investigated? Such investigations are police matters. Why not ask the FBI to re-enter the case? And if there are any guffaws at that last suggestion, it shows how effective has been the effort to discredit J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI as a whole, and law enforcement agencies who are now hampered by anti-wiretapping regulations, anti phone-tapping regulations, anti-infiltration regulations.

Headline: "Lady Churchill Forced To Auction Treasures."

Story: the 91-year-old widow of Sir Winston Churchill, England's inspiring leader during World War II and that country's "backbone" for many years, was forced to sell five paintings because she was caught between mushrooming inflation and falling investment income. She does not benefit from a five-year-old law giving pensions to widows of high government officials, and her only other income (other than investments) is a state pension of $26 a week. Churchill left an estate of $638,000. Half went for taxes; the widow got one-third of what was left.

Thought: You don't necessarily have to be poor to be poor. —And there is food for thought about investments in our nation where "profits" has become a "dirty word." Without investments, there is no business. Without profits, there are no investments.

Headline: "Carter To Receive Phone Calls From the Public."

Story: President Jimmy Carter was preparing for a two-hour radio program during which U.S. citizens could call in and talk directly to the President.

Thought: If national news media are NOT biased, why didn't CBS make a similar offer to President Ford or President Nixon? The two-hour program was reportedly paid for by CBS.

Second thought: Shouldn't Republicans get equal time?

Headline: "Bill To Raise Campaign Spending Limits Has Bipartisan Support."

The story: The limit of $21.8 million in expenses for a Presidential candidate "is not enough," according to members of Congress, both Republican and Democrat. They propose to raise the limit almost 50%, to a limit of $30 million. The present limit is all in public funds—that is, the $1 write-off allowed a taxpayer goes to support the Presidential campaign.

Thought: there you have it—the bright idea of "election reform," promoted and "sold" by liberals as a solution to faults in financing national elections, is inadequate because of the same "evil" they thought could be overcome—money. Now the solution to the solution is—more money!

The whole idea is wrong in the first place. It amazes me how those who so strongly seek to protect the "civil rights" of some people feel no contradiction in their denying me the right to give as much as I want to a candidate or candidates of my choice, while at the same time they substitute a mass-involvement process in our "free" elections.

Quayle Takes Phone Calls

"Who's calling please?" and "No, he's busy at the moment" aren't heard in Congressman Dan Quayle's office. He insists on taking all his calls personally, according to a news release from his office.

"The only time I won't take a call immediately is when I'm away from the office or on another phone call. Then I'll return the call," he said.

"It's impersonal and unnecessary to inquire concerning a person's name and business, so I am asking my staff to refer my calls to me immediately," he explained. Congressman Quayle's Washington number is (202) 225-4436.

Award Nomin's Sought

Nominations are being accepted for the fourth annual "Conservation Teacher-of-the Year" awards program, according to Maynard Hine, chairman of the DeKalb County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Competition is open to all teachers working at the kindergarten through high school level who have developed an outstanding program of environmental education.

The National Conservation Teacher of the Year will receive $1500 in cash and an expense-paid trip to Anaheim, California, for the annual convention of the National Association of Conservation Districts. Second place winner gets a $300 cash award.

Co-sponsored by NACD and the Allis Chalmers Corporation, the awards program is intended to encourage the development of creative learning experiences in conservation for young people.

Interested teachers can obtain additional information and nomination forms from the Soil and Water Conservation District Office at 400 Erie Pass in Auburn. Applications must be turned in by March 31.

Exemption Filing

March 1 was the first day for filing property tax exemptions in the DeKalb County auditor's office. The filing period runs through Tuesday, May 10.

The auditor's office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Friday when it will remain open until 6 p.m. Additional filing time is provided from 9 a. m. to noon Saturdays, March 5 and 12, April 30 and May 7.

UF Elects; Near Fund Goal

At the recent annual meeting of the United Fund of DeKalb County, Inc., officers and directors were elected for 1977.

Conrad Hafner and Robert Ehlers were elected co-chairmen; Nancy McNabb, secretary; and Bill James, treasurer. Other directors serving on the board are Richard Fink, Barbara Oren, Frank Bartos, Mary Kathryn Likens, Paula Slentz, Jack Bercaw, Gerald McNerney and Jerry Markle.

It was reported that the 1976-77 campaign has come within 3% of reaching the $96,784 goal and anticipated additional donations should cover the balance. As a result, United Fund plans to pay the total approved appropriations to the participating agencies.

Preliminary plans for the 1977-78 campaign were made. The budget hearing is set for May 9, when all United Fund agencies will request their funding for 1978. The campaign will be held October 10-31.

Barbara Oren and Frank Bartos will be co-chairmen of the DeKalb Central School District, Mary Kathryn Likens of the Garrett School District, with the chairman of the DeKalb Eastern School District yet to be named.

Superior Court In Making

A bill to create a Superior Court and eliminate the present DeKalb County Court appears to be on the way to passage.

The Indiana House has approved the measure. It now requires Senate approval and the signature of the governor.

Support for the action came locally from Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump, DeKalb County Court Charles Quinn, the county bar association and the Auburn Chamber of Commerce. The legislation was sponsored by State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn. The move would reduce the burden on the circuit court docket due to the present limited area in which the county court functions. A Superior Court has a wider range of jurisdiction.

Of particular interest is the fact that Judge Quinn, who will be the Superior Court judge and would be entitled to a higher salary, has agreed to forego the county portion of the pay raise for a Superior Court judge until the next election. Thus, pay for six additional jurors will be the main expense. Current facilities and personnel are adequate, Judge Quinn said.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted:

Just a short note to let you know that Dad is hospitalized here in Defiance Hospital with a heart condition. He has been in the hospital since February 14. He is out of the Intensive Care Unit for the second time and rest seems to be the one thing that he needs the most, so he isn't having many visitors at this time. I am sure, however, that he would appreciate hearing from some of his friends in St. Joe.

His address is:

Ray Moore
c/o Defiance City Hospital
Room 211 B
Defiance, OH 43512

I will try to keep you posted on any changes in his condition.

Hope this finds your family healthy. Can't imagine what your boys must look like now. (Boys, huh, I am still remembering them from when I babysat with them.) I have to remember that I have a 15 year old and a 13 year old.

Sincerely,
Mary

'It Was Beautiful' Reflects Spirit Behind Donors' 123-Pint Response At Riverdale Bloodmobile Friday

"It was beautiful!"

With those words, Delores Hicov described the response to the call for blood donors at the Bloodmobile last Friday.

123 pints, the highest total ever achieved in this community, were donated under the direction and chairmanship of Mrs. Hicov.

Apparently some sort of "spirit of giving" permeated the cafetorium, with people seeming to want to "stay around for a while," according to Mrs. Hicov. "The whole operation went off like clockwork," she said.

Only seven people who appeared were unable to donate blood for various reasons, the 123 pints coming from 130 volunteer offers of blood.

28 donors came from the local Vulcraft plant, five from Sechler's pickle plant and 18 young people in the 17-to-20 age group. The balance of donors were those who have been faithful and dependable donors in the past.

Joining the "Three-Gallon Donor Club" was Ruth Shilling. Mike Hicov became a two-gallon donor. One-gallon donors include David Yates, Thomas McKown, James Hudson, Christine Hicov and Charles Trumbull.

Adult donors were:

Ron Beard, Roger Coburn, Clayton Miller, Steven Sayer, Jerome Schreier, Dwight Fish, Melvin Harris, Larry Wonderley, Michael Mooney, Robert Kane, Martha Beard, Emma Frank, Richard Carpenter, Stephanie Koch, Gary Silvers, James Landrum, Rick Stiver, Ronald Provines, Tom Duke, Dennis Stiver, Nolan Johnson, Norma Furnish, Richard Mumma, Joseph Borer, Connie Hollabaugh, Pierre O'Hare, David Sullivan, David Yates, Norma Michelson, Donald Miller, Joann Miller, Tondalava Miller, Wilbur Miller, Harold Murphy, Loretta Musser, Gary Norton, Loyal Norton, Judy Parker, Randy Rediger, James Rinard, Richard Roberts, William Krelner, Ronald Hartman, Sybil Brattain, Lowena Gerig, Roy Wheat, Frank Sechler, James Hudson, Gerald Culbertson, Antonio Gonzales, Dale Harter, Jeffery Hess, Christine Hicov, Jeffery Hicov, Michael Hicov, Philip Washler, Robert Wilder, Kenneth Wilson, Donald Lee, Benjamin Lengacher, Edna Lengacher, Robert Lichtsinn, Thomas McKown, Richard Mack, Max Markle, Kenneth Mathes, Sandra Mathes, Cheryll Hollabaugh, Ted Hollabaugh, Lois Hook, Frank Ross, Linda Ross, Sandra Rucker, Sandre Schaeffer, Paul Sechler, Penelope Sechler, Don Shilling, Ruth Shilling, Michael Slentz, Julie Snyder, Reed Sowards, Sandra Springer, Lois Strong, Estil Taylor, Charles Trumbull, Joseph Tuscan, Dean Mishler, Robert Arnett, Joseph Baidinger, Betty Bowyer, Roger Cook, Anita Bremer, Katherine Crow, Keith Crow, Steven Culler, James Dwyer, Arden Dwyer, James Kline, Mark Beck, Charlotte Hudson, Jose Ibarra, Cynthia Jarrett, Lynn Kaiser, Evanna Keener and Larry Bowyer.

Mrs. Hicov expressed thanks to the many workers who gave their time, to the Saint Joe Lions Club for a donation toward refreshments for donors, Sechler's Pickles for guess what, County Line Cheese Company for another guess-what, D&M Grocery, the Brownies and church women for cookies, the Ladies Literary Club and The Saint Joe News.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building February 24 for its regular monthly meeting.

Rose Trammel, Bea Hollabaugh and Janet Woodring were the hostesses for the evening.

President Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. She extended greetings to those present, then told of some of her ideas for the club for the balance of the year.

She then asked for suggestions from the members present. She read several poems and then thanked the program committee for the 1977 program booklets which were passed out.

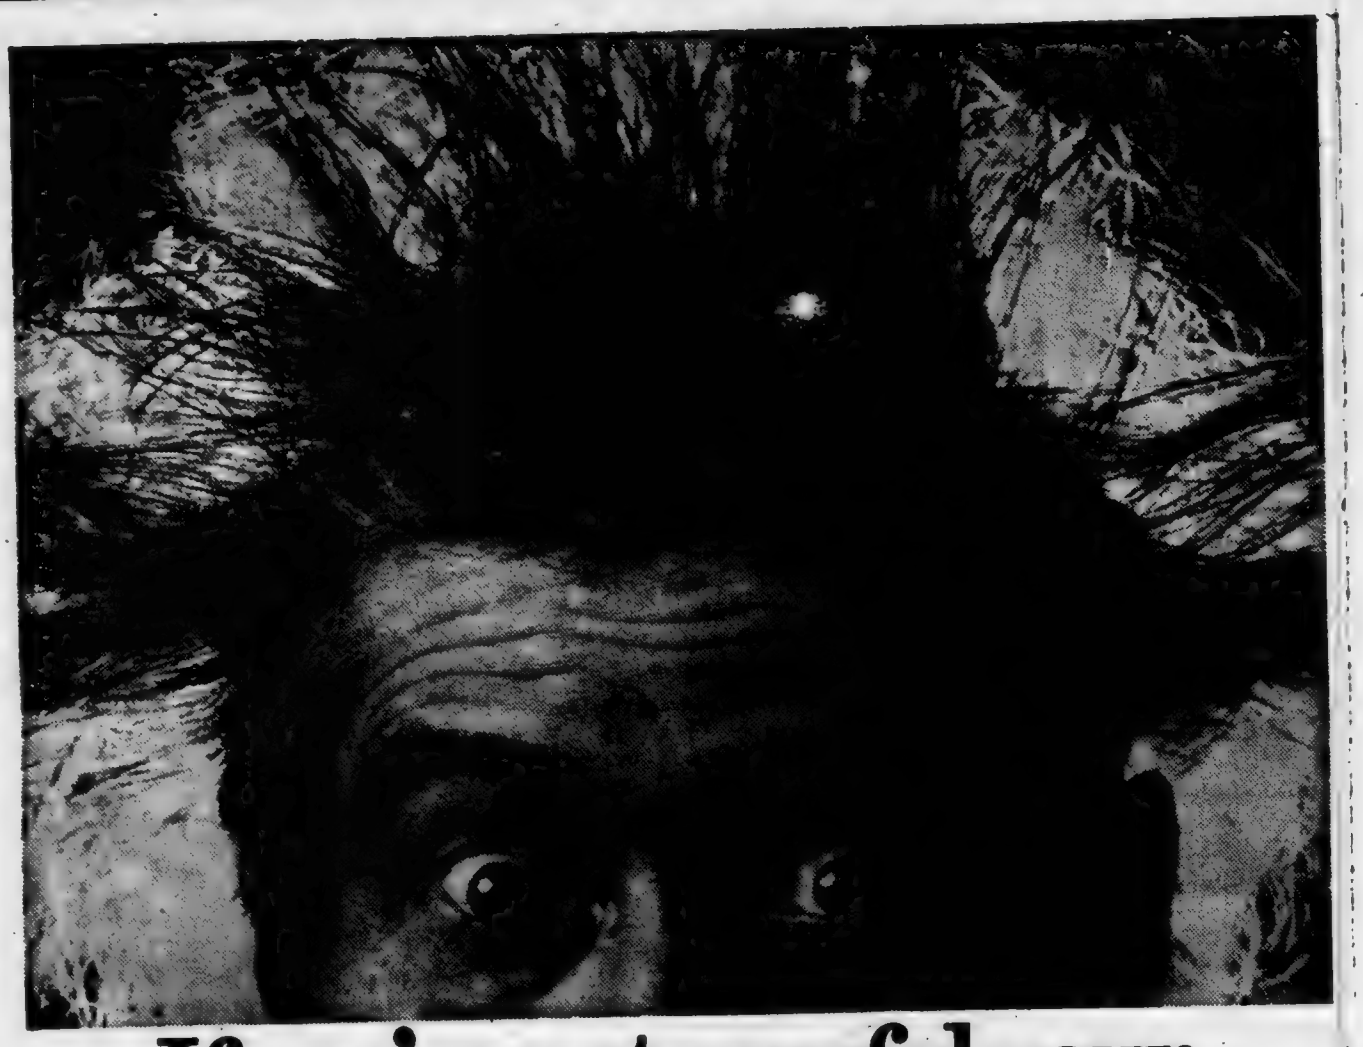
Mildred Jarrett, Beatrice Frain, Alma Ransom and Bertha Bartel will be hostesses for the March 24 meeting.

Same time—same place—see you there.



If you're not careful your CB antenna could put you in touch with a lot more than you bargained for.

Unfortunately, your CB base station antenna will not only help you reach more people, it could also put you in touch with our power lines.

And the slightest contact between you, your antenna and our lines could be fatal.

So, before you put up your antenna, here are a few suggestions you should follow.

First, we recommend you have a professional do it for you.

Okay, if you're determined to do it yourself, look out for power lines. The ones attached to poles. And the ones attached to your house.

If you can't tell a power line from a phone line, don't experiment. Steer clear.

Then make sure you locate your antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. Which means, a 30-ft. high antenna should be 45 feet away from all power lines in all directions.

That way, if it falls during construction, or gets blown down during a storm, it won't hit any lines and endanger you or your neighbors.

Trying to carry an antenna, climb a ladder and keep your balance all at the same time is risky business, too.

Wait for a calm day, assemble the antenna where you intend to put it up, be sure to ground the antenna properly and get somebody to help you.

Sometimes you find the most efficient energy ideas right under your nose.

Take your thermos bottle.

It works on the same principle as a European home heating system we're now testing.

Heat in the bricks is stored inside this "thermos" until it is distributed through ordinary ductwork to heat your home.

The beauty of this system is that it uses less energy during the day, when we have our heaviest electric demand.

This could let us use our generating equipment more efficiently. Which, in turn, would help us reduce our costs. And yours.

With the way the cost of everything is going up these days, that's a pleasant switch for all of us.

While we've already pioneered the use of high voltage transmission lines, we're also continuing to research even higher voltages to move even larger chunks of electricity. The advantage here is that we can move more electricity over fewer lines. And fewer transmission lines mean lower transmission costs.

But, while we continue our search for ways to keep costs in line there are some things you can do to keep costs in line, too.

Not just by turning off lights and lowering thermostats, but by insulating your home properly, using appliances efficiently, and by considering the use of more energy-efficient devices that are already available.

Working together. It's the only way we can hope to lick the problems that affect the cost of electricity today. And tomorrow.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.
Working together is the only way.

GS Troop 29

—Pat Osmun, Troop Scribe

Junior Girl Scout Troop 29 held their meeting Monday at 5 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. We invited Brownie Troop 466 to a potluck supper.

After singing "Johnny Appleseed Graced," we enjoyed turkey provided by the Brownies and salads, vegetables and desserts made by the Juniors.

After eating, the Brownies were taught a game, "Dr. Knickerbocker." and a song, "Gink Gank." After that, two songs were sung, "Indians are High Minded" and "Down On the Banks of the Hanky Panky."

Badge requirements were reviewed and an explanation given of the manner in which the troop operates.

The group then put the meeting room in order, swept the floor—and went home.

'Secrecy,' Irregularities In New Addition Construction

Town Board Deprives Taxpayers Of Total Financial Report, Other Information

—By The Editor

The current construction in progress at the fire hall in Saint Joe is a matter of which many town residents are not aware. The project has been somewhat "secretive," although any citizen is entitled to examine the town books for information. The catch is, they must know what it is they are looking for.

It is difficult for me to determine where my interests as a private citizen, as a newspaper editor, as a former member of the town board and as an active participant in community projects ought to be separated. So, it is up to the reader to make up his or her mind whether the following statements are due to genuine concern for the total town welfare or just hurt feelings and a deflated ago.

Fact: early in 1976, the local town board caused to be published in the Auburn Evening Star an advertisement seeking bids on a fire hall addition. No notice was given for publication in The Saint Joe News, despite the fact that Indiana statutes state that all notices, ordinances and reports pertaining to the town shall be placed in a newspaper "published" in the town.

Fact: a request by this newspaper for the amounts bid on the project was never fulfilled, even though the request was made to two town board members.

Fact: a notice from the town board concerning the use of Federal Revenue Sharing funds was published July 22, 1976, in The Saint Joe News, designating $10,000 proposed to be spent for public safety, that being the fire hall addition.

But the notice was published six weeks AFTER the deadline date of June 1, 1976, that date clearly designated as the deadfine for citizens to express their views on how the money should be spent. Thus, town residents were denied any "say-so" in the matter.

Fact: the board accepted a construction bid late in 1976, according to the town clerk-treasurer, and construction was begun after cold weather had created a substantially deep frost level. After a few days' work on the foundation, heavy snow fell and the hard winter of 1976-77 set in. Work stopped on the project.

Fact: three letters early this year to the Indiana State Board of Accounts from The Saint Joe News inquiring about the manner of handling the bids brought no answers to questions about the propriety of bid advertisements. Copies of those letters were sent to the clerk-treasurer so that town officials would know about the inquiry; it was not done secretively or "behind their back."

An error in one letter about auditing of town books was acknowledged by The Saint Joe News by a telephone call to the State Board of Accounts minutes after the clerk-treasurer called the News Office in great upset, pointed out the error and promptly hung up.

However, the state board still did not answer the questions asked and instead indicated it (the State Board of Accounts) is a "post-audit" agency. That is, the state board does nothing until after an examination of town records. No other information or suggestions came from the state board, despite the fact that an examination of the records probably would come after the questioned project was completed and would therefore be of no use. The immediate concern expressed in the letters to the state board was the expenditure of an amount of money larger than ever before available to the town in a lump sum.

Fact: the annual report of the town finances was published in the Auburn Evening Star in February, despite the statute which designates a paper "published" in the town as the proper place for such a report.

Here is what the laws state:

"Sec. 3 (I.C. 5-3-1). Within thirty (30) days after the expiration of each calendar year, it shall be the duty of the clerk or controller of each civil city and town in the State of Indiana, to publish, in conformity with this act, an annual report of the receipts and expenditures of said city or town, showing the same by funds and appropriations, as is now provided for by law by boards of county commissioners. . . . . ."

Further on in the statutes, in Section 4, we find:

"If only one (1) of said political parties is represented by a newspaper published in such town, then all such civil and school town notices, ordinances and reports shall be published in such newspaper and also in another newspaper of general circulation published in such town, if there be such other newspaper, and if not then such publication in the one (1) newspaper shall be sufficient. . . ."

The intent of the statute is obvious: to publish information about town matters in a publication as "close to home" as possible because such information relates ONLY to residents within the town corporate limits.

If anyone wishes to see the statutes to satisfy their own curiosity, they're at the News Office, and have been for years.

But it's not so much a matter of law that is upsetting, it is the pettiness that seems to govern the attitude of the town board in public matters. It's as if the majority of candidates serving on the board after the last two elections think they are entitled to go "underground," to function without respect for or regard for those they are supposed to serve.

Fact: a request by The Saint Joe News to the town attorney for clarification of the situation brought a reply that he had not been contacted by the town board for some six months.

As it turned out, he wasn't the town attorney, but he didn't know it nor did I. After taking time to prepare a detailed letter in answer to my questions, the attorney found out by accident that he no longer represented the town and its citizens. HE NEVER RECEIVED NOTIFICATION FROM THE TOWN BOARD OF THE TERMINATION OF HIS DUTIES AS LEGAL COUNSEL FOR THE TOWN.

The legal firm in which he is a partner had been representing Saint Joe for 13 years. But he found out about the change only because a local resident, sent a notice to clean up their private property by the town board through a new legal representative, consulted the former legal counsel about the notice.

Fact: the legal firm now reportedly in charge of town affairs has in its employ a daughter of the town board president.

Fact: the town board president is also chief of the local volunteer fire department

Fact: though making no comment about illegality, an assistant examiner in the State Board of Accounts office expressed apparent surprise that one individual is serving as town board president and as fire chief at the same time. The matter was mentioned by the examiner in a telephone conversation originated at the News Office.

The apparent reason for surprise is an obvious conflict of interests, especially under present circumstances involving construction of a fire hall addition using funds which a previous board had allowed to accumulate for a building readily adaptable to total community use.

Fact: for the past 14 months, the town board has made no effort to keep town citizens informed in an up-to-date manner of the conduct of town affairs. Despite the statement in January, 1976, by a board member that the member had volunteered to prepare news releases for this paper, no such information has been made available to this newspaper, the one paper published in the town and serving as the primary permanent source of information for those residing in the town in the past, at present, and in the future.

Fact: the town board has had 11 vacancies in five years. Six of those vacancies are "legitimate" in that they represent three openings on two occasions to be filled by the regularly scheduled elective process.

But five of those vacancies have been mid-term occurrences, board members resigning due to internal friction on the board or to change of residence.

This instability is directly related to the influence of a few fire department officials who influenced enough of the department and the public to unseat two of three board members seeking re-election in 1971. That board had, among other things, installed a complete new street lighting system in Saint Joe; firmly re-established the dog control program including the purchase of a tranquilizer gun to protect the dog warden and the public in apprehending stray dogs of suspicious temperament; named the park pavilion in honor of a former resident who had devoted hundreds of hours of free time to developing facilities at the popular park site; purchased two lots on the main street which were then readily available for Knisely National Bank when it expressed a preference for the lots as a site for the branch bank which opened in 1975 (an example of "lucky" foresight, yes, because the lots were intended to be used for a new town hall—but they WERE available for the bank only because the town board of 1971-75 purchased them).

The suggestion made to me a few times that "you ought to attend board meetings if you want to know what's going on" suggests one of two things — either that any Saint Joe citizen should attend board meetings to be entitled to know about town affairs and the town board has no responsibility to inform the public on the board's own initiative — or that there has been a deliberate effort NOT to give information to this paper because of this paper's past criticisms of the handling of certain town affairs. And there is more than the slightest hint that the town board's attitude is based on personal disagreement and resultant retaliation.

Conclusion: those serving on the town board have assumed privileges not included in normal town official responsibilities, have presumed to exercise judgment on the town newspaper on the basis of personal rather than official reasons, have retaliated against the town newspaper by failing to publish the annual report in the local paper, thus depriving the paper of a source of income to which it is legally entitled.

But more importantly, the town board has deprived town residents, the taxpayers, of knowledge about town affairs which they, the residents ought to have and which they have a right to have.

Accepts Call

Evangelist Edward Schantz has resigned and has accepted a call to Christ's Church at Woodburn, Indiana. He has been ministering to the St. Joe, Indiana, Church of Christ for the past three years. During that time the attendances have more than doubled and the offerings have been very good. Several have been added to the Sunday Bible School and church.

Minister Schantz expects to begin his new work around the first of May. The church at Woodburn is about eight years old. It was sponsored by the Harlan, Indiana, Church of Christ. The Schantz's ministered at Harlan Church in two different ministries in the early fifties and the middle sixties for a total of eight years.

Minister Schantz is the father of four sons, two of which are ordained ministers, and two daughters. All of the children are active in Churches of Christ in Indiana, Michigan or Missouri.

The Schantz's are looking forward to a good ministry at Woodburn. Ft. Wayne is moving in that direction.

Butler Weeklies Merge Into 'Bulletin'

Last week's issues of 'The Record-Herald" and "The Butler Bulletin" carried the announcement that the Max Gray and Joe Shelton families, who started the Bulletin a year ago, have purchased the Record-Herald. With the purchase came the second-class mailing privilege of the Record-Herald which qualifies the Bulletin now for legal notices as a result of the merger of the two papers.

The Bulletin, which had been distributed as a free paper since its beginning, will now become a subscription publication.

The Butler Herald was first published June 16, 1866. The Butler Record began publication February 15, 1877. The two merged into the Record-Herald January 1, 1929.

When the Waterloo Press owners decided to cease publication in 1974, the Record-Herald purchased the Waterloo mailing list. Lee Ellen Ford was the owner of the Record-Herald at that time, having purchased the paper from MM Burdette Powers. The newspaper had been published by three generations of the Powers family.

Miss Ford changed the name of the paper to "DeKalb Record-Herald" in 1975 in a move designed to create a county-wide weekly. However, the effort was unsuccessful and the paper lost a substantial number of subscribers due to dissatisfaction with the paper in the minds of Butler area residents and the Butler business community.

In 1976 MM Steve Grogg purchased the Record-Herald from Miss Ford. But the transaction was challenged by MM Powers who said their contract with Miss Ford included a provision that they be consulted before any sale could be consummated.

The Groggs found insurmountable obstacles in attempting to re-establish the Record-Herald. As a result, recent issues of the Record-Herald contained a notice that the paper was being published by agreement of the three involved parties to preserve the paper's second class mailing status. It was prepared for publication during that time by the Butler Bulletin owners.

Last week's announcement indicated that, after seeking public opinion about which name to use, the owners will continue to use "The Butler Bulletin" as the official name of the merged papers. Behind the publication will be 111 years of newspaper publishing history including the Herald, the Record and the Record-Herald.

The March 23, 1977, issue will be the last of the Record-Herald. March 30 will be the date of the first issue of the merged papers.

The Bulletin staff and equipment will move from present quarters on North Broadway to the Record-Herald building on East Main.

New Teacher Organization Opposes ISTA-NEA Push For Power

Indiana Professional Educators, Inc., a new statewide teachers organization, was formed recently due to the growing number of teachers who disapprove of the tactics of the once-professional organizations, ISTA and NEA (Indiana State Teachers Association and National Education Association).

The news release from the organization states, "We are in strong opposition to Senate Bill 210 sponsored by Senator Teague (Anderson) and Senator Garton (Columbus). This bill is a group of amendments to the present collective bargaining law, Public Law 217, which would mandate open-scope bargaining for teachers. This bill if passed would take control out of the hands of the local community and put it into the hands of the union officials.

"Teachers NOW have INPUT into ALL phases of their employment through the bargainable and discussable sections of Public Law 217."

Further explanation of the organization's views includes, "Indiana Professional Educators feel Public Law 217 provides a delicate balance between employee and employer rights for professional negotiations. Therefore, it should be left unchanged and allowed to stand the test of time.

"As of March 14, 1977, the bill has passed the Indiana Senate and has been assigned to the Education Committee in the House of Representatives. We urge concerned teachers and citizens to contact your legislators before it's too late."

Coburn Corners

—Mildred Jarrett, reporter

Thursday, March 17, Ruth Coburn, Ruth Wilmot, Lois Strong and Emily Curie were hostesses to a lovely dinner, served at the noon hour to members and families of the Truth Seekers Class at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

The tables were decorated with shamrocks and Easter flowers, and the food appealed to individual diets and was delicious.

Entertainment was provided by Ella Crothers, Mildred Jarrett and John Crothers. Ella and Mildred reviewed some mission projects and John entertained by reading some poems he had written in the past.

Those who enjoyed the day included John and Ella Crothers, Fay and Audrey Wilmot, Roy and Majorie Mann, Nancy Coburn, LuReign Strong, Flossie Shambo, Nellie Brackney, Marie Ward, Elizabeth Hart, Opal Wilmot and Mildred Jarrett. Dinner was also sent to Mark and Doris Stuck.

Since we're feeling a bit neglectful because we did not report this to the St. Joe News at the time it happened, the Truth Seekers of the Coburn Corners Church wish to say "thank you" to the Koinonia Class, which includes older young people and the younger married people of the church, and their teacher, Bob Wilder, for the invitation and the food at a dinner on the Wilder lawn one Sunday last summer. The class wants the host class to know how much we enjoyed your recognition, food and thoughtfulness.

Again we say "thank you" to both groups.

During this time when we have no minister, Charles Curie and Lynn Hart have taken turns filling the pulpit.

Church visitors March 20 included MM Walter Coburn, MM John Cook and MM Dean Cornell and son and daughter.

TO THE EDITOR—

Reading the Spencerville UM News

Seventy-two years ago I joined the M. E. Methodist Church.

Reading the items of the church, I was saddened seeing the church I once loved and spent many years serving it. Now it's so different. We were taught things the world did was sin. Dancing was one. If we partook of worldly things the Love of God wasn't in us.

Card playing, I read, also was told, that an old card player said, each card had a special name. The King was Jesus Christ, the Queen was Jesus' mother Mary, the Jack was the devil and spade death. If this be true, what a terrible sin people do when they play with the innocent game of cards.

I never did think it was the thing for a church to raise money for God's work by having suppers, sales, etc.

God's way is to give our tithe, one-tenth of what God prospers us. He figured it all out, that His work would be cared for. But we like Cain do it our way and I am afraid He doesn't accept it. Our work will all be in vain in the judgement day. To think we give to God the things we cast away. God wants the FIRST and the BEST, not the things we don't want.

There are other teachings—the modernist views, the social gospel only, unbelief of all the Bible, etc.—that have robbed the church of its power and glory. One may be living in another age. But the Bible nor God ever changes and sin is sin in every age.

I am praying the Methodist Church will come back to God and the old Wesley doctrine to which she was purposed to be.

Edith Akey

Thank you for your courage and your witness. —Ed.

Little, Senior Leagues Plan

Plans are already under way for the coming baseball season for Little Leaguers and for a slightly revised Pony League which will now be designated as Senior League.

Jerry Vinson, secretary-treasurer of the baseball group, said this week that 13, 14 and 15 year olds will be eligible for Senior League and that the two teams from this area will be in a league with Woodburn and Harlan who also will have two teams each.

Tentative plans call for Tuesday and Thursday games with a rainout automatically set for the following Saturday.

Diamond dimensions are altered somewhat, with Senior League pitchers throwing the standard 60'6" distance. Bases are 80 feet apart. No steel cleats are allowed.

The Little League will continue with its 4 teams for 8-12 year-olds.

Jerry indicated that sponsors are needed for the Senior League teams.

Other officers of the local organization include Ron Eichel, president, and Larry Emenhiser, vice-president.

On Monday night we had a meeting. We had visitors from the local March of Dimes chapter. They talked to us about birth defects. These ladies were Melody Mason, Diane Souder and Karlene Harp.

A skit was put on by the FHA to emphasize the importance of healthy children. Beth Mumma was narrator and Rene Hochstetler played the role of a nurse. Kitty Bowser and Maureen Curry played the main characters as pregnant teenagers learning to take care of themselves so they could have normal babies. The play was written by Barbara Mumma, president, and Maureen, vice-president.

There was also a movie shown on birth defects, and it showed all the precautions an expectant mother should take in having normal babies.

Refreshments were served and everyone had a good time.

The FHA would like to thank Barbara and Maureen for writing and presenting a great play. We also would like to thank Melody Mason, Diane Souder and Karlene Harp from the March of Dimes for coming and expressing the importance of birth defects.

How This Newspaper Served The Community — 1975

—By The Editor

A chance remark by Steve Monroe in a "bull session" at the local barbershop recently brought encouraging news for residents of Saint Joe, especially those residing at the east end of town.

As background, a special public meeting was called by The Saint Joe News in June of 1975 when the town attorney notified this newspaper that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) had designated the east side residences on Widney Avenue (Second Street), the local elevator, the coin laundry, the car wash and the tavern as lying within a "flood-prone" area. A deadline date of July 1, 1975, had to be met to make application for inclusion in the flood program which brought lower flood insurance rates for owners of structures lying within the area.

The trouble was, HUD's dividing line went down the middle of Widney Avenue; the east side was "flood-prone," the west side wasn't — but the residences on both sides are virtually on the same level.

Another trouble was that the then-president of the town board had failed to notify the town legal counsel of the deadline and the designated area. In a last-minute scramble, a legal notice was published in the county daily to announce the board's intent to set up a zoning ordinance. Such an ordinance was one of the requirements to qualify for HUD's flood insurance program. And if the town did not apply before the deadline date, HUD regulations stipulated that no money could be borrowed from any lending institution, operating under federal regulations, by using structures within the "flood-prone" area as collateral.

As a result of the public meeting set up by the local editor and attended by some 40 people, including two members of the then-town board and the town's legal counsel who volunteered his services, town attorney Donald Butler proceeded with the required zoning ordinance only to prevent any complications. The town board members were urged to have the attorney file an appeal on the "flood-prone" area, and they did.

The News Office contacted Mr. Butler several months thereafter to see if any change had been made. There had been no response from HUD at that time, he said.

The chance remark made by Steve Monroe recently was that the "flood-prone" area had been changed. The News Office contacted Mr. Butler and he confirmed the fact that, in the spring of 1976, he met with the town board and presented them with a revised map prepared by HUD as a result of the 1975 appeal. Hearing nothing from the board thereafter, he assumed the new boundaries were satisfactory to the board.

Unfortunately, the town board (with one holdover member and two newly-elected members) did not feel inclined to inform local residents publicly of the success of the appeal. The new "flood-prone" area boundary has been moved away from residence and business structures on the south side of State Road 1, relieving those owners of the expense of "low-cost" flood insurance which they don't need. On the north side of the highway about 85% of the previously outlined area has been removed, making the total result in line with reality.

There is another reason, however for feeling concern over the lack of information from the town board in this matter. That reason is this. The complaint is often heard, and often rightly so, that it's useless for the average citizen to raise his or her voice in protest to an injustice occurring due to governmental processes. "It won't do any good" has probably stifled more complaints and objections than have been heard by elected and appointed government officials.

Therefore, when a public complaint DOES get results, it is very important that those affected know about it, especially when the grievance is based on sound and reasonable points, as was the case with the "flood-prone" area matter for Saint Joe.

It took almost a year to get HUD's re-appraisal of our chances of flood damage to residences and other buildings at the east end of town. Then it took almost a year for news of the revision to get from the town board to town residents — and then only because of a chance remark by a private citizen in an informal conversation.

At any rate, the matter shows that this newspaper is concerned about the interest of the people in this community. Because the present town board did not think enough of the interests of local citizens to make this significant flood insurance information known to the public through this newspaper, it is necessary for this newspaper to "toot its own horn." When it was made known in 1975 of the circumstances surrounding HUD's "flood-prone" area designation, this newspaper IMMEDIATELY took steps to inform the public through a public meeting and to assure the town board at that time of public support in filing an appeal. The appeal was made. The revision was granted.

That's what a "community newspaper" is for, to look out for the best interests of those residing in the community it serves. When such efforts are successful, citizens in the community are entitled to be shown some consideration by their local elected officials and be informed by a town board announcement — and not by chance.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

With the temperature around the 70 mark Tuesday, Frank Sechler still thought of the Good Samaritan who plowed the driveway at the Sechler residence after a heavy snowfall in January. Whoever it was, he says "thanks."

I goofed in the pre-Bloodmobile writeup concerning the amount of blood given in the past. I said 1976 was the first time over 100 pints were given. In going through the 1975 file, I found the story that 114 pints were given that year.

I suppose it doesn't matter too much really about the error—just so we can keep it over the 100-mark every year.

From "Agri-News," a publication of the Ciba-Geigy Corporation, comes this interesting paragraph:

"NO FUEL LIKE AN OLD FUEL. A University of Minnesota professor of forestry contends that a fuel forest concept of providing energy needs is feasible today. Dr. Dietmar Rose says that Minnesota power plants could be fueled with wood fiber FROM THE EXISTING SURPLUS PRODUCED BY NATURAL STANDS until intensely managed fuel plantations could be harvested in 15 to 20 years. Energy plantations should be located in areas where they would not compete with existing fiber users, where cost of imported coal is noncompetitive and where there is high unemployment, according to Dr. Rose. Assessment of economic feasibility and potential environmental and socio-economic consequences would be necessary, he says."

I am a sports fan, but I think the country has gone "sports-nuts." Instead of being a diversion, which even professional sports were years back, sports activities have become too much a "business" with the "fast buck" more of a factor in sports promotion than quality of competition in many cases.

An illustration of what I am talking about is in a regular mailing received at the News Office from "Winston Sports." I haven't paid too much attention to the mailings because at a glance I have considered the material not adaptable to this paper. Therefore, I have assumed that the promotion is by the cigarette company, although a recent mailing consisting of a 2-page write-up about two pro stock car racing participants contained no mention of anything but "Winston Sports."

What caught my eye was a portion of the write-up in which one of the men says he and his partner "ran out of money so many times, I lost count....Everything we have is in the car."

A look, then, at a photo of the pair brought further information that they "are finding the sport expensive and the pace hectic. But they are determined to succeed."

How much money is being spent today on "sports" activities beyond reason? If it is literally true that those two men have "everything" in their one racing car, they're stupid. But—they get promotional backing from a cigarette company.

Remember that when—and if—you buy another pack of Winstons. And remember all the full-page ads in the newspapers and national magazines promoting the sale of cigarettes. Guess who's paying the bill.

In case any local racing enthusiasts are offended by my remarks, keep in mind that I am talking about EXCESSIVE participation and promotion, not fun-and-hobby participation in general.

Rapping With Youth About.....
President Carter's Good Influence —And Sen. Bayh's Sudden Awakening

One thing obvious from President Jimmy Carter's recent radio call-in show is that the idea of public contact is catching. Hoosier Senator Dick Lugar wants to have an average citizen make his or her views known to the Congress occasionally. And Congressman Dan Quayle is sending a questionnaire to all homes in the Fourth District.

Even Indiana Senator Birch Bayh is getting into the act. He has a "public town meeting" set for Sunday at 3 p.m. at the YWCA, 325 West Wayne, Fort Wayne.

Senator Bayh's letter announcing the meeting includes the following:

"But I believe that we must try to find some way to maintain the sort of continuing face-to-face dialogue with our constituents that is so vital to the proper functioning of a democracy.

"All too often, those who serve in Congress and those who elect them think of each other interms of THEY instead of WE. . . ."

Amazing! It has taken Senator Bayh only 13 years to wake up to what's it's all supposed to be about.

A question for Senator Bayh: Whom were you serving when two recent vital Senate votes were taken — — — — — but you were somewhere out west making a couple of speeches and receiving an "honoriarium" of $4,000? Here was a crucial moment in representing Hoosiers, and you high-tail it out of town to make four thousand bucks before your colleagues pass an "ethics" code to limit outside income.

For a man who receives the majority of his financial support from organized labor and from outside his home state, he's got to be kidding.

—But—a lot of good CAN come from these contacts with the public ONLY if the elected officials listen and then act accordingly. Mr. Quayle and Mr. Lugar have already shown examples of their responsiveness to public opinion as they perceived it in their November election wins. But Mr. Bayh—well, that's a different story—of several years' duration.

His new concern for Hoosier input does not coincide with his proposed Constitutional amendment to remove the Electoral College from Presidential elections and make such elections strictly based on total popular vote. Under such a change, the practical result would be that Hoosiers lose their say-so in Presidential elections, overall control and influence coming from the densely populated areas such as New York City, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, and so on.

Our founding fathers knew what they were doing when they set up the Electoral College, just as they knew what they were doing in setting up a two-body Congress, one based on population (the House of Representatives) and the other giving equal representation to every state (the Senate).

It is obvious that Senator Bayh, and those others who are pushing for popular-vote Presidential elections, do not know what "representative government" means.

The United States are a republic, not a democracy.

EHS Athletes On Area Squads

The 1976-77 Auburn Evening Star-Kendallville News-Sun All-Area prep teams for basketball and wrestling were announced Friday of last week.

Dave Kandel of DeKalb Eastside was named to the area first team in basketball. He scored 399 points during the season for an 18.1 average per game. He made 53% of his field goal attempts and 70% of his free throw opportunities.

Honorable mention was given Chris Sipe and Rick Richmond of Eastside.

In wrestling, Bret Kelham of Eastside was named to the first team in the 119-lb. weight class. He won 17 of 20 matches and is the first Eastsider ever to win a sectional title. He also won individual titles in the AC-AC meet and the Central Noble Invitational. He was fourth in the regional.

Larry McKown of Eastside received honorable mention.

Did you know-

—that within the next week, all 180,000 households in the Fourth Congressional District will receive a questionnaire from Congressman Dan Quayle who "wants to know what the people of northeastern Indiana think about the status of the economy, government re-organization, President Carter's foreign policy and America's energy situation." The 21-item questionnaire asks constituents to "share your opinions" on a variety of current issues. Two persons at each address will be able to fill in the form by checking "yes" or "no." "It's easy to complain about government, but here's an opportunity to tell me where you stand. If government is to work effectively, there must be two-way communication," Quayle said.

—tthat MM Walter Prosser of R2 Butler are parents of a son born Sunday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that in an effort to put the nation's political establishment in closer touch with the views of average Americans, Indiana Senator Richard Lugar says he will periodically invite Indiana citizens to addres the Congress. He said he would select at random, from telephone directories and other public lists, names of those invited to submit "Dear Congress" letters airing their views. He will then insert the letters in the Congressional Record.

—that Northern Indiana Fuel & Light seeks new gas rates to cover higher pipeline costs. The average increase for a residential non-heating customer will be $1.53 per year. For heating customers it will be $7.22 per year.

—that Crystle King of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that MM Gary Heffelfinger of Fort Wayne are parents of a son born Wednesday of last week at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Senator Richard Lugar of Indiana will seek an amendment to the 1977 Supplemental Appropriations Bill to provide immediate additional funding for increased research on the diagnosis, prevention and control of psuedo-rabies, a disease fatal to pigs.

—that William Kreiner, sixth grade teacher at Riverdale Elementary School and a 1975 graduate of Toledo University, and Shela Su Raub of Auburn, a 1974 graduate of DeKalb Central High School, plan a June 4 wedding.

Quayle Says Cut Taxes; And 'Grass Roots' Stopped Unions

The way to get the country moving again is not through higher spending but through lower tax rates for the taxpayer, said Congressman Dan Quayle at a Lincoln Day dinner at Albion.

The new Representative from the Fourth District attacked President Carter's economic stimulus package as "more of the same medicine for an ailment which requires a new prescription." Quayle also hit at the Democratic leadership in Congress for allowing a $13,000 raise in Congressional salaries while proposing a meager one-time $50 tax rebate to selected American taxpayers.

"Permanent tax cuts would do far more to help the economy, both immediately and in the long run," Quayle said. He cited the success of tax cuts during the Kennedy administration in 1962.

The Congressman said that a reduction in individual income tax rates across-the-board will produce a more positive stimulus because it will be permanent rather than just another quick fix; it will not increase the deficit as much; it will fight inflation because supply will increase more than demand; and it will reduce the tax bite on 88 million working people.

Quayle noted that President Carter's budget calls for $19 billion more in federal spending than the Ford budget and $10 billion more in red ink deficit spending.

He opined that Republicans must demonstrate that "we are for progress and not just against everything the majority party proposes."

The stunning defeat of common situs legislation in the U.S. House of Representatives last week was the result of an effective "grass roots" campaign that caused Congressmen to listen to the people rather than the big labor basses, so said Fourth District Congressman Dan Quayle following the House vote.

"The common situs rejection should give people hope that special interests will not run the show as long as the ordinary citizen makes his voice heard." Quayle told the Rush County Lincoln Day dinner audience last Friday.

Quayle voted against the common situs bill Wednesday of last week along with the majority that killed the measure, 217 to 205.

"It was bad legislation that could lead to more inflation in an already hard-hit construction industry, and create more unemployment," Quayle explained. "Quite simply, it would have forced the closure of an entire industrial plant or construction site, placing people out of work, just because of a single dispute between one union and one subcontractor," he added.

Quayle said he had over 300 individual communications from his constituents opposing common situs legislation, and approximately 20 favoring the bill.

"The common situs vote demonstrated that Congressmen do read their mail and listen to 'grass roots' opinions," he added.

Quayle added a warning:

"We cannot become complacent over this single 'grass roots' victory. The people must make their voices heard regarding the spending spree on which the 95th Congress has embarked. Democrat leaders are proposing to approve red-ink spending of over $70 billion next year and the national debt could skyrocket over $800 billion."

LEGAL NOTICE—URGENT
GOVERNMENTAL AND NON-PROFIT AGENCIES

You undoubtedly know of projects that would greatly benefit your community but have not been carried out because of lack of funds or insufficient personnel. CETA can help you solve this problem.

The Fort Wayne Area CETA Consortium has been funded to find work for the unemployed by placing them in public service positions in governmental and non-profit agencies. The money was appropriated by Congress to alleviate the crucial unemployment situation in our country and in our area.

CETA's funding can help you carry out these projects by supplying the needed employees.

The U.S. Department of Labor definition of such a project is this: "A definite task or group of related tasks that can be completed within a definable period of time, not exceeding one year, which has a public service objective and which results in a specific product or accomplishment when completed, and which would not otherwise be accomplished with existing funds."

There are no limits to the number of participants. CETA will screen them on the basis of their unemployment record and their low family income. If capable and selected by you, the employees will be paid by CETA for the project period. Your project will be subject to approval by your CETA County Advisory Committee. The Consortium reserves the right to accept or reject any proposal that fails to meet the requirements.

ACT NOW! Projects must be started soon in order to meet the Department of Labor time requirements.

Call the CETA office in your county seat to get the details and the proposal forms.

DAR Meets

The John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met March 12 at the home of Mrs. David Bowes in Garrett with Mrs. Virgil Cowan as co-hostess.

Mrs. Everett Allen, Vice Regent, opened the meeting with the regular ritual, followed by the pledge to the flag. The President General's Message and the Defense Reports were given by Mrs. Calvin Carnahan.

Mrs. Marlin Yoder, chairman of the J.A.C. poster project, presented eight students from the Eastside and McIntosh elementary schools in Auburn who participated in the contest. Included were first, second and honorable mention winners. Thatcher pins, certificates of award and monetary awards were given.

The theme, "America—the next 100 years," brought forth interesting posters depicting modes of travel, heating and foods. Those honored were Jeff Lint, Amy Brown, Stephen Bauman, Kimberly Souder, Holly Pepple, Kathy Franks, Amy Todd, Erin Record and Dawn Paxton.

To complete the program of the day, Mrs. Ron Bowman showed slides and told of the work of Methodist groups from the Huntington and Marion districts with the Cherokee tribes in Northeastern Oklahoma. A Medical Clinic was established in Stillwell, Oklahoma, two churches built, and others restored and painted. She also displayed many Indian artifacts of interest, and closed the meeting by reading an ndian prayer.

Susan Gingery and her parents, MM Raymond Gingery of R1 Garrett, attended the Indiana Good Citizens Awards Day luncheon in Indianapolis Saturday.

Each spring, all participating Good Citizens are honored by the state, and awards are presented to the top 13 participants.

The contest is sponsored every fall by the national Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

The "Good Citizens" from each of the county's three high schools were invited to attend Saturday's program. But only Susan, representing DeKalb Central, and her parents were able to attend.

The day's activities included a morning tour of the Harrison Mansion, luncheon, and then the announcement of the top three winners.

Attending from the John Houlton Chapter DAR were Mrs. Everett Allen, Vice Regent; Mrs. Ernest Harter; Sarah Jean Eldridge, DAR Good Citizens chairman; and Mrs. Calvin Carnahan, State Recording Secretary.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I found the first segment of the TV presentation of "Jesus of Nazareth" to be very inspirational. I suppose there are those who consider that production as too melodramatic, such as the scene where John the Baptist stops in his baptizing as Jesus approaches, knowing that here is the promised Deliverer of man from guilt of sin. Some may say it's "corny" to depict recognition of Jesus just by Jesus' presence; John didn't know who it would be when he carried on his ministry preparing the way for Jesus' ministry. But I find such depictions very inspiring, I get goosebumps in those moments. And I don't know how else the divinity of Jesus can be portrayed except in such scenes of unspoken recognition, as well as scenes depicting the miracles performed by Jesus.

Though the TV presentation is in two three-hour segments, it can tell only part of the entire story. Thus, there can be some misunderstanding unless one reads the Bible consistently through the years.

For instance, the sequence of events as portrayed on the TV presentation could leave the impression that the first miracle performed by Jesus was that of bringing a child back to life. Actually, the first miracle recorded in the Bible was the turning of water into wine at a wedding feast. My first reaction on that one was that a deliberate omission of that first miracle was made due to the wine-and-party offense which might hit certain people. However, another scene was depicted in which Jesus went to Matthew's house where there was a wing-ding of a party going on. But Jesus walked in and "judged not."

While there may be some discrepancies here and there in the TV presentation as compared to Scripture, they don't seem bad enough to classify the presentation as unworthy of attention. The fundamentals are there, including that Jesus was man and Jesus was God—or "is" God, I should say.

Mike Downs of Fort Wayne, our friendly Commonwealth Life Insurance Company representative in this area, was in last week. During the conversation he said, "I've seen more good-lookin' women in Saint Joe today — — — —."

He's right. We DO have more good-lookin' women around here, what with so many new families moving into the area to join our old standbys in making these warm sunny spring days more refreshing.

Most people judge the arrival of spring by the arrival of robins. This year I judge it by the appearance of skirts—above the knee—and there have been a few thus far. One of 'em almost made me jump through the kitchen window at about 8:30 a. m. a couple of weeks ago. It was a sight for sore eyes— — "slacks-sore" eyes.

Anyhow, Mike—welcome to the "Dirty Old Man Club."

—Now, now, Mrs. Downs—don't get so upset.

3 Teens Killed In Accident

Three DeKalb County teenagers were killed last Friday in an accident which occurred at the I-69 interchange west of Waterloo. The victims were Kathy Friend, 17, daughter of MM Donald Friend of R1 Auburn; Sue Christlieb, 16, daughter of MM David Christlieb of R2 Auburn; and Lisa Mautner, 15, daughter of MM Ron Mautner of Auburn. The pickup truck in which the girls were riding was registered to Donald Friend.

Eyewitness reports said that the pickup left I-69 on the exit ramp headed north at a "fairly high rate of speed." The pickup then went out of control, went off the pavement onto the grass along the west side of the exit lane, crossed the eastbound lane of US6 and crashed into the side of a westbound semi. The pickup burst into flames and was dragged almost 400 feet before semi-driver Edward Evans of Napoleon, Ohio, could stop. He was not injuried.

The accident occurred at 7:17 a.m. and it took authorities some time to identify the victims due to the intensity of the crash.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted:

I write this as the School Superintendent, and I write at the direction of the Board of School Trustees of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District.

As per the minutes of the School Board's April 4, 1977, meeting, there was talk about the fine gesture made by you after the recent winter sports banquet in the Eastside High School Cafetorium when you gave the members of the Girls' Varsity Basketball Team giant individual pictures of themselves, as well as numerous other photographs you gave out at the same instant.

Speaking on behalf of the School Board, may I say that it was a very nice and very thoughtful thing that you did. Acts such as yours help people to keep faith in their fellowman.

Sincerely yours,
Kenneth L. Cole
School Superitendent

We appreciate the above acknowledgement from the board and the superintendent. We gave large "poster pix" of each starting player to that player (with one yet to go for Connie Oberlin), a set of the "poster pix" to Coach Bob Brown for the school, an 8x10 enlargement of the three all-star players and their trophies to those three, a set of some 21 photos from the Eastside-Leo regional game to each of the five starters, Coach Brown and assistant coach Melanie Myers, four or five color photos from the Eastside-Angola sectional win, a team photo to every member of the entire team and coaches and managers—and — a copy of each of the two issues of this paper which carried accounts of the gals' tourney success. —Ed.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Our 1976 fiscal year ended March 31, 1977. As we review the year's accomplishments, we are reminded of those who provided us with services to assist in our work of prevention and control of lung diseases.

The St. Joe News has been a tremendous help to our Lung Association in providing public awareness of our services. As a token of appreciation we are enclosing our certificate of recognition.

Thank you.

Very truly yours,
Clark E. Matson

To the Editor,

We moved to Spencerville the beginning of September last. We have regularly attended the United Methodist Church here and have found it to fully meet our needs.

All the attending members have been particularly friendly to us. The congregation is as one big family serving God. We at the U.M. Church are doing what we feel to be right.

As in America, if you don't vote, you shouldn't complain. If we ever see Mrs. Akey at church, we shall welcome her.

Kindergarten registration at Riverdale Elementary School Wednesday, April 13, brings with it requirements under Indiana law for immunzation of school children against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, rubella (German measles), and poliomyelitis. No child will be permitted to attend school for more than 30 days beyond date of enrollment if such immunization has not been completed or begun. A TB skin test is also required.

The April 13 meeting starts at 3:30 p.m. in the cafetorium.

EHS Baseball

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers baseball team plays its first games of the season Saturday with a double-header at Bellmont. The spring schedule runs through the May 30 sectional at DeKalb Central.

Two of last year's anchormen will be missing this year. Rick Rinard, shortstop, and Mike Mansfield, pitcher, graduated in 1976. To take Rick's place at shortstop, Coach Rex Bolinger plans to use Gary Rinard, a freshman and a good hitter, according to the coach.

The pitching staff will include Stan Hall, a lefty with a low 1.97 earned run average last year though having a 3-4 record. He also plays right field.

Jeff Hudson is also on the hurling staff and had a 3-4 record last year. And if the team runs into problems in the catching department, as occurred in the 1976 sectional when the Blazers lost a heartbreaker despite Jeff's inspiring efforts, he can switch to catcher.

Hudson will be starting first baseman when he does not have a pitching assignment.

Lance Billings rounds out the pitching staff and will be starting third baseman when not in a pitching role.

Veteran Brent Resor is the foundation of the catching staff with Doug Hall serving as backup. Brent can also play third.

In addition to Stan Hall, the outfield has Phil Staley in left and Chris Sipe in center. Both were .300 hitters in the 1976 summer campaign.

Home game season tickets will be sold this year for the first time. In the past voluntary donations were solicited from fans at games. However, increased costs in maintaining the entire athletic department brought the decision to charge admission.

Prices are $5 for adults and $3 for students, good for all 12 home games and all reserve games. Price at the gate is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students.

The probable starting lineup for Saturday's first game is: Staley lf, Sipe cf, Buell rf, Stan Hall p, Billings 3b, Rinard ss, Tony Salinas 2b, Hudson 1b and Resor c.

The entire squad, position and year are as follows:

Stan Hall p-rf (12); Brent Resor c (12); Chris Sipe cf (12); Phil Staley lf (12); Jeff Hudson 1b-p (11); Tony Salinas 2b (11); Lance Billings 3b-p (10); Rex Buell rf-3b (10); Don Delong p-1b (10); Mark Haberkorn 2b-p (10); Kevin Likes of (10); Doug Hall c (9); Wes Hantz of (9); Gary Kaiser p (9); Rick Keener 1b (9); Jim Kimmel of (9); Joe Kimmel of (9); Gary Rinard ss (9); Sonny Salinas if (9); Chris Wood p (9).

TO THE EDITOR—

Sir:

I am sending a check to pay for my paper. This is for 1976-1977. I sent you a check to pay for 1974-75. You didn't change the date on the paper. I called you once about it. You said it's O.K. You didn't get around to changing it.

I want to thank you so much for printing the letter I sent a couple of weeks ago.

One lady gave me quite a lecture for having it printed in the paper for others to read.

I said the Methodist Church had in the paper their ads. I thought why couldn't I voice against them?

Mrs. Edith Akey

Expressing your feelings and opinions openly and forthrightly is what "freedom of speech" is all about. Anyone who criticizes you or "lectures" you for having made a public statement simply does not understand the meaning of that basic freedom. It should be noted that, in your first letter, you did not say you are "against" the Methodist church. What you expressed was your concern about the way certain things are being done by the church. And if other church members cannot accept someone's differing opinion, there is reason to question whether the church is doing any real good for that person.

Your concern is the same concern felt by thousands of other Christians in all denominatiens; they fear the results of constant change, constant efforts to make the church relevant to society. Their concern is well-founded. The effort should be to make society relevant to the church. After all, the Christian message is of "an unchanging God."

Once again, thank you for your witness and your courage. But we regret that, obviously, some "battle lines" have been drawn. —Ed.

EHS Baseball

The baseball season began for the DeKalb Eastside Blazers Saturday when they traveled to Decatur to face Bellmont in a doubleheader.

After dropping the opener 6-3, it appeared the locals would gain a split as they went into the last half of the final inning of the second game with a 1-0 lead. But a walk, an error, a sacrifice and an intentional walk, setting up a force play anywhere, didn't work out that way. A single tied the game and then a squeeze bunt brought in the winning run for Bellmont.

Stan Hall and Lance Billings looked good in the first game despite the loss. And Jeff Hudson gave up only 3 hits in the second game, going all the way.

A bright spot was the Blazers pickoff play. During the afternoon, the Blazer moundsmen picked off two runners at first and one at second. Coach Rex Bolinger has done an outstanding job in that department, last year and already this year, guiding the whole infield into a well-executed pattern for such pickoffs. Such defensive maneuvers are necessary to keep the Blazers in the game, inasmuch as they have not particularly had a reputation for booming bats and lots of runs.

Tuesday afternoon, the Blazers gained a 3-2 win over Fremont. "Hud" was on the mound again, and again gave up only 3 hits.

Once again a pickoff play helped. With a runner on second early in the game, "Hud" whirled and threw to shortstop Gary Rinard. It was close but the runner was called safe. Before the next pitch, "Hud" again whirled and threw to the shortstop, and that time "they got 'im."

Charles Curie Named One Of 'Outstanding'

Charles Guy Curie, son of MM Harold Curie of R1 Saint Joe, has been named an "Outstanding Young Men of America" award recipient for 1977.

The award program is sponsored by the United States Jaycees in conjunction with numerous other civic and service organizations throughout the nation.

Geared to the accomplishments of young men age 21 to 26, the program examines a man's voluntary service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation.

Complete biographical information about the local winner will appear in the annual awards publication.

20 Attend FB District Meeting

20 DeKalb County Farm Bureau women traveled to Columbia City to attend a District II meeting Monday, April 4. It was held at the Whitley County 4-H Community Center.

Mrs. Richard Strayer gave a very impressive devotional message with a story and a song entitled, "Three Rusty Nails."

The main speaker at the morning session was Gene Wilson, Farm Bureau radio editor, whose theme was "How Do We Tell Our Story?" Topics discussed were food, conservation, farm exports and land-use planning.

Mrs. Guy Gross gave a short talk, "Off the Cuff."

Jim Barnett, National Resources Department, talked on "Our Water—How Clean?"

Crafts were shown by Mrs. Carl Perkins of DeKalb County and Mrs. Russell Neadstine of Allen County.

Those attending from DeKalb County were Marian Eck, Irene Nelson, Mazie Myers, Arcile Skelly, Kennis Kanaga, Mildred Jarrett, Retha Grable, Mary Carpenter, Adeline Stucky, Jane King, Esther Miller, Ann Sherwood, Edith Wilhelm, Mary Noel, Bernice Wilder, Lola Schlatter, Helen Wagner, Agnes Watson, Edna Perkins and Arco Goller.

WIFF Radio Has 10th Birthday

WIFF Radio of Auburn observed its 10th birthday Sunday, April 10. It was on that date in 1967 that WIFF-FM began operations under manager Wayne Paradise.

Located at 105.5 on the FM dial, WIFF-FM now offers a schedule of music, news, local sports coverage and religious programing.

WIFF-AM began broadcasting at a later date at 1570 on the AM dial. The AM station offers a schedule of country music, live disc jockeys spinning the platters for the most part, news and programs of special interest.

The station has a conscientious staff and management; an outstanding and vari-talented crew of disc pockeys; dedicated sports and news directors; and an owner, Wayne Paradise, who is motivated by the desire to bring wholesome radio entertainment and public service to listeners in this area.

In recent months, Mr. Paradise has acquired new equipment to keep pace with the times in broadcasting techniques and to fulfill his intent from the start to provide his employees with "the best there is."

Recent remodeling to provide more offices for the staff will reportedly be followed by an addition to the building to provide a reception area and conference facilities for the staff, business clients and the visiting public.

Having its periods of "ups and downs" as does everyone else, WIFF Radio at Auburn has still managed to grow. The past ten years have seen great progress for DeKalb County's AM-FM radio station.

Jim Norris, Chuck Loucks Serve As Instructors At Firemen's School

Steve Monroe provided the News Office with information concerning a "fire school" held Saturday at Auburn. It was an all-day affair with some 58 county firemen.

Two members of the Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department served on the instructional staff. Jim Norris and Chuck Loucks demonstrated protective clothing and its care.

Other subjects covered by instructors from other departments included air packs and maintenance, public relations and fire prevention, communications, extinguishers, ladder testing, and records.

The training session was held in conjunction with a new certification program. State Fire Marshall Bill Goodwin and Chief Training Officer Cooney Tucker addressed the group.

New state regulations for certification of a fireman require a specified amount of training in each of four levels of firefighter rank: probationary, second class, first class, and master fireman.

Blazer trackmen won a double dual meet Monday, downing Fremont 80-46 and Angola 70-57.

Bill Sentenright, Larry McKown, Doug Hose and Jim Burns were double winners in the Fremont match. Seltenright took the 100 yard dash and 220; McKown shotput and discus; Hose high and low hurdles; and Burns two-mile and high jump.

Neal Haverstock won the 880, Butch McBride the mile and the half-mile relay team of Haverstock, Ned Powell and Seltenright took that event.

Students Use Their Ideas To Promote National Library Week

The Eastside Library Club would like to tell readers a little bit about National Library Week. It is sponsored by the National Book Committee, Inc., in cooperation with the American Library Association.

The ALA was founded in 1897 as an organization to "promote library service and librarianship." Its membership is made up of more than 25,000 librarians, trustees and friends of libraries from the United States, Canada and over 50 foreign countries.

The NBC's purpose in brief is to keep books free, make them widely available and encourage people to read them.

Plans for National Library Week were first announced in April of 1957, and the first year's program culminated in March of 1958. The program was thoroughly evaluated in 1961 by both the NBC and the ALA and will continue through the years.

The Eastside Library Club is sponsoring National Library Week with many creative ideas. A tape, advertising National Library Week, was sent to radio station WIFF to get more people involved in their local library. The tape will be played at various times throughout the week of April 17-23.

A WOWO Breakfast has been planned to be played during the Little Red Barn show. The menu is Fictional Fruit Juice, Card Catalog Cornflakes, Short Story Sausage, Encyclopedia Eggs, Tons of Reading Toast and Illustrated Instant Coffee.

Library Club members also prepared a hall display, using the slogan, "World Travel Through Books." The display consists of a world map with book covers about books around the world. A bulletin board poster was made for the library with the slogan, "Free People—Free Libraries." It portrays Uncle Sam pointing at the viewer with the slogan and the date of National Library Week, April 17-23.

Library Club members are using their heads to make games and puzzles to have on hand in the library during National Library Week. News releases have been planned and prepared for the school paper and local newspapers.

Although many libraries make use of commercially prepared materials to promote National Library Week, the Eastside club members have relied on their own creative ideas on how to promote National Library Week to the public.

The library is an important place for teachers and students. Many people come to study, to read for recreation, or to research in current magazines.

"Libraries are something else!!! We, the People of Eastside Library Club, urge the public to get involved in your libraries today, and make use of your local library facilities."

If you're not careful your CB antenna could put you in touch with a lot more than you bargained for.

Unfortunately, your CB base station antenna will not only help you reach more people, it could also put you in touch with our power lines.

And the slightest contact between you, your antenna and our lines could be fatal.

So, before you put up your antenna, here are a few suggestions you should follow.

First, we recommend you have a professional do it for you.

Okay, if you're determined to do it yourself, look out for power lines. The ones attached to poles. And the ones attached to your house.

If you can't tell a power line from a phone line, don't experiment. Steer clear.

Then make sure you locate your antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. Which means, a 30-ft. high antenna should be 45 feet away from all power lines in all directions.

That way, if it falls during construction, or gets blown down during a storm, it won't hit any lines and endanger you or your neighbors.

Trying to carry an antenna, climb a ladder and keep your balance all at the same time is risky business, too.

Wait for a calm day, assemble the antenna where you intend to put it up, be sure to ground the antenna properly and get somebody to help you.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Maybe it was supposed to be a "letter to the editor," 'though there was no indication on the envelope nor on the letter itself from Vice-President Walter F. Mondale. But anyhow, I received a form letter from him asking for a donation to the Democrat Party from "Democrats like yourself."

I think somebody played a joke on him, giving my name to someone somewhere along the line to put my name down as a potential donor.

I've been toying with the notion to send a $10 donation, just to help keep the two-party system alive. But I hesitate because it has been the Democrat majority in both houses of Congress which has instituted "reforms" in procedures and election processes which have given a distinct advantage to incumbent candidates (which just happen to be majority Democrats) and have endangered the two-party system.

The "postcard registration" "reform" is being pushed by President Jimmy Carter and by most Democrats; it would get out more voters and surveys have shown that at least 6 out of 10 of those new voters would vote Democrat.

Another thing which makes me hesitate in making a donation is one of Mr. Mondale's comments in the letter:

"Contributions - of whatever size - from many, many people - are the basis of our party's strength."

Baloney. The basis of the Democrat Party's financial strength is organized labor leadership which uses funds collected from their union members to support Democrat candidates 9 to 1 over Republican candidates. There may be "many, many people" involved in a sense. But without their permission.

The truth of the matter is, in election financing business and industry have been hog-tied while organized labor does as it pleases. And this has come about ONLY because Democrats have catered to organized labor.

If your desire is to contribute to the fund-raising, you can send your donation to "Dollars For Democrats—Indiana," Box 825, Indianapolis 46206.

A "letter to the editor" of mine, appearing last week in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette and concerning "Moonies" (the name given those who follow a cultist named Moon), brought an immediate phone call from a Fort Wayne man whose daughter was "captured" by the "Moonie" cult while she was in New York City attending college. A three-year period was covered before the daughter accepted her parents' urging to come home for a visit. A former "Moonie" had been contacted to serve as a "de-programmer" when the daughter returned home. The daughter insisted from the start that she would not change her outlook. But time and patience eventually brought the daughter to begin thinking for herself again and "back to normal."

The same day the man called to thank me for my comments in the Jornal-Gazette, his daughter was in a nearby town helping to "de-program" another person who had been caught up in the "Moonie" trance.

I've said it before, and I'll say it again—when we small-towners think that the troubles are in the big-big cities and not in our own area, we are only deceiving ourselves.

What prompted my letter to the Journal-Gazette was an editorial which ridiculed a judge who had given five 20 to 26 year olds to their parents for a brief period of time in order to "de-program" the five "Moonies." The editorial said the action violated the offsprings' constitutional right to choose their own religion. I said the editorial was way off because it didn't recognize that "choosing" to be a "Moonie" resulted in the person's inability to make any further decisions. Freedom of religion has been carried to an unjustified extreme when the Judeo-Christian heritage of the United States is overlooked by those who zealously pursue the matter of civil rights.

I goofed in the write-up about the Rainbow Farm Center Appreciation Day program. It was held at the Saint Joe Conservation Club, not at the Spencerville Community Club.

And Don Miller didn't get a half-ton of Migro seed corn as I printed it. He received a half-ton of fertilizer.

Did you see where the wife of Israel's prime minister was fined $27,000 by a Tel Aviv district court? The fine was for having illegal American bank accounts.

Somehow that situation strikes me as being as illogical as the situations in the United States where corporations and individuals are being fined for making "illegal" election campaign contributions. They're "illegal" only because we are on a witch hunt under the guise of making those elected and appointed to office more "honest."

If the Congress has cut off the import of Rhodesian chrome because of Rhodesia's failure to respect basic human rights, are we now going to cut off aid to Israel because the prime minister's wife had "illegal" bank accounts here? Doesn't she have a right to bank where she wants to?

Republicans were accused of condoning double standards in the Watergate affair. But I tell you, nothing smacks more of double standards than for President Carter and the Democrat-controlled Congress to clamp down on Rhodesia because of failure to protect human rights and at the same time have Senator Hubert Humphrey and other Democrats now actively pushing to have trade relations reinstituted with Cuba.

Fidel Castro is no respecter of human rights. Why does he rate favorable consideration and another nation doesn't?

We're trading with Russia—but who is going to say human rights are protected there?

Why don't we crucify some Democrats as we have Republicans in these instances of glaring double-talk, deception and hypocrisy???

A brief news release from the Indiana State Teachers Association says that all matters involved in a lawsuit against the School Town of Highland, Indiana, have been resolved. The lawsuit came over the discharge of teachers during the illegal strike of September, 1973. Two teachers have asked to be allowed to apply for positions in the school system again, and the school administration says they will be employed if positions are available next year.

I point this out because it illustrates how the deck is "stacked" against school corporations in disputes over the discharge of teachers.

The ISTA news release refers to an "illegal" strike. Yet, the teachers dismissed because of the illegal strike are still able to get consideration for re-employment.

Personally, I wouldn't want 'em. Whether legal or illegal, strikes by public employees are not fair to the general public. And especially inappropriate is a strike by teachers, because they are supposed to set good examples for the young people they lead.

I think one of the saddest occurrences is that related to a photo on the front page of the News-Sentinel Monday night of this week. The picture shows laughing and smiling teachers carrying signs while picketing. And down in the left hand corner is the face of a young, innocent five- or six-year-old having a great time as a participant in the picket line.

—And we wonder what's wrong with our kids. And some of those teachers in the photo have probably commented at one time or another about the increasing problem of discipline in the schools.

The scare being thrown into the American public about gas taxes going way up and the idea that gas will be $2 a gallon by 1990—all these things may be true. But they are being lifted "out of context"—that is, nothing said to point out how much OTHER things will go up, including wages and salaries.

If gas is $2 a gallon by 1990, the family now having a $12,000 income will have an income of $20,000 or more with the present rate of inflation and present rate of pay increases going along with inflation.

Don't get me wrong; I don't like the idea of having another 50 cents added to the gas tax. But I also don't like paying 65 cents a gallon RIGHT NOW. I don't like the price of ANY home-heating energy source RIGHT NOW—simply because I think the price is out of line with reason. But we Americans are asking for it, because we demand what we want RIGHT NOW.

I think it is deceptive to make frightening statements as are now being made, especially by those (meaning Democrat leadership) who have promised so much to so many and have fulfilled those promises having to do with materialistic wealth. But those promises were misleading because they did not point out the possibilities to be faced under an unrealistic desire to "get." Now we are paying the price of the "something for nothing" idea which began in my lifetime under Franklin D. Roosevelt and has continued under Democrat-controlled Congresses ever since. People simply cannot receive more than they are worth, generally speaking, and still expect the general economic structure to remain stable and strong.

DeKalb County Preschool For Handicapped Info

—by Mike Graham
Acting Director, phnoe 925-3865
(first part of a series)

In the short history of the DeKalb County Preschool for the Handicapped, the lives of many children and their families have been touched by its services. For some children, their experiences with the preschool will be highly significant, For others the benefits will be more limited. But one thing can be said with certainty: for each child receiving services from the school, there are others who could be but are not.

While there may be several reasons for this problem, it has become apparent that one of them is because many families who would appreciate such services are not aware that they exist. Or they misunderstand what kind of handicap might qualify their child to be enrolled in the school. It is with this problem in mind that this series is being written.

The DeKalb County Parents Group for Handicapped Children, Inc., is the legal name of the organization governing the school. The agency is approved by the Indiana State Department of Mental Health to provide for the delivery of services to children with one or more developmental disabilities.

A developmental disability is one attributable to mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy or other neurological condition which requires treatment similar to the other conditions listed. More simply, it is any disability which constitutes a significant handicap to the child.

While the diagnosis of some of these disabilities must come from a physician or other medical professional, others may be diagnosed by persons with different training. Therefore, a parent should not be reluctant to contact the preschool because they have no diagnosis from a doctor. If there is a question in the parent's mind concerning a disability, it would be wise to consult with a physician. However, the parent may wish to contact the preschool directly and are welcome to do so.

FFA Winners Go To Area Con't

Seven DeKalb Eastside High School FFA members will represent DeKalb County at the Area Crops Judging Contest to be held April 23.

The Blazers earned the honor in the County Crops Judging competition. Crops judging requires seed and plant identification, grain grading and completion of a written quiz. A total of 900 points can be scored in competition.

Dean Halsey is coach of the crops judging team.

Little Hoosiers' Exhibit At State Capitol

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers recently completed a project and had it placed on display in the Rotunda at the State Capitol Building in Indianapolis, according to an announcement by Riverdale Principal Charles Ray. Donna Jewel is sponsor of the group and is a fourth grade teacher at the school.

The project involved research into legislative proceedings for bridges which have been contracted for as well as built for the immediate area. Information was gathered for the Sio, Dills-Rhoades, Spencerville and Hadsall bridges.

The exhibit was among 20 to be placed in the Capitol Building by Little Hoosier and Indiana Junior Historical Society chapters from over the state.

All projects were placed in Indianapolis to help celebrate the fact that the general session of the state government is meeting for the 100th time.

Local historical society members had the opportunity to serve as pages in the Senate and House of Representatives. Jane Hollabaugh, a Little Hoosier state officer, served as page for Norman Gerig March 23. Ron Schmucker served for Woodrow Wilson March 22. Doug Jewel and Cheri Schmucker served for Mr. Gerig March 23.

Kevin White had previously been a page and assisted with the set-up of all exhibits.

The 'Big Tax' Energy 'Solution' - or Dragging Our Feet On Solar Energy - or Keep Government Out Of It

The solutions to some of our pressing economic and ecological problems, now being discussed on almost a daily basis, have me confused in some respects. Either I am terribly dense or those offering certain solutions are guilty of double-talk.

At the top of the list of puzzling solutions is the one actively supported by President Jimmy Carter that, in order to cut down on the consumption of gasoline, a big tax should be charged to those individuals who purchase "gas guzzlers" in the future — meaning those who purchase "big" cars. When that suggestion first came out, I wondered if someone had really thought the idea through before expressing it. Why? Because the "gas guzzlers" (the vehicles operating in the 10-miles-per-gallon or less range) would include the thousands of pickup trucks now traveling the roads. They are used not only for personal, farm and commercial purposes but also to carry the thousands of pickup campers owned by thousands of average citizens and used for recreational purposes.

How long do you suppose the average citizen would stand still for a $500 tax on their pickup? How many members of Congress will want to touch that one, even with a ten-foot pole?

With the dependence upon the automobile for expanding the recreation industry (that means jobs), the big-tax idea is contrary to our primary purpose economically—to maintain present jobs and create more jobs. With a large segment of our economic structure dependent on the manufacture AND USE of motor vehicles, how can you propose a tax intended to cut travel and still propose to increase the number of jobs? If the American public quits traveling, or rather cuts down on travel, the vast recreation industry will find itself with the need for fewer jobs. Fewer travelers means fewer people needed to provide for the needs of travelers.

Along with the big-tax on "gas guzzlers" came the idea that those who drive compact cars getting high gas mileage would get rebates because they would be helping to conserve energy.

That one hits home for me. I wouldn't mind that idea if they make it retroactive. We started driving VW's in 1961. For 15 years we conserved energy, as did a good many other Americans who got what they wanted in economy cars from foreign manufacturers. It wouldn't be fair to reward only future purchasers of compacts and leave out those who have been doing their part for quite some time.

It seems to me that we have a double standard popping up in President Carter's idea, like so:

"You should cut down on your consumption of gas by driving a small car. It's against the best interests of the nation to drive a 'gas guzzler'.

"BUT — — if you can afford a 'gas guzzler,' it's all right to drive one. However, we are going to make some money off you for doing it."

Isn't that the same as saying something is wrong — but if you have money, it isn't wrong?

Republicans and big business are supposed to be the awful people who practice double standards; and here we have a Bible-totin' President seeming to accept a double standard idea. My gosh, he and his party used accusations of double standards to win votes against the GOP. But now, a double standard suddenly becomes a virtue!

It's not fair to criticize without offering suggestions. I have one suggestion in particular. It is this: cancel plans to set up a multi-million or billion dollar fund for solar energy research under government sponsorship. Instead, turn private enterprise loose on the problem and let competition, the heart and core of the American success story, seek the answer.

If we run out of gas, we run out of gas. Let's face it. But let's also face the fact that a government program has never yet solved one single problem in our society. Government programs are the most inefficient tool available; they always cost more and provide less.

The sun is shining every day. It can run automobiles if competitive research is given a chance. If we can put a man on the moon, if we can take pictures of Mars with a space satellite clear-to-hell-and-gone out there in space, why can't we run an automobile just by having the sun shine on it?

My answer is: we can. But keep the government out of it.

P.S. I saw a model car run when a flashlight shone on it in a science demonstration at Riverdale High School — twenty-five years ago!

The rebate faced strong opposition in the Senate, even from the President's own party members. The Congressman said that "taxpayers have long been far ahead of the Administration and Congress in their concern about inflation and its impact on their family pocketbook. . . .How can we reduce inflation when the Congress has already approved a budget deficit of nearly $70 billion for fiscal 1977? How can we reduce inflation when Congress in two supplemental appropriations bills voted to add 3,000 more federal employees to the payroll? How can we reduce inflation when the Congress takes a 28% pay raise without even taking a vote?"

Youth Apprec'n Day April 26

The second annual Youth Appreciation Day, under the auspices of the DeKalb County Mental Health Association, will be held Tuesday, April 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the Auburn First United Methodist Church at the east edge of Auburn. The program will be a panel discussion involving four DeKalb Central High School students and four adults.

Dr. Lawrence Hess, chairman of the Education Committee of the county association, says the meeting is open to the pulbic and both youth and adults are urged and invited to attend.

The topic to be discussed is "Community Involvement: for a Healthier and Humane America."

An opportunity will be given to those attending the meeting to participate in a discussion period following the main presentation by the panel. This is the local mental health chapter's way of making citizens aware that America's health is one of the most crucial social problems facing the nation today.

—that Congressman Dan Quayle says the Congress would be a more representative body of the nation if it had fewer lawyers and more businessmen and women serving in the House and Senate. Quayle is a newspaperman and a lawyer. He noted that there are 291 lawyers in the House and Senate but only 25 farmers and 142 with a business occupation. He also noted that there are only 17 women in the House and none in the Senate. Quayle also recently called for a return to the original part-time status of members of Congress under the nation's forefathers' concept of citizen-legislator type of representation. Quayle said the "full time" legislator ought to be eliminated.

—that General Tel recently honored 41 employees in the Angola District for their many years of accident-free job performance. Most notable were Frank Chrzan with 36 years of accident-free work, Jim Ryan 31 years, Wendel Hicks and Willard Maugherman 28 years, Mort Meek 26 years, Ray Moughler 25 years, Ben Ballard 24 years and Bill Freed 19 years.

—that a study of Indiana union contracts shows a rising number of cost-of-living increase provisions, making it difficult for the employer to predict labor costs in preparing plans for the future.

—that an Indiana Festival Map can be seen at the News Office. It shows some 155 local festivals throughout the state for those who wish to plan travel vacations and weekends.

—that Congressman Dan Quayle opposes looser food stamp regulations and is co-sponsoring a bill to close loopholes and provide comprehensive reforms in the food stamp program. The bill is to counteract a Senate proposal which would eliminate the requirement that food stamp recipients purchase stamps. The Senate bill would provide free stamps and add $1 billion to $2 billion in new tax costs.

—that DeKalb Central scored 63 points to Huntertown's 49 and DeKalb Eastside's 25 in a junior high track meet Monday.

N'eastern Center Board Meets

Riley Case presided with nine members present. Howard Palmetier from the State Department of Mental Health attended.

The board passed a resolution to purchase the property at 912 West Avenue in Kendallville to be used as administrative offices, subject to zoning board approval.

Administrator Dale Cochard reported on the progress of the conversion from Oaklawn to Northeastern. The mental health facility currently maintained at Kendallville under the "Northeastern" name has been under the management and operations supervision of Oaklawn Psychiatric Center at Elkhart for the past several years.

However, effective July 1, 1977, Northeastern will operate independently of Oaklawn. This is a step in establishing a four-county comprehensive mental health center. Application has been made for a federal grant for the proposed four-county facility. This effort has been in progress for several years.

The next meeting of the four-county board will be held May 24 at Tri-State University at Angola.

EHS Baseball

Pop flies caused trouble for the DeKalb Eastside Blazer baseball team Saturday and Monday.

In the first game of a twin bill at Zollner Stadium against Concordia Saturday, a pop foul fly at third base was lost in the sun. Concordia then took advantage of the opportunity and scored four runs, leading to a 7-5 win. Concordia took the second game 11-4.

A pop fly near home plate Monday afternoon was missed in a game against Lakeland and two runs scored. Another error in the following inning resulted in two more unearned runs to give Lakeland an 8-5 win.

A contributing factor in the missed popup in the Lakeland game was a gusty breeze blowing storm clouds in from the north and west midway through the game. It made the popup tough to handle.

But the Blazers got on the winning track again Tuesday at Butler in a game originally set to be played at Prairie Heights. Rain up north made their diamond to wet to play on, so the game was moved to the Eastside diamond.

Stan Hall and Jeff Hudson gave up only 2 hits in the 4-2 win. Both also hit home runs.

The reserves, after being defeated by Fairview, Ohio, last Friday at the local diamond, bounced back Tuesday with an 8-2 win over Lakeland.

DAR Meets

At a recent meeting of the John Houlton Chapter DAR of Garrett, the American History Month essay contest winners were honored. Five students and eight teachers were special guests of the chapter along with parents of the students.

The theme for the contest was "Battles of the Revolution." First place in fifth grade went to Brenda Graber of Waterloo with the topic, "Defeat of Saratoga." Phil Weck is her teacher. Sixth grade winner was Kimberly McClellan of East Auburn School. She chose "Battle of Bunker Hill' and her teacher is Carol Brinkman.

Steven Lengacher of Riverdale, whose teacher is Lori Fox, told of the "Battle of Saratoga" and Lesanne Banta, a pupil of Mrs. Knauer at McKinney School chose the "Battle of Yorktown" as her topic.

Contestants were judged on accuracy and originality. They received History Medals and DAR Certificates of Award.

'Star' Article Foments Unrest At Eastside With Falsehoods

Facts Do Not Support Suggestion That EHS Board Acted Improperly In Dismissals

—By The Editor

If any Eastside school patrons plan to attend Monday's school board meeting all fired up over a column written by Dave Kurtz and appearing in the Auburn Evening Star Tuesday of this week—fired up, that is, to give the school board hell— they will be acting on misstatements, innuendoes and deception.

In a column headed, "Answers on Eastside firings," the writer fails to answer the questions presented in the column in a way which gives the reader a balanced presentation. As is the case in most writings about teacher-school administration matters in many, many newspapers, school administration is put "on the spot," on the defensive in handling teacher dismissals. It is a fundamental of not only technical law but also general fairness in all matters that an accused party is innocent until proved guilty. With school administration in teacher matters, the opposite is true: administration is guilty until it proves its innocence.

Mr. Kurtz has for some time been concerned about executive sessions held by the eastern board. He mentioned the matter in a column a couple of weeks ago, noting that anyone attending a recent meeting had to wait some 2 hours and 25 minutes while the board was in executive session in order to be in on whatever might transpire when the board returned to open session.

Having gone through the wait-in-the-hall bit myself on several occasions a few years back when a representative group sought to get the new junior-senior high school located centrally and convenient to all rather than on the "postage stamp" site it is now located on, I know what frustrations there are in waiting, waiting, waiting and wondering, wondering, wondering what is being said in the closed session.

However, I also know that an agenda is prepared some five days prior to a regular board meeting. If an individual or group has not made advance arrangements to be placed on the agenda, their attendance at a board meeting for a specific purpose other than agenda matters comes under the heading, "And any other business that may come before the board." And that item is last.

If the board has a meeting prepared on the basis of known subject matter and schedules its total meeting on the basis of known items, it is not obligated to disrupt its schedule simply because someone attends the meeting concerning another matter.

As a newspaperman, Mr. Kurtz is well aware of the importance of planning, scheduling and meeting a deadline. A school board meeting is not necessarily a "deadline" matter, but it does involve planning and scheduling.

In addition, the lengthy sessions are usually related to teacher evaluation at this time of year, though such evaluation can come up at any time if a problem arises. And the evaluation involves participation by school principals and their assistant; the board does not deliberate such matters on its own accord and without input from those responsible for the administration of school matters.

Mr. Kurtz said this week he had two women call him expressing their concern over the dismissal of three Eastside high school faculty members. One said she called all seven board members and got no response except that one said he thought "we made a mistake" in the dismissals. The other woman said one of the three involved is an "excellent and dedicated" teacher."

I asked only one board member if they had received any phone calls. The answer was that one call had been received, from a woman, and the caller's questions were answered. I went no further; what Mr. Kurtz was told appears to be in error on that point.

If a board member said "we made a mistake," that is one individual opinion from the board and does NOT mean that THE BOARD thinks it made a mistake.

In addition, there is the practical side of the matter: board decisions are not always unanimous. Someone on the board may differ with the majority view; however, that does NOT make the board decision an "error."

In supposedly answering the question as to why the dismissals were made, Mr. Kurtz refers to the teachers' union "belief" that the board is required by law to give written reasons to the teachers.

Why didn't Mr. Kurtz check the law to find out, instead of referring to a union "belief," thus casting a shadow over the school board's actions.

The Star article says that those "close to the situation believe the firings stem from the teachers' participation in a boycott of football practice....." last fall.

Number one — the boycott was of ALL extra-curricular activities; football just happened to be in season and gained the most attention. Number two — the football assistant coaches ostracized head coach Al Peugeot (he continued to coach the football team though supporting the teachers' demands for higher pay). He was "shut off" also by other faculty members—not all, but other—thereafter, to the point where he submitted his resignation weeks ago "for the good of the school and the students."

Number three—and this is one that Mr. Kurtz obviously did not investigate (he could have called the News Office but that would be too much)—the most important factor is public opinion. While there were those patrons who supported the teachers last fall in the boycott (for the most part parents of athletes contacted by the teachers to foment unrest), a large segment of the taxpaying public had the general outlook: "Fire 'em all!" This was not expressed by unreasonable citizens in the community; it was expressed by good, solid citizens who are fed up with being the "silent partner" in education, the one who foots the bill while the teachers get the pay and rule the roost. This dissatisfaction is apparent not just in Riverdale area patrons; it comes from Butler, too. I have heard it in direct conversation.

Mr. Kurtz said he "was told" (by whom???) that the teachers involved in probation warnings following the board's teacher evaluation discussions recently with school principals—he was told the teachers did not receive these letters.

A call to the superintendent by me brought the information that two teachers were sent letters related to their probation and that he knew from school sources the letters were received.

Mr. Kurtz' reference to the fact that the teachers were not given a chance to resign (to "save face" you might call it) is totally misleading. He said, "Often in such situations, teachers are given the chance to resign before they are fired."

FACT—the superintendent is required by law to send letters of dismissal by registered mail; he has the signed receipts from the three affected teachers.

But more importantly, IT IS UNLAWFUL FOR THE SUPERINTENDENT OR A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT TO TELL A TEACHER PRIOR TO SENDING DISMISSAL NOTICES THAT DISMISSAL IS FORTHCOMING. SUCH PROCEDURE IS CONSIDERED TO BE "TEACHER HARASSMENT" AND IS SUBJECT TO CHARGES OF "UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICES."

The fact that resignation cancels a teacher's chance to appeal proposed dismissal is not the main point. But mentioning it certainly puts the school board "on the spot." Mr. Kurtz doesn't know what he is talking about.

The eastern school board has made more concessions than I would like to see, in some respects. Mr. Kurtz mentions one. The board has given teachers the right to a hearing before an impartial arbitrator whose decision is final. But Mr. Kurtz does not point this out in a way to pointedly give the board credit, even though he does say that "most contracts call for the right to a hearing before the school board."

Submitting the decision to an "impartial" arbitrator means the board gives up its responsibility to exercise its judgment in these matters. And we citizens elect school board members to make decisions. We do NOT have any say-so, then, when a matter is turned over to a third party whose decision is final. The wrong thing about such "binding arbitration" is the fact that public matters are taken out of the hands of the public.

Also to be remembered is the fact that these third party "fact finders" (as in last year's salary dispute) are hardly "impartial." As the school attorney pointed out last October 4 at a school board meeting attended by a large crowd, fact finders are educators; the commission to hear charges of unfair labor practices is predominantly educators. The "deck is stacked" against school administrations right from the start because educators are involved in hearing educators' complaints. "Impartial" is hardly the proper adjective to apply here.

Mr. Kurtz closes his column with a statement: "It may be premature to demand that the three be re-hired, since we don't know if the board had good reasons to fire them or not. .... It would not be wrong to ask the board to account for its actions, and let the public judge for itself."

If those words are intended to suggest a "fair" approach to the situation, they fail to do so. Mr. Kurtz makes too many comments in the entire article condemning the school board to allow the feeling that he is willing to be open-minded.

The school board does not have the responsibility to "account for its actions" in this matter. It has already accounted for its actions by investigating through teacher evaluation sessions with school administrators. Does anyone in the eastern school district think that Connie Hollabaugh, or Reynold Johnson, or Vaughn Billings, or Norman Kinsey, or Lynn Fuller, or Earle Kelsey, or John McClellan—that any of those people are out to "get" a teacher or teachers for other than strong, logical, reasonable complaints? Does anyone in the eastern school district think that these people—these friends and neighbors who take on a thankless job—are functioning for any reason other than their concern about the quality of our school system? I don't. Though I do not agree with their decisions and actions at times, I do not believe that this board is acting on any motivation other than the desire to provide good teachers, adequate pay, and an adequate educational program for our kids.

Eastside has a bad reputation in a large part of the state. It has been stated to me by more than one teacher that we are looked upon as the last place to go to seek a teaching position. "If you can't find anything anywhere else, try Eastside," is the way it was stated to me.

The inference is that our school administration is the reason. I challenge that outlook. It was not school administration that undertook an immoral, if not illegal, boycott of extra-curricular activities last fall. It was not school administration that had incorrect financial statements on the ability of the school district to raise teachers' pay beyond a limited level last fall. It was not school administration which refused to associate with those with whom it disagreed last fall.

It was teachers.

In my book, whatever disfavor Eastside has gained in the eyes of other Indiana communities and other teachers lies at the feet of a number of our junior-senior high school faculty, predominantly young teachers, who have been sold a "bill of goods" by their so-called "representatives" who are more accurately called agitators.

The younger generation of teachers has declared in recent years their desire to teach students to think for themselves. Unfortunately, by their own gullibility and unwillingness to seek the facts, they have served as the poorest example evident today of "think for yourself."

If Dave Kurtz of the Auburn Evening Star was at the October 4 school board meeting last year, he has forgotten that every accusation made against the school board in the salary dispute—EVERY accusation— was shown to be false.

It should be noted that ALL teachers are not participating in disruptive tactics. For instance, last fall when the teacher boycott began, a number of students were considering their own boycott—by not going to school—to show their displeasure with teacher tactics. A teacher discouraged them.

Thus, at the same time that the teacher-negotiator spokesman was publicly promoting a boycott by teachers, the president of the classroom teachers association admonished students not to disrupt their educational process.

Guess which one had the interests and welfare of the students in mind, first and foremost.

There ARE some level heads in teaching. But they're too busy TEACHING to get involved in union-activist efforts, those efforts bringing little respect in the minds of others outside this area.

Again—if you're ready to go to Monday's school board meeting "loaded for bear" and ready to nail the school board to the cross because of what you have heard including the Star article, just remember—the public was "used" last year in an effort to embarrass the school board and administrators of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District. Once again false statements, incomplete information and innuendo are being used to make an issue which should not be an issue.

Should the school board have the power and right to make faculty changes without being put "on the spot" unfairly?

The answer is obvious.

Community Club In Fund Drive

The Spencerville Community Club is currently conducting a fund-raising drive to help reduce the balance remaining on the building-real estate mortgage.

The old Community Building, formerly the Spencer Township gym, was destroyed by fire in January of 1970. Since that time a $50,000 investment in a new building and grounds, kitchen and dining facilities, a large indoor recreation area, a baseball diamond, a lighted outdoor basketball court and a large parking lot have been constructed.

Over the years, profits from festivals, dinners and renting the building have gradually reduced the debt to the current status of $13,564.99. Contributions in the amount of nearly $1,000 have been received by the club during the current drive.

Those who wish to contribute may mail their donations to: Spencerville Community Club, Building Fund, P.O. Box 21, Spencerville, Indiana 46788.

Public Meeting On Sewage Plant Involves Saint Joe, Spencerville

A public hearing will be held on Thursday, May 5, 1977, to explain to the residents of Saint Joe, Spencerville and the surrounding areas the proposed sanitary sewer collection and treatment facilities for the area. This information came from the engineering firm of Clyde E. Williams & Associates of South Bend through local clerk-treasurer Emma Frank.

According to the Williams firm, most of the cost of construction of these facilities would be borne by the federal and state governments. The local cost could be as little as 15% of the total project cost.

After an extensive study investigating the feasibility of both regional and non-regional sewage collection and treatment facilities, "it appears that a regional wastewater treatment plant and gravity sanitary sewers for both the Saint Joe and Spencerville areas is the best practicable and economical wastewater collection and treatment alternative for the Saint Joe Planning Region," the engineering firm said.

To be discussed at the public hearing, along with the requirements of state and federal agencies, are: implementation of regionalization, local financing, user charges, proposed treatment plant and sewer design and layout, and the effect of this proposed project on the local environment.

The public hearing will be held at 7:00 P.M., at the Saint Joe Fire Station. A copy of the proposed facilities plan for the region will be on display at the Saint Joe bank for review by all concerned citizens.

Written questions concerning the proposed plan should go to Emma Frank, clerk-treasurer of Saint Joe, no later than May 4.

The meeting will be conducted jointly by the Town Board of Trustees of Saint Joe, the town attorney, Brad Thomas, and the engineering firm.

No details of the plans were included in the news release.

Eastside Track

Heritage won a triangular track meet last week with 76 points. Leo had 47 and Eastside 34.

Jim Burns of Eastside was third in the two-mile run. Doug Hose won both the high and low hurdles for the locals. Bill Seltenright placed second in both the 100- and 220-yard dash.

Butch McBride and Jim Burns each ran the mile and the two-mile events. McBride was second in the mile and Burns was fourth.

Larry McKown took first in the discuss but fouled out in the shotput, though having the farthest toss.

The Blazers took a 65-62 meet with Prairie Heights last Thursday. Sophomores and freshmen were credited by Coach Al Peugeot as the difference between winning and losing the meet. He had only 17 competitors participating, but they won in a "team effort," said the coach.

Hose was 2nd in the high hurdles; McBride took the mile and Burns was 2nd; Seltenright won the 100; Emerson won the 440 with Kelsey 3rd; Haverstock was 3rd in the 880; Seltenright won the 220 with Powell 3rd; Hose won the low hurdues; Burns, McBride and Ray were 1-2-3 in the mile; Eastside took the mile relay; McKown was 2nd in the shotput and discus; Mack was 3rd in the pole vault; Burns took the high jump with Haverstock 3rd; and Hose and Seltenright were 2nd and 3rd in the broadjump.

Norwell won a three-way track meet Tuesday with 112 points to Eastside's 29 and Adams Central's 18.

Bill Seltenright was the only Blazer winner, taking the 220. He was second in the 100.

Jim Burns was second in the 2-mile and set a school record in the high jump at 5-10. But it was good only for fourth in the meet.

Doug Hose was second in high and low hurdles. Butch McBride was second in the mile.

Blazer Baseball

Last Thursday a close game for three innings at Leo then blew wide open, and the Lions trounced the Blazers on a windy and chilly afternoon.

Tuesday the locals went to East Noble and were downed in a close game.

The Garrett reserves downed Eastside Wednesday at the locals' diamond

Shane Rayle, Matt Wertman Save 2 Lives

Shane Rayle and Matt Wertman of Saint Joe were heroes Saturday night when they detected a fire at the Juan Rivera residence. The local fire department responded and found Rivera and his wife, Grace, in the house, overcome by smoke. Both were asleep apparently when the fire started in a sofa.

The Riveras were taken to McCray Memorial Hospital at Kendallville for treatment.

Only the sofa was burned but it created a large amount of smoke which drifted through the home.

Minister Returns To Cob'n Corners

John Paul Hill, former minister at Coburn Corners Church of Christ, has accepted a call to return to that congregation. His first sermon will be delivered at the local church Sunday, May 1.

Pastor Hill served at Coburn Corners for eight years, from 1957 to 1965. He then accepted a call from the Hicksville Church of Christ and served there for 12 years before accepting the call to return to Coburn Corners.

For the time being, the Hill family will continue to reside at R1 Hicksville, the Spencerville-Hicksville Road.

Pastor Hill is a graduate of Johnson Bible College in 1953 with an A.B. degree. As an ordained minister, Pastor Hill will observe his 25th year in the ministry this year. A native of Harriman, Tennessee, the pastor also served congregations at Corbin, Kentucky, and Heltonville, Indiana. His family includes his wife, Ramona, and two daughters, Paula, 17, who graduates from Hicksville High School this year, and Audine, 15, who is a sophomore at Hicksville High School.

EHS Math Team Scores High In Area Contest

The DeKalb Eastside mathematics team again placed high at the annual Tri-State Mathematics Contest held at Tri-State University in Angola.

The Eastside team is composed of seniors Brian Burdick and Mike Bissell and juniors Connie Oberlin and Linda Freidenberger.

The team received runner-up honors in competition with some 19 other schools. Individual runner-up honors went to Brian and Connie.

Angola High School won top honors in both team and individual scores.

The two-hour exam stressed reasoning ability as well as computational skills. Remarks from contest officials indicate an exceptional display of ability from all schools involved and this means a distinct honor to the Eastside students who represented their school.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

I have always been a great admirer of your editorials. I would usually side with you, but this time I have to disagree with your comments concerning the showing of the film Jesus of Nazareth in your paper of April 7, 1977.

There are two parts in which viewers were misled according to the Bible.

1st. According to the film a man, "a common ordinary man," came and told the shepherds about the birth of Jesus. But according to the Bible in Luke 2 v 8-17 it was not a man but angels of God. I would appreciate you looking these passages up yourself and think back to the film.

Another point in the film shows Jesus being baptized by John the Baptist. As Jesus was leaving the river the film shows John the Baptist saying "This is my Son in whom I am well pleased." This is totally wrong because you know just as well as I do that Jesus is not the son of John the Baptist. To me this is denying the existence of the Father which is in Heaven and the Deity of Christ. According to the Bible again, in Matt. 3 v 16-17 it was the Spirit of God in the form of a dove that had said this, not John the Baptist.

By reading 1st John 5 v 9-12 you can read what the Bible says about anyone denying Jesus or his Father in Heaven.

Ted, you have had many fine editorials concerning the community, may it be criticism or praise. It shows you must CARE. As you once told me at Dave's barber shop, "Keep writing."

Thank you.
John Madinski

Though we didn't mention the above two incidents in our previous comments, we did notice them when the TV presentation was shown and our eyebrows raised a little. However, we did mention there were certain "discrepancies" when compared to Scripture, and we put the above two incidents in that category. We are certain the above reader will agree—it is better to have had the six-hour presentation, even with certain discrepancies, than not to have had it at all. One of the most commendable features of the TV presentation was that there was action, there was a "down-to-earth" enactment of the various supporting roles which made it easier for us to relate to. Even the terrible scene of violence when children were slaughtered and some of the mothers who tried to protect them—even this sequence made the entire story "real" and relevant to everyday living 2000 years later. So many religious films are boring because the characters are just standing around in stiff, posed scenes. "Jesus of Nazareth" was an action film—exciting, yes, but more importantly—inspiring. —Ed.

Teacher Ignorance of Law Responsible For Board's Predicament

Other Media Concentrate on Board Embarrassmnt, Leave Teachers Untouched

—By The Editor

I wonder how long it will be before teachers realize how much they are being "used" by their own union officials in matters in which school administration is made the "goat" when troubles arise.

Last fall teachers were "used" in the DeKalb eastern district. This spring, they are again being "used" under the guise of teacher protection by union bigwigs. The current controversy over the dismissal of three high school faculty members is totally unnecessary. It is happening only because of teacher ignorance of the law. Certainly, every teacher should not be expected to know all the rules and regulations concerning their relationship with the administration in their respective school districts. Their job is to teach, not memorize the contents of regulation and law. It is an impossible task for them; their union lobbyists are getting law changes so frequently.

Knowledge of the law is the area where teacher union representatives should function. The trouble is, the teachers' own union officials have NOT functioned as far as informing teachers about required procedures to be followed by both the teachers and school administrators. There is reason to suspicion that teacher ignorance of the law is purposely allowed to exist; that way teacher-union representatives preserve their jobs. The more unrest, the more work for the full-time teacher-union representatives.

The petitions presented by DeKalb eastern teachers at Monday's school board meeting indicate the degree of ignorance in which they are functioning. They did not know the proper procedure by which a teacher can obtain the reasons for dismissal. Even when a new law was referred to by the superintendent in replying to a teacher's request for information, the law was not followed.

One of the arguments presented by teachers in seeking to have the dismissed faculty members re-hired was that no warning was given of impending dismissal.

Why didn't the teachers' union leadership (UniServ) inform teachers that prior notification is classifed as "teacher harassment" and makes the school administration subject to charges of unfair labor practices?

Why didn't the teachers' union leadership (UniServ) point out to them that public revelation of reasons for dismissal borders on the matter of the right to privacy?

Why haven't teachers been informed that these laws have come as a result of pressure FROM THEIR OWN LOBBYISTS?

Keep in mind that UniServ is an offshoot of the Indiana State Teachers' Association. So, when I mention UniServ, it is actually the ISTA which is the root of the ignorance of teachers.

I did not attend Monday night's school board meeting. I planned to but changed my mind. I have gotten rather sensitive about attending meetings involving matters on which I have editorialized. I have the suspicion that, because I have expressed opinions, my presence is more a hindrance than a help on occasion. That may be a selfish outlook, because I am supposed to "cover" such meetings in order to report them factually as news stories.

However, without actually attending, I am still able to get an overall picture from what others report or state about meetings. And the overall picture in the current school matter points unmistakably to teacher ignorance of school board responsibilities and obligations in matters concerning teachers. This ignorance led to last fall's bad situation about contract settlement and it has led to this spring's bad situation. Teacher ignorance has been passed on to the public, some of whom immediately look down on school administration without asking some questions to substantiate what they have heard.

99% of the publicity on radio and in the newspapers has been embarrassing to our DeKalb County eastern school board and administration. They have not retaliated, which is a virtue to a fault. Thus, they come out on the losing end of every situation by remaining silent in the face of criticism and abuse. When they do respond at board meetings and have proof positive that they have acted according to existing law and their own good conscience, no member of the news media gives them a break—except for one dinky little weekly at Saint Joe. Show me a headline or a statement anywhere else along the line, "DeKalb Eastern School Board Falsely Accused; Teachers Shown To Be In Error." If you do find anything like that, frame it; it's a collector's item.

Articles by Dave Kurtz of the Auburn Evening Star, following the one I commented on last week, glaringly ignore the responsibilty of the teachers in the current matter. Monday of this week, Mr. Kurtz attempted to take credit for getting our school situation discussed more extensively. He says that was his purpose.

I think Mr. Kurtz is attempting to divert attention from the fact that he reported rumors, not facts, that he gave primary attention to the teachers' side at the expense of the school board. He has thus far made no effort to put the teachers on the spot by asking THEM some questions.

He describes our school district as on edge all the time. He says our school board thinks it can take care of problems simply by getting rid of certain teachers. That smacks of bias and prejudice, not fact. He reflects the Star's unfortunate delight in embarrassing certain select local public officials at every opportunity, such embarrassment BASED NOT ON LAWS AND REGULATIONS BUT ON SOMEONE'S DISPLEASURE OR INCONVENIENCE.

In this instance involving a matter between three teachers and the school administration, the administration has followed the letter of the law and the regulations to which it is subject. It has dismissed three faculty members by proper procedure. It has based its decision to dismiss these three on the basis of their uncooperative conduct in extra-curricular activities — they ceased to function cooperatively as assistants to the head football coach. Their conduct forced the resignation of the football coach; the harassment he and his wife were subject to made it apparent to him that he could not function effectively. For the good of the school and students, he resigned. No, he is not a perfect teacher nor a perfect coach. But his attitude was far above that of his assistants.

One of the three dismissed teachers agreed in the past to some further post-graduate work. After he was retained on that condition, he then refused to fulfill his part of the agreement. Last fall, he submitted a formal public apology (it's in the official school board minutes) for his conduct at an athletic contest. He has told several individuals in the community in recent weeks that he was not coming back next year. Yet, he gains support from the remainder of the faculty in challenging the school board about an "unfair" decision to dismiss him.

Isn't it strange? The classroom teachers association makes no mention of these details nor does Mr. Kurtz in his "reporting" on the eastern school district situation at the start. And UniServ director Gerald Goen submits his efforts in behalf of the teachers to embarrass our school administration BUT FAILS TO KEEP HIS OWN "CLIENTS" (THE TEACHERS) INFORMED ABOUT SCHOOL LAW AND REGULATION.

Why aren't some questions being asked of the teachers, to force the teachers to justify their constant pressures on school administration? In this immediate instance, the following questions are relevant and significant, and the public is entitled to know the answers:

Why did the eastern classroom teachers association NOT petition the school board to reconsider the resignation of Al Peugeot? His resignation came because of internal strife on the football coaching staff plus the fact that he was "shut out" by several faculty members because he continued coaching during last fall's teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities. Teachers certainly were aware that internal friction brought his resignation.

Was Mr. Peugeot considered to be totally responsible for the internal problem? Or was the non-recrimination demanded from the school board by the teachers forgotten by the teachers in dealing with one of their own members?

Was Mr. Peugeot's situation discussed by the classroom teachers association? If not, why not?

By what standards does the classroom teachers association determine whether a teacher does or does not deserve its support?

Why was there a petition in behalf of three faculty members because of ALLEGED unfair treatment by the school board, but no petition for another teacher who suffered ACTUAL unfair treatment by teachers?

These are questions which the public is entitled to hear answered. I hereby publicly submit them to the classroom teachers association of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District for answers, such answers to be published here exactly as presented.

Riverdale Little Hoosiers Win 2nd State Title

The Riverdale Elementary School "Little Hoosiers" historical society won the traveling trophy as the outstanding Little Hoosier Chapter in the state of Indiana last Saturday. The award was made at the annual state conference held at Southport Middle School in Southport.

This is the second time Riverdale has been selected for the state honor, the first coming in 1974. It reflects the dedicated efforts of Donna Jewel and Betty Wagner, Riverdale faculty members who lead the group.

Riverdale Little Hoosier activities during the past year include: a bicentennial Pioneer Day, a cornhusking party, the making of Christmas tree decorations, the developing of various pioneer activities, the presentation of a program at a PTO meeting, the development of an architectural survey of homes in DeKalb County, participation in state activities as well as having numerous individual efforts on the part of the membership.

The local chapter also took a first place for Gravestone Rubbings as well as a third place for their Corn-Hoosier Style project which described and showed the many ways Indiana residents use corn.

In addition, Riverdale was awarded a plaque for their architectural survey on homes in this area and a certificate for the exhibit on bridges which was displayed in Indianapolis at the State Capitol Building.

Toby Shinabery won a $5.00 award for her notes on the Indiana contest, and the Riverdale Club was presented plaques for being in existence for the past seven years.

There are 44 members of the Riverdale Little Hoosiers, plus Little Hoosier Moms Mrs. Dorothy Lepper, Mrs. Jeannie Schmucker and Mrs. Bev Shinabery.

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers group is the third oldest in the state.

EHS Band Is 'Superior'

The DeKalb Eastside High School Band, competing in the state contest for bands and choruses Saturday, April 30, was awarded a superior rating for its efforts. West Noble was host for the contest.

Competing bands played three compositions prepared before the contest, then two "sight" numbers. Music folders are kept closed until the signal is given that the director and band members can open the folders and inspect the music for ten minutes, the director giving instructions for the sight-reading performance.

One judge makes sight-reading ratings while three judges are utilized for the prepared music judging. Points considered are stage presence, general appearance, intonation, balance, phrasing, articulation, expression and interpretation.

Other bands participating included Hamilton, Northridge, West Noble, Woodlan, Fairfield, Westview, Central Noble, Churubusco, Heritage, Angola, Leo, Brethren Christian, Garrett and Jimtown.

EHS Wins Judging Title

The county livestock judging contest was held April 19 on three farms near Garrett and Auburn. Two classes of Angus cattle, Columbia sheep and crossbred hogs were judged by around 75 vocational ag students from DeKalb Eastside, DeKalb Central and Garrett.

After reading your second letter, I was reminded to personally thank you for publicly taking a stand on this.

Students View Art Demonst'n

Mrs. Darla McCammon, an artist residing at R1 Saint Joe, presented an art demonstration to kindergarten students at the Riverdale School Friday, April 22.

Mrs. McCammon showed students pictures she had painted, also a memento book of pictures she had sold, plus clippings of past awards and presentations.

The artist read a book to the children, written by her and containing her art work. The book has not been published yet so the children had an opportunity to see it in its original form.

The children also had an opportunity to choose a color and use a brush to paint on real canvas with a background scene.

Della Farrer is the kindergarten teacher.

Lutheran News

—Rev. Wilbur Miller, pastor

The St. Peter Mother-Daughter Party will be held May 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the church. An enjoyable program is planned. An ice cream party will follow.

Confirmation Rite will be celebrated during the Sunday morning worship service at St. Mark and St. Peter Lutheran churches June 5. Confirmands at St. Mark are Jeffery Bartell, Lonny Emenhiser and Robyn Loy. At St. Peter, they include Kent Busche, Ronald Eichel, Lynn Fry, Jon Hollabaugh and William Richardson.

The Women's Fellowship Banquet of St. Mark church will be held May 14 at 6:30 p.m. at Richard's Restaurant at Auburn.

An instruction class is being formed by the pastor to acquaint members with the doctrine and traditions of our Luthern heritage. The group will be known as the "L.T.D. Workshop." Membership will be composed of persons who have recently joined either congregation, persons wishing to join our fellowship, members of Level II Confirmation, and persons of both congregations who want a "refresher course." The first workshop will be Sunday, May 15, from 1:30 to 3:00 p.m. at St. Peter church. Six have already registered for the worshop.

Sunday, May 15, is "Music Sunday." There will be extra special music at St. Peter church.

The next meeting of the Evening Circle of ladies at St. Peter will be May 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Lois Lichtsinn. All women of St. Peter church are invited to join in the study of the women of the Bible. The morning group, "The Morning Star Circle," has its May 6 meeting with Sarah Amstutz and Margie Dwyer as hostesses. The morning group meets the first Friday of each month at 9:30 a.m. at the church.

Church League

The Saint Joe Church Softball League met recently at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church.

Re-elected as officers were Ted Haberkorn, president; Roger Cook, vice-president; and Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer.

This will be Lavon's 19th year as secretary-treasurer and the 17th year for the president.

The entry fee was raised to $70 per team for 1977 in order to provide for a small working balance. The league is given a big boost financially each year by The Saint Joe Lions Club which donates enough each year to cover almost all the lighting expense of the church league.

No significant changes were made in the rules governing play, eligibility and conduct. A discussion was held on the responsibility of the umpires to exercise control of games. Each participating team provides umpires for league games. This eliminates a significant expense from the league budget.

Minimum age for players is 12 years and for umpires 16 years.

At the suggestion of the secretary, various team representatives volunteered to take care of certain repairs and replacements at the diamond in preparation for the May 31 opening date.

Though there were 11 teams represented at the meeting, the league schedule can carry a maximum of only 10. However, changing team personnel requires a re-alignment every so often involving two-church combinations. This will probably occur again this year and allow all teams active in the past to continue participating.

Churche represented at the meeting were Coburntown Church of Christ, Norris Chapel United Methodist, Newville Church of Christ, Newville United Methodist, Mt. Pleasant United Methodist, Saint Joe Church of Christ, Hicksville Church of Christ, Spencerville United Methodist, St. Peter Lutheran Church and St. Mark Lutheran Church.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

A couple of young fellas rang the doorbell several days ago. They were pretty hepped up about something, I could tell.

It turned out that Jeff Studebaker and Tim Rayle had just a short while before flagged down a train as it passed through town. They noticed a "hot box" on one of the cars and gave the warning.

They said the appreciative railroaders gave them a few flares.

A couple of items and pictures have appeared the past week concerning a girls' advanced phys ed class at Garrett. They were getting some instruction on the care and use of firearms and were shown getting target practice.

Advanced phys ed??? Firearms care and use??? Somewhere they lost me on that one.

Noted elsewhere: the Lord's Prayer has 56 words; Lincoln's Gettysburg address 266; the Ten Commandments 297; the Declaration of Independence 300.

But a federal government order setting the price of cabbage contains 26,911 words.

I know the Youth For Christ organization is composed of several dedicated and sincere people in DeKalb County. But when a big advertising campaign is put on such as that promoting the appearance of Nicky Cruz, "former New York street gang leader, now author and youth worker," I can't help but be a bit turned off by that kind of "religious" programming.

When it takes a business agent and agency plus $2 to get the Christian message out to the people, I have my doubts.

Strange, isn't it. Richard Foster's Eastside band just won a "superior" rating and Al Peugeot's track team has had an excellent season thus far. —And these are the two teachers who have been ostracized by certain other faculty members since last fall because the two would not participate in the teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities. —And Mr. Peugeot is forced to resign because of unbearable conditions WITHIN THE FACULTY.

—Sometimes I wonder.

Sewage Discussed

Reports from various individuals attending last Thursday's hearing on sewage treatment for Saint Joe or a combination of Saint Joe (an incorporated town) and the community of Spencerville (unincorporated) vary from "very informative" to "not enough answers to the questions."

Major points seem to include a figure of around $17 per household for sewage treatment under a "trench" plan. The engineering firm of Clyde E. Williams & Associates of South Bend has recommended an installation to serve both Saint Joe and Spencerville. Under such a plan, a sewage treatment district would be formed and those within district boundaries would be obligated to use the sewage treatment facilities.

In answer to a question as to whether or not the plan was being "pushed" by any government agency, the reply was "no." There were questions indicating doubt about the degree to which Saint Joe is polluting the St. Joe River, despite the figures presented in the preliminary survey.

Graduation Set For May 22 Laura Bevington Is Valedictorian;

Laura Ann Bevington, daughter of MM Forrest Bevington of Saint Joe, has been named valedictorian of the 1977 graduating class at DeKalb Eastside High School. Susan Carol McCann, daughter of MM Robert McCann of R1 Butler, is salutatorian. Announcement of the high honor students came this week from Principal Robert E. Williams.

Laura has majors in English, Social Studies, Science and Mathematics. Her four year average is 3.933. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Easterner Staff, School Newspaper Staff, Science Club, French Club, Student Council, Thespian Club, Drama Club and Girls Athletic Association. She has served as secretary of the National Honor Society and Student Council and as vice-president of the senior class and the GAA.

Laura plans to attend Purdue University at West Lafayette to major in General Aviation and Applied Technology.

Susan has majors in English, Spanish, Social Studies and Business. Her grade average is 3.794. She is a member of the National Honor Society and the Spanish Club. She has no definite plans for the future at the present time.

Laura pursued a college prep curriculum during high school while Susan was enrolled in a general curriculum course of study.

Graduation exercises for the class of 1977 of DeKalb Eastside High School will be held at the Eastside gymnasium Sunday, May 22, at 2 p.m. EST.

Baccalaureate and commencement will again be combined in one ceremony. The baccalaureate sermon will be given by Rev. Carson Campbell of the Butler Church of the Nazarene.

Speeches will be given by the class valedictorian, Laura Bevington, and salutatorian, Susan McCann, and two other members of the Class of 1977, Randy Diehl and Rebecca Webb.

Bibles will be presented to the class members by Dennis Baker, president of the Saint Joe Lions Club. The club has made Bible presentations to local high school graduates for many years.

The annual Award Day at Eastside will be held Friday, May 20, at 9:30 a.m.

Achievement and service awards will be given and scholarships presented at that time.

Parents and friends are invited to attend the program.

Letters Bring 'Bravos,' 'Barneys'

Dear Ted,

Bravo! on the schoolboard issue. I have many times intended to write in regard to various articles but this one impelled me to take pen in hand at once.

It is a pleasure to find someone with the "guts" and honesty to say what he thinks knowing full well there will be antagonism directed toward him.

We love the "St. Joe News" and ALMOST always I agree completely with your opinions.

So again "Bravo!" Sir Haberkorn and "Bravo!", too, Eastern DeKalb school board. Maybe the situation will improve now.

Mrs. Norman Ritenour
Pleasant Lake

Phyllis (Baker) Ritenour is the daughter of a former pastor of the local Lutheran parish and resided in Spencerville. —Ed.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn: 4-25-77

Re—your letter Journal-Gazette today.

We lost our daughter last July in childbirth because she believed in the "barneys," the Glory Barn Cult, here in town, and refused to have a doctor or go to a hospital.

A Dr. Edwards (Readers Digest April 1977 page 129) nearly lost their son to the Moonies. I wrote him and Mrs. Leach sent newspaper clipping to him about our daughter and the young lady from La Porte. He was supposed to present them along with others to Attorney General Bell last Tuesday for a grand jury. We have not heard the results yet.

UniServ' 'Press Conference' Only A Review Of Teachers' 'Side'

County news media were invited this week to attend a "news conference" at the UniServ office in Auburn concerning the dismissal of three DeKalb Eastside faculty members.

Reports elsewhere about the content of the meeting indicate that Gerald Goen, UniServ director, served as spokesman for the eastern classroom teachers association in seeking reinstatement of the three teacher-coaches.

Although the May 2 school board meeting brought out the fact that proper procedures were not being followed by the three teachers in finding out why they were dismissed, Mr. Goen at Wednesday's "news conference" referred to a period of two to four weeks since the teachers had sought the information. He said the school board still had not responded.

In the agenda for next Monday's school board meeting, it is specifically noted that the proper requests were not handed to board president J Reynold Johnson until May 3, the day after the board's regular meeting. Monday is the next regular meeting of the school board.

The News was not represented at the "news conference." In the past the editor publicly announced his own "boycott" of UniServ "news conferences" due to the fact that little accurate information came from them, plus the fact that it was demeaning to all county news media to "come running" to the UniServ office whenever the teacher organization thought it had significant information.

A radio news report of the Wednesday meeting included a recorded interview with one of the dismissed teachers, Johnny L. Zimmerman. He stated that he did not think the dismissal for himself was because of his unsportsmanlike conduct at a football game last fall, for which he issued a public apology to the school board and the apology is a matter of public record. He backed his view that his dismissal was not due to the incident last fall because he had reacted in a similar manner at games the two years before. There was no explanation as to how many acts of unsportsmanlike conduct may be condoned before such actions do become grounds for dismissal.

Echoed at Wednesday's get-together was a previous statement by the classroom teachers association that the school board may have acted in haste in issuing the three dismissals, also that if the dismissals were due to last year's teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities, the board was violating an agreement made last fall when salary negotiations finally were completed.

At that time, the teachers association negotiating spokesman and the UniServ director contended that the school board had adequate funds to provide for the teachers' requested rate raise. A budget review by the State Board of Accounts did not substantiate that contention, however.

In the current episode, teachers and the UniServ director suggest that the dismissal of the three teachers has not been carried out properly. However, information from school attorney H. Charles Winans at the May 2 school board meeting indicated that it was the teachers who had not followed proper procedures in learning the reasons for dismissal. Issuance of such information by the superintendent or the attorney is subject to charges of unfair labor practices, as established by regulations gained by the teachers' lobby in Indianapolis. Issuance of such information by the school board without proper procedures would also make the board liable to charges of unfair labor practices or invasion of privacy.

Proper procedures by teachers apparently were not referred to by the teachers or their UniServ spokesman at the Wednesday meeting.

School Board Meets Monday

The agenda for the Monday night meeting of the local school board includes:

Minutes.

Claims and checks.

School board continued consideration of the two grievances filed by teacher-coach Johnny L. Zimmerman. The grievances were received by School Superintendent Kenneth Cole at 2:15 p.m., April 27, 1977.

School board consideration of requests from teacher-coach Johnny L. Zimmerman, teacher-coach Mark Childs and from teacher-coach William E. Howarth. The requests were for the school board to give each man in writing the reasons for which each man was dismissed. The requests were hand delivered to the school board president, J. Reynold Johnson, at 9:30 p.m. on May 3, 1977.

School board consideration of and action on the textbook adoptions as recommended by the Elementary School Textbook Adoption Committee and by the Eastside Junior-Senior high School Textbook Adoption Committee.

The board president and superintendent sign a General Education Development Diploma for Robert Oliver Bovlick as recommended by Principal Robert E. Williams.

Discussion on repair of existing blacktop parking areas and roadways.

Any other business that may come before the board.

Soil Stewardship Week May 15-22

Soil Stewardship Week will be observed May 15-22 across the nation. The observance emphasizes man's responsibility to protect and conserve soil, water and other natural resources.

Maynard Hine, DeKalb County SWC district chairman said, "This year's theme, 'When We Care,' will help each individual to examine their motives and actions in the conservation of God's manifold gifts. We hope that during Soil Stewardship Week, millions of Americans will pause to consider their responsibilities for the protection and proper care of the Lord's earth."

The 1977 observance will be the 23rd consecutive year. The custom of setting aside special "Rogation Days" for this purpose began more than 1,500 years ago in France when French peasants prayed for help after crop failures had brought widespread hunger.

If you're not careful your CB antenna could put you in touch with a lot more than you bargained for.

Unfortunately, your CB base station antenna will not only help you reach more people, it could also put you in touch with our power lines.

And the slightest contact between you, your antenna and our lines could be fatal.

So, before you put up your antenna, here are a few suggestions you should follow.

First, we recommend you have a professional do it for you.

Okay, if you're determined to do it yourself, look out for power lines. The ones attached to poles. And the ones attached to your house.

If you can't tell a power line from a phone line, don't experiment. Steer clear.

Then make sure you locate your antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. Which means, a 30-ft. high antenna should be 45 feet away from all power lines in all directions.

That way, if it falls during construction, or gets blown down during a storm, it won't hit any lines and endanger you or your neighbors.

Trying to carry an antenna, climb a ladder and keep your balance all at the same time is risky business, too.

Wait for a calm day, assemble the antenna where you intend to put it up, be sure to ground the antenna properly and get somebody to help you.

P.O. Changes

Charlotte Hudson, Postmaster at Spencerville, has announced several service changes in the delivery of mail from Spencerville.

A second rural route will be established and customers have been notified by mail if they will be on R2.

Customers on McNabb and Bishop roads have been asked to relocate their mail boxes for a more efficient delivery.

The change is necessary in order to equalize rural route delivery, and the rural carrier from Saint Joe, Howard Alwood, will deliver the mail on R2 Spencerville along with his regular route.

A change in the Spencerville Post Office hours will also go into effect. Hours will be 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

School Closing Schedule Changed

Because of unruliness of some students last year on the last day of school, a change has been made in the schedule for the final week. The school board authorized the change several months ago.

Superintendent Kenneth Cole has announced that Thursday, May 26, will be the last day but it will be slightly different from any previous last school day.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23, 24 and 25, will be normal full school days for all students, kindergarten through the 11th grade.

All K-6 Special Education students and all kindergarten students will have Wednesday, May 25, as their last day of school. They will receive their report cards that day.

On Thursday, May 26, school buses will run to pick up students at the normal times. However, ONLY those junior-senior high school students who have a final exam to take that day are to report to school.

NO OTHER JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT IS TO BE ON CAMPUS THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 26.

School buses will leave schools to take students back home Thursday morning, May 26, as follows: leave Riverdale School at 8:50 a.m., leave Butler Elementary at 9:20 a.m. and leave Eastside High School at 9:30 a.m.

Grade cards for grades K-6 will be sent home with students BUT GRADE CARDS FOR ALL STUDENTS GRADES 7-11 WILL BE MAILED HOME.

Foods to be offered on the ala carte menu include cottage cheese, potato salad, lettuce salads, alternate sandwiches, and pie.

The ala carte program was recently authorized by the local school board following a report from the superintendent on the feasibility of instituting such a program.

Little, Senior Leagues Ready

The Riverdale Little League has been cut from 4 teams to 3 due to a lower number of players signing for the 1977 season. The three teams will be sponsored by Knisely National Bank, Vulcraft, and Lengacher Electric.

Games will start at 5:15 p.m. and will be played at the Saint Joe diamond.

"PeeWee" games will be played at the Vulcraft diamond every Thursday.

Coaches include Tom Haynes for the Knisely team, Jake Fetters for Lengacher and Jim Miller for Vulcraft.

Sechlers, who had sponsored the fourth Little League team in the past, will sponsor the local Senior League entry in competition with Woodburn and Harlan. According to Jerry Vinson, secretary of the local Little-Senior League board, there will be 8 teams in the Senior League and play tentatively will begin by June 1.

Senior League managers include Jerry Markle and Ron Walter for one of the local teams, and Leo Carper and Herb Hoover for the other. Additional coaches are not yet definitely committed.

Blazer Baseball

Jeff Hudson missed a no-hitter Saturday by but two outs as the Blazers shutout West Noble 5-0 in the first game of a twin bill. West Noble took the second game 4-2 when five bases on balls in the fifth inning helped West Noble score their four runs.

Hudson had one out in the 7th when a fly ball dropped between two outfielders for a fluke hit. "Hud" fanned 9 batters.

Monday the Blazers downed Adams Central 6-3. Lance Billings put one over the left field fence to help gain the win.

Tuesday the locals dropped a double-header. A wild pitch in the 7th inning gave Norwell a 6-5 win. The second game, a makeup of a rainout, went to Fairview (Ohio) 4-1.

Gary Rinard led off the 7th inning with a long double to left center and Rick Keener followed with a long double to center to bring the reserves a 3-2 win over Lakeland Wednesday at Butler. Don DeLong got the win.

An Open Letter To The Auburn 'Evening Star' - - -

Gentlemen:

Recent reports and opinions in your columns concerning problems in the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District have done a disservice to those people who serve on the eastern school board, to school administrators and to their legal counsel. Your publication of rumors, of what a very few individuals have "said," and so on, are unfortunate because they detract from the respect your publication should have and deserves as the DeKalb County daily newspaper. Such writings are unfair in that they have tended to emphasize accusations made against the eastern school board and administration without investigating the propriety of those accusations.

A letter answering to comments made by Star managing editor Dave Kurtz was sent to you May 4, 1977. The letter has never appeared in your publication. It is assumed it will not be published.

This is a dangerous tactic. It represents suppression of freedom of speech. If any individual, whether Mr. Kurtz or not, is going to express views and publish comments about a given situation, that individual should be prepared to grant an opportunity to others to reply to those views and comments. When Mr. Kurtz placed his name at the head of his column, "...and then some...", he obligated himself to grant the same freedom of speech and freedom of the press to others to the same degree that he exercised those freedoms himself.

If Mr. Kurtz' comments and reporting were questionable enough to prompt a letter from us on May 4, how much more appropriate would be another letter to respond to his later comments about the eastern school district situation. But it appears a second letter, too, would not be published.

It appears that it is impossible to read "news reports" in the Star with confidence. The primary requirement of journalism is to be factual in news stories. This requirement is not evident in the articles related to the eastern school district's problems with certain faculty members.

The following examples are offered to show how incomplete or misleading have been the reports of eastern school district affairs in recent issues of the Star:

From the May 17, 1977, issue reporting the May 16 school board meeting concerning three teacher dismissals and two teacher grievances:

"The reasons were not revealed, although the teachers indicated they would comment later."

FACT: the reasons WERE revealed as recorded in the school board minutes as follows:

"Board President Johnson then personally handed to Mark Childs, to William Howarth, and to Johnny Zimmerman the reasons in writing for their respective dismissals, and Mr. Johnson directed Superintendent Cole to attach copies of the said three (3) documents and make them a part of the official minutes."

No, the documents were not read aloud; but when they became part of the minutes, they automatically were "revealed" and became available for public scrutiny yet that night.

The reasons were quoted on WIFF news reports the morning after the school board meeting.

Mr. Kurtz didn't know what he was talking about.

Another Kurtz statement:

"A crowd of about 30 teachers and other supporters of the three men attended the meeting. . . ."

FACT: there were 19 teachers, 4 teacher spouses, 1 teacher aide, 1 student, 2 adult patrons, the UniServ director and 3 representatives of local news media - plus the school board, superintendent, high school principal and school attorney. By no stretch of the imagination can it be stated that there were 30 people at the meeting in support of the teachers. But that is the definite conclusion in Mr. Kurtz' reporting. Did he ask them their opinion? Obviously not. Actually, the two patrons attending SUPPORT THE SCHOOL BOARD in this matter.

The Auburn Evening Star, WIFF-radio, The Butler Bulletin and the Saint Joe News receive copies of the minutes of every eastern school board meeting. The minutes of the May 16 meeting contain repeated references to memos placed in the file of Mr. Zimmerman, as those memos were discussed at the board meeting. Yet, nowhere in the Star has there been indication of any kind that repeated tardiness to classroom sessions and absence from faculty meetings mar the record of Mr. Zimmerman as a faculty member.

Instead, the Star reports constantly on the teacher's contention, through UniServ director Gerald Goen, that the memos should be removed because he didn't know about them. The Star thus puts the school board and administration "on the spot" even to the point of virtually being an advocate for the teachers.

The Star has never pointed out that the delay in getting requested information from the school board to the teachers involved HAS BEEN DUE TO THE TEACHERS' IGNORANCE OF PROPER PROCEDURES UNDER FAIR LABOR PRACTICES ESTABLISHED FOR THE MOST PART THROUGH THEIR OWN ORGANIZATION, THE INDIANA STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, AND ITS LOBBYISTS. They call it "right to privacy."

Taken lightly by the Star is the fact that Mr. Zimmerman made a public apology for his conduct at a football game last year. And that was not the only time his conduct was subject to question. Instead, repetitious thoughts have been published about school board tactics to paint a picture of inept individuals serving on the board and in administrative offices.

Even though Mr. Kurtz described board member Connie Hollabaugh as "a very pleasant, reasonable and well-intentioned woman," his accompanying comments about her belief that the situation calls for "weeding out the bad apples" re-establishes a cloudy reputation for her and the remainder of the school board. By the use of the words "well-intentioned," Mr. Kurtz subtly questions her intelligence.

But he never questions the intelligence of the three teachers involved, or the UniServ director, when they fail to follow proper procedures mandated by regulations sought by teachers themselves.

Mr. Kurtz states: "The problem is that people are not apples. Once bruised or rotten, apples will never recover. People who are bruised emotionally can get over it. Relationships which have become rotten don't have to stay that way."

Your columnist talks like a babe in the woods. This is not an isolated instance of teacher-administration difficulties. The same conflict is going on all over the country. Our entire American society is being "bruised" by the power-play in evidence in teacher ranks.

The real problem is that Mr. Kurtz uses the columns of the Star to appeal to public emotions. The school administration comes out the culprit. He attempts to make the situation a person-to-person involvement. It is not. This is a matter involving a union and school management. The teachers union, the ISTA and UniServ have destroyed the personal relationship which would be better; and they have substituted "teacher power." They campaigned for certain political candidates last year under the battle cry, "Teacher power!"

Another Kurtz comment: "They (the school board) also should give thought to why good apples become rotten in the environment of Eastside High School."

That is an insult to teachers, administrators, school board members, school legal counsel, students, parents and patrons of the DeKalb eastern district. Most significantly, it casts reflection on SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION with no basis in fact.

In commenting on Mark Child's "anti-labor" childhood background, Mr. Kurtz says the teacher was raised to believe that an "employee should be able to sit down and discuss his problems with his employer. Mark says that is not true at Eastside High School, to his surprise and disillusionment. If he is right, that is something that bears looking into."

FACT: Mark Childs supported last fall's teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities. Therefore, what "bears looking into" is not the alleged inability to have a discussion between employee and employer about problems, but rather which side of the fence Mr. Childs is occupying. The inference is that the eastern school board is "untouchable" or "unreachable." That is an absolute distortion of fact. Does he mean that he has been refused audience with the school board, or the superintendent, or the principal, to discuss problems? We don't believe that is the case. But by publishing such a statement in the manner in which it was presented, the Star has allowed a falsehood to be uttered without investigating the accusation. The Star and Mr. Kurtz did not ask Mr. Childs to explain himself.

If the Star desires to fully inform the public, why did it deny freedom of speech in failing to publish a letter which presented questions which ought to be answered BY TEACHERS? The entire presentation in the county daily has put teachers in the category of "the persecuted" and the school board and administration in the role of "the persecutor." The Star has given considerable space to the teachers, teacher petitions and UniServ Director Goen in their accusations of improper procedures and undue delays by the school board. This has been done with no apparent respect for the need for time to carry out certain functions in proper order. Teachers have suggested that perhaps the board acted hastily in dismissing three faculty members, then turn right around and demand haste in answering their questions.

Last fall, the majority of faculty members in the junior-senior high school violated their contracts by participating in a boycott of extra-curricular activities during negotiations over a new pay scale. They had signed contracts to teach AND had agreed to serve in leadership capacities in extra-curricular activities; they were being paid for both when school began in the fall. However, the Star has made no mention of this violation, nor of the demoralizing effect it had on students as well as parents, patrons and other teachers.

Isn't it strange? There has been no question raised about the teaching capabilities of the three dismissed teachers. The problem has been their failure to abide by the rules. In Mr. Zimmerman's case, since he has made a particular issue of the dismissals, a glaring contradiction occurs. As a coach, he demands strict adherence to the rules he establishes for his student athletes. His knowledge of baseball, in particular, is obvious to those attending baseball games. He is really good!

BUT—his success results ONLY so long as his players fellow orders. Teamwork is a matter of discipline, basically. And Mr. Zimmerman demands discipline in his ballplayers—so much so that he really "chews out" a player on occasion. He has apologized later on at least once occasion this spring after having "lost his cool."

Now—if the success of his baseball team depends on discipline, following orders—in other words, "teamwork"—why does he rebel against the rules of "teamwork" as established in the administration of the total educational process in our school system? As a teacher, he is a "player" obligated to the "signals" (administrative requirements) given by the "coach" (school board, principal, and superintendent).

Why has the Star, and/or Mr. Kurtz failed to make any mention whatsoever of these teacher obligations???

The Star never had the teachers "on the spot" for having taken their pay dispute into the classrooms. The Star and Mr. Kurtz never raised a question of teacher ethics. It was all school board, school board, school board.

Though there are undoubtedly those who are on the three dismissed faculty members' "side," comments heard from patrons in the eastern district indicate a general feeling that the school board has taken appropriate action. An almost audible silence in the past few weeks, since the dismissals became publicized, seems to indicate a feeling of disappointment in the three teachers rather than indignation against the school board for its action, in the minds of the public. It is something they wish had not happened, and it is a bitter pill for them to swallow that firm steps must be taken by their elected school board to assert its authority in the face of a challenge from within the faculty.

The Star has been "used" by the ISTA just as many teachers have been used by their own union leaders. When UniServ says something, the county daily gives space in its columns without question. But when the eastern board and administration says something in official session and after thorough investigation, the usual pattern is to raise immediate questions and doubts, even to the point of publishing rumors and misstatements.

However, the main concern, derived from the above and much more of the same, is that the right to reply to Star content has been denied. Thus, individual liberty has been infringed at the grass roots level —and that's where individual liberty begins.

We are deeply disappointed at your intolerance.

Dear Ted:

Thank you for your Editorial explaining the other side of the Teacher-School Board issue.

Almost everyone wants to pay less taxes. However, when we see someone in Government try to cut expenses most all employees say, "Cut somewhere else, not me." If we all don't want to end up like New York City, we must support public officials with the guts to take the heat from organized minorities.

Dear Ted:

I appreciate your letter in opposition to the proposed Agency of Consumer Protection.

Througout the campaign I voiced opposition to this legislation and I have not changed my mind. I voted against this bill in the Government Operations Committee which unfortunately approved the measure 22 to 21. I can assure you that I will assist in leading the fight on the House Floor.

I am opposed to this measure because it creates a new huge federal bureaucracy without

Board Rejects Teacher-Coach Petition

With 31 others present, the DeKalb eastern school board and administrators met Monday night for a regular session.

Those attending included 19 teachers, 4 teacher spouses, 1 teacher aide, 1 student, 2 patrons, 1 UniServ representative and 3 news media.

The over-four-hours session included two brief executive sessions called for to allow the board to discuss petitions presented to the board by teacher-coach Johnny Zimmerman. He contended that equal treatment had not been given members of the faculty and that certain items of information were in his performance file which he did not have knowledge of until recently.

Mr. Zimmerman spoke partly on his own behalf and was also represented by Robert Penix, classroom teachers representative, and Gerald Goen, UniServ director.

The board stated it would take a 5-day period to consider the allegations of unfair or inconsistent criticisms of various aspects of Mr. Zimmerman's activities as a teacher. Mr. Penix stated that other teachers had been guilty of tardiness on occasion but were not given warnings as had been given Mr. Zimmerman.

On the other petition asking that certain "derogatory" information be removed from the Zimmerman file, the board had school attorney H. Charles Winans reply in its behalf. He said the board rejected the petition for five reasons:

1. "That the grievant's allegation that a contract violation had occurred was not correct since that allegation did not refer to a collective bargaining agreement clause or section, but did attempt to characterize an element of the 1974-75 discussible memoranda to be Board policy which, in fact, the School Board disputes;

2. "The Board finds that the grievant has been informed of every item in his file sipce March 4, 1977, and has made absolutely no effort to place any rebuttal memos in the file disputing or explaining any of Principal Williams' memos which are in the file that he now demands be removed;

3. "The Board further finds that the grievant disputes information in his file concerning his failure to eliminate temporary license deficiencies when, in fact, the grievant has made absolutely no effort to pass on officially, or unofficially, information to the Board or his buillding principal concerning removal of these deficiencies;

4. "The Board finds that the grievant's presentation contained several contradictions and inconsistencies particularly concerning the memoranda in his file regarding his use of foul and abusive language in a public arena while standing on top of the press box at an interschool football game, particularly in that he did state at one point in his presentation that he had been doing this very same thing for two years and that no one had ever called him before and later in his presentation stated that he had never done this before; and

5. "The Board finds that the solution sought concerning the removal of such material from the file of the grievant would be improper. Quite obviously the School Board feels that nothing should be removed from Johnny L. Zimmerman's file; therefore the School Board finds against the grievant."

During Mr. Zimmerman's testimony, he acknowledged that he had apologized to Mr. Williams for his conduct at a football game and that his wife suggested the coach talk with Mr. Williams further about the matter. From that talk came a public apology given to the school board and recorded in the minutes.

Mr. Zimmerman was asked by a school board member during the meeting if he had done anything to remove the deficiencies from his teacher certificate. However, an answer was given by Mr. Goen, not the faculty member, that the geography had been taken care of. A question further or the matter brought out that Mr. Zimmerman had not told Mr. Williams what course he had taken.

Among the "derogatory" items in the Zimmerman file were memos by the principal concerning tardiness to classes, tardiness at a faculty meeting, failure to attend a faculty meeting, taking the "teachers' professional meeting" half-day for personal matters, failure to show up for a study hall assignment, and others.

Zimmerman, Mark Childs and William Howarth, the three faculty members who received dismissal notices this spring, were given the written reasons for their dismissal, as they had requested. Though several were given for each teacher, the main reason appears to be the failure of the three to function cooperatively as assistant coaches under Al Peugeot last fall after Peugeot continued to coach the high school football team during a teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities.

Peugeot turned in his resignation several weeks ago due to the internal friction on the coaching staff. He admitted a feeling of bitterness at the time due to the situation forcing his resignation. However, he made no criticisms of the assistant coaches as far as their teaching capabilities. In an interview with the editor of the Butler Bulletin and the editor of this newspaper, he praised the abilities of the three in the classroom.

Community Agencies

Schools

You are in the business of serving your community and making it a better place to live. You know there are things to be done that would be of great benefit to it. But you have not had the personnel or money to carry them out.

CETA can help you. CETA can provide you with some assistance in meeting such community needs by supplying you with the necessary people. By using CETA's resources, you will not only see your community reap more benefits from your programs. You will also help it ease its unemployment problems.

There are a lot of things to be done. Here's the opportunity to use your ingenuity and creativity in getting them done.

The Fort Wayne Area Consortium has been funded under Title VI of the CETA Act to allay the problems caused by unemployment. Under the current Emergency Employment Program, your agency can participate by proposing Community Projects for which CETA provides the personnel from the ranks of the unemployed. A major purpose of the program is to open up public service employment opportunities to serve people in need.

Here are some guidelines for your thinking:

Projects can last between three and 12 months. The money must be committed by September. So Start NOW!

The work must be in meaningful public service employment and meaningful to both the worker and the community.

Supervision must be provided. Where necessary, union support must be obtained.

The work must develop skills or involve training that will help the employees become more employable.

Most work should be of the type that someone without particular skills can do or be trained to do. In other words, the Projects must be structured so the lesser skilled, as well as the highly skilled, can do them and obtain work experience.

The end result or product must be observable and of community benefit. Projects can even be traditional functions of your organization, as long is it can be shown they have expanded or extended your services.

There are other guidelines for Projects. Details can be obtained from your CETA Coordinator.

We urge you on behalf of your community AND the unemployed to give a Project your utmost consideration.

FORT WAYNE AREA CETA CONSORTIUM

Including Adams, Allen, DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble & Whitley counties

Example

Project: Community Improvement

PURPOSE/OUTLINE: Community improvement projects that could possibly be funded inlude:

* Clearing publicly owned land for community gardens * Building bike trails * Cleanup of fairgrounds

*Renovating an abandoned city building for use as a city history museum. * Creating public parks which may include creating a man-made lake, developing baseball grounds, repairing picnic tables and other recreational facilities, landscaping.

ANTICIPATED DURATION: The above time periods would vary depending on the project involved, but can not exceed 12 months. END PROJECT: the community is enhanced by developing facilities for community use.

The Saga of the Sabotaged School District

—By The Editor

While the definition of "sabotage" contains reference to "an act of malicious damage or destruction," the word has also come to mean "undercover" to many Americans—damage from within in some cases. We certainly do not consider our government's "sabotage" efforts in World War II as malicious; they were necessary to help "win" the war. It is with this sense of damage from within that the following comments are made.

Another chapter was written last Friday in the "Saga of the Sabotaged School System." The story centers around the degeneration of school spirit, and school integrity at the hands of teacher union leadership.

The latest chapter centers on the presentation to the school board of the DeKalb eastern district last week of a letter from the classroom teachers association vice-president. The teacher officer suggested in the letter that the board review its minutes of the May 16 meeting to make certain the minutes are accurate in stating what transpired at the May 16 meeting. That was the meeting at which the school board rejected one of two petitions of grievance filed with the board by Johnny L. Zimmerman. It held over for further consideration a second grievance from Mr. Zimmerman, setting last Friday as a special board meeting at which a ruling would be made on the second petition.

The letter from the vice-president of the teacher group indicated there was some concern in the minds of some teachers about the accuracy of the board minutes. The letter suggested that the board get in touch with the classroom teachers association if the board was interested in the teachers' concern.

Take note—the letter did not make any reference to particular points of concern. Thus, the letter did not follow usual and normal procedure in registering concern. People and organizations state their concerns directly in a letter when they are prompted to write a letter in the first place.

So—why did the teachers' association, after all of the discussion and dispute we have had in recent weeks, write a letter in general terms?

The answer: to once again put the school board "on the spot." It's a clever trick. You see, under present circumstances, if the school board does not contact the teachers, it gives the teachers an opportunity to make future allegations of disinterest on the part of the school board.

The same tactic has been utilized with regard to the news media in the form of "news conferences." Two such "news conferences" in two recent weeks gain not only attention but also advantage. If news media do not attend, they leave themselves open to charges of disinterest, even if the "news conferences" don't have anything really worth the time. But because teachers call a "news conference" through UniServ, reporters toddle over to the teachers lair—just as the school board is supposed to approach the teachers concerning Monday's vague letter from the vice-president of the classroom teacher group.

The problem is—what group is there to represent the public? The school board has its hands full as it is without engaging in constant replies to accusations and misstatements made by teachers, their union representatives and UniServ. There is no "parent lobby" or "public lobby" by which the average citizen can cope with the imbalance of power leaning to the teacher side in education matters. The media are caught in the middle oftentimes, knowing that what they are reporting is one-sided—but there is no other side from whom to get statements. This newspaper has given the other side, but other media in the county refrain from making use of it. There is some sort of stigma apparently attached to reporting of an open letter or an editorial giving the other side. There is some sort of undesirable connection apparently to prevent other media reporting something like, "In an editorial appearing this week in The Saint Joe News, teachers have been challenged to answer questions related to recent charges made against the eastern school board by teachers in the district"—or, "The Saint Joe News has alleged that freedom of speech and freedom of the press has been infringed due to the failure to make public replies to statements made in recent weeks which have been embarrassing to the eastern school board."

I know these young reporters are seeking to have "exclusive" stories in their respective media. Unfortunately, they do not yet perceive that reporting means giving "the other side" if someone points out "the other side." When changes or promotions are made in other county media, I don't hesitate telling my readers about them. When awards are won in state-nation journalism competition—the case with the Auburn Evening Star—I don't hesitate telling my readers about it. Why? Because what happens TO and WITHIN the other media is NEWS, and the public in the whole county ought to know about it.

The information and opinions appearing in this paper concerning the eastern school district situation are "news." With no other source of information giving management's side of this labor-management conflict, it wouldn't hurt other county media to lower their noses a bit and enlighten THEIR readers and listeners as to the total picture by utilizing material from these pages in this matter. The Saint Joe News is every bit as "official" as UniServ—and a helluva lot more honest!

—I wonder what would happen if The Saint Joe News called a news conference in behalf of the patrons in the eastern district who are fed up with being pushed around by teacher-union leadership? Would the other media show up? MUST we parents and patrons and taxpayers have an "organization" in order to be heard?

I wonder.

WITH THE EDITOR

When Lavon Hart gave me the first week schedule for the church league, he mentioned that he had to "take it easy" yet because of a back ailment. He also mentioned that he had just turned 49—and that made me feel kinda good because I always considered him one of the "kids" and here he is catching up with me on birthdays!

I suppose his seeming lack of aging is because he is perpetually young in spirit.

Rev. Billow To Return To States

A letter received this week from Rev. William Billow indicates that he and his family will return to the United States permanently after 22 years in mission work in Japan.

Pastor Billow is the son of Mrs. Clifford Billow of Saint Joe and the late Mr. Billow.

The letter is as follows:

"Dear Ted,

"You have been a wonderful friend and communicator of the News from Saint Joe via the Saint Joe News. Due to the idiosynchrasies of International Mail services the paper has come by fits and starts, some days we get two or three issues at a time. Other times we get an issue several months old which must have been on a slow, slow boat. Whenever the News arrives I read it like the letter from home that it is. Thank you for this faithful service.

"I have a suspicion that you are aware of our imminent departure from Japan which will signal our permanent return to the U.S.A. On the day of our departure it will have been 22 years, nine months and five days from the day we first set foot on Japanese soil. We have, of course, been back in the U.S.A. from time to time — a total of four years and six months furlough time.

"Already ten years ago I'd worked myself out of a job when I turned over the administrative responsibilities for the Tokyo Area Social Welfare Institutions which I had directed, to Japanese workers. (My predecessor had been in charge for 27 years and before her missionary leadership was in charge of the work from its beginning in 1923). I came back to Japan in 1967 as a Consultant to those who had worked for me before. There were some good years in that role but lately I've had less and less responsibility and little challenge to growth professionally. The part-time work I undertook to take up the slack in my schedule did not prove satisfactory or satisfying so about a year ago we began making plans to resign from overseas work.

"It is not that there is no longer the need for the World Mission of the Lutheran Church in America (or any other group for that matter). The age of the Foreign Missionary is not over either, for those who feel called to go overseas. My effective days are ended and it costs too much to keep someone here in Japan who is not being kept really busy. So we are returning to the U.S. and hopefully our home board in New York will locate and send some young folks out to take our place.

We will be locating in Seward, Nebraska, where I have now accepted a position on the faculty of Concordia College to teach Social Work and become head of that department of the school. This department is still very new in the college and I'll have one other man working with me. I'll stop in to say hello when we get back to St. Joe in June and we can talk some more then. I see I'm running out of space now.

"Thank you for the many years of St. Joe News sent to us in Japan. Do not send any more issues out this way, we won't be here to receive them. I'll place my order for the paper to be sent to Nebraska when I see you in June.

Very sincerely,
Bill"

School Board, Teachers Seek 'Communication'

Concern felt by the DeKalb eastern school board and certain members of the faculty over the "bad press' the district has experienced in recent months, reflecting on the quality of the total educational program at the school, has resulted in the formation of a "Communications Committee" composed of three board members and five faculty members. It is hoped that future representation can include a representative from each elementary school and school administrators.

The group held a meeting Tuesday of this week to discuss educational matters. A specific intent of the group is to avoid discussions about salary schedules, teacher dismissals and other matters subject to negotiation between teachers and the school board. The intent is to concentrate on the positive attributes in the school district while also seeking improvement in the total educational program.

The meeting was set up by school board member Vaughn Billings after the board and certain teachers became aware of mutual concern for the welfare of the students and the district as a whole. One of the most recent news reports which gave a "bad" impression about the eastern district was a pictorial writeup in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette about the recent junior-senior prom. Certain portions of the feature suggested massive "delinquent" activities such as consumption of alcoholic beverages by minors and smoking, the latter hinting the use of marijuana.

As a school board member put it, "These things are going on in every school district. But we (Eastside) are the only ones who were identified."

Because of the identification as a "criminal" area, resulting from one-sided and slanted reporting, school board members and teachers alike are cooperating in the "Communications Committee" effort.

Those who participated in the Tuesday meeting included Mr. Billings, school board members Connie Hollabaugh and Earle Kelsey, and faculty members Jim White, Ishmael Smith, Bob Penix, Carol Rufner and Jerry Zonker.

The board-teacher committee will function in an "unofficial" capacity, it is reported. Its activities are not binding on either the school board or the classroom teachers association. It is intended purely as a discussion group to maintain a flow of communication between administration and faculty.

Church League

The 1977 season of slow pitch softball begins for the Saint Joe Church League next Tuesday, May 31, at the local ball diamond. This will be the 26th year the league has been in existence.

Last year's new umpiring arrangement will be followed this year. With two games played each night, the home team of the second game provides umpires for the first game and the home team of the first game provides umps for the second game. Umpires must be at least 16 years of age.

Blazer Baseball

Then on May 14 they battled Wayne in the New Haven tournament for 8 innings in a scoreless tie to that point.

However, a rule in high school baseball prohibits a pitcher from hurling more than 10 innings within any three-day period. For that reason, Jeff Hudson, who had pitched the 8 innings of scoreless ball against Wayne, had to be removed as pitcher. Wayne then jumped on Lance Billings and Don DeLong for 5 runs in the ninth to take a 5-0 win. Both Billings and DeLong have made impressive appearances on the mound this year for the Blazers. But Saturday just wasn't their day.

Defensive efforts helped the Blazers. Phil Staley nailed a runner at the plate on a throw from left field in the fifth. And "Hud" picked two runners off base.

The Blazers won the consolation game from Northfield 6-5 later Saturday afternoon. Stan Hall and Billings combined in pitching for the win.

With "Hud" again on the hill Tuesday last week, the Blazers downed Southern Wells 7-0 in an away game. The talented Blazer hurler ran his string of scoreless innings to something like 17.

A little pebble or clump of sod can cause lots of trouble in a baseball game. The Blazers found that out in a game Wednesday last week when they played at DeKalb Central.

Down 3-0 early in the game, the Blazers managed to gain a tie at 3-all by the fifth inning. Two of their runs scored in a "comedy of errors" in the third when the Central infielders couldn't handle bunts and slow infield dribblers. They settled down thereafter, however.

In the last of the fifth, with two out, a routine bouncer headed toward Gary Rinard at shortstop; it had "handles" on it. But just as the Blazer infielder prepared to glove the ball, the ball hit something in the turf and took a high bounce over the head of the infielder. The Barons took advantage of the opportunity and with some alert base-running, came up with 2 runs to take a 5-3 win.

The Carroll Chargers downed the Blazers last Thursday at Carroll 11-3. Four Blazer pitchers couldn't stop their opponent's attack which included 8 hits. The Blazers got only 4. the Blazers committed 7 errors to help the Warriors to a 6-5 win.

In Wednesday's game against Hicksville, the Blazers lost a lead late in the game and the Aces came out with a 7-5 victory.

The Spencer Gals were entertained by the Newville Township Home Ec Club at the Newville United Methodist Church on May 11.

President Doris Hart conducted the meeting. Myrtle Mills and Gladys Impton led a memorial for the 20 members who have passed away since 1932.

The president then read one of Helen Steiner Rice's poems and the prayer song was sung.

Rosella Mickelson had devotions, then led the club in singing this month's song, "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover."

Four Spencer Gals, 22 members and Doris Hart's guest, Wilberta Mouk, gave "a favorite food mother cooked" for roll call.

There was a birthday auction and "Happy Birthday" was sung for Doris Hart and Rosella Mickelson.

Awards Given

The theme, "Courtesy is contagious—pass it on," was carried out throughout the three Positive Attitude Days Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last week at the Riverdale Elementary School. More than 80% of the students received individual PA Certificates from their teachers, according to Principal Charles Ray.

Certificates were presented to those students who demonstrated a positive attitude toward all students, teachers and schoolwork by being respectful and courteous during the specified time period of three days.

Outstanding Classroom Banners were presented by Mr. Ray at the sing-along assembly on Friday. Claudia Winn's second grade room received this distinction for the primary grades while Betty Wagner's and Donna Jewel's fourth grade rooms tied for top honors in the intermediate grade division.

Runnerup for the primary grades was Angela Hose's room. Mr. Ray also praised Della Farrer's kindergarten classes for their outstanding efforts.

An assembly program featured a magician to initiate the three-day Positive Attitude effort, along with a school-wide singing program under the direction of Dorothy Whitney.

Positive Attitude posters were displayed throughout the elementary building as well as reminders to be courteous and respectful.

Mr. Ray was particularly pleased with the effort of the students during PA days and urged the youngsters to display this type of attitude at all times.

Father & Son Get-Together on June 11 at 7:00 p.m.

From the "King's Korner"—just a little note to introduce myself to the community of St. Joe. My name is Dennis King and I now serve the church of Christ here in St. Joe as their regular pulpit minister. This is not to imply that this is all that I do but it does describe my main task and that is to proclaim the marvelous riches of Jesus Christ. I hope that as I become acquainted with the community, I will come to know you and you to know me. Come by and visit us on any Lord's Day morning and prove to yourself that we, like Paul of old, desire to "Know nothing among you save Christ and Him Crucified." Keep this thought in mind as you go through life; "Go with God and He will go with You."

Board Rejects 2nd Petition

At a special meeting of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District board of education, held last Friday, the second of two petitions of grievance, filed by teacher- coach Johnny L. Zimmerman, was denied.

After deliberating in executive session about the matter, the board voted in open session to deny the petition in a three-point reply to the grievance:

"1. The evidence heard by the School Board at the hearing held for Johnny L. Zimmerman during the course of a regular School Board Meeting on May 16, 1977, indicated that Mr. Zimmerman did indeed have many infractions of rules and regulations noted in his file, but the evidence presented and on file also indicated to the School Board Members that Mr. Zimmerman's infractions were quite possibly so numerous that any building principal doing the job for which he was being paid would have caught Mr. Zimmerman at least as many times as did Principal Williams.

"2. After having personally and privately researched all of the personal files of all of the teachers who function on the campus of the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School, the School Board Members are of the opinion that those collective files did not warrant an opinion by the Board Members that Principal Williams did in fact single out or persecute Johnny L. Zimmerman.

"3. the Members of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District Board of School Trustees therefore find that the solution sought in the grievance by Johnny L. Zimmerman is already the policy of its administration."

The board was unanimous in its approval of the above reply to Zimmerman's charges of unequal treatment of faculty members by the board.

A letter from Diane White, vice-president of the eastern classroom teachers association, was delivered to the board by faculty member Nada Kelsey. The letter said the association felt some concern about the board minutes of the May 16 meeting and suggested that the board review the minutes to make certain they record accurately what transpired at the meeting. No specific inaccuracies were mentioned in the letter.

The association suggested that if the board wanted to hear specific questions about the minutes, the board should contact the association.

Minutes of the May 16 meeting were approved as read.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

I'm sorry to have disappointed good friend Margaret Dreup who gave me the following item for publication two issues ago—but it didn't appear because of lack of space (due to CETA advertising, referred to elsewhere in this issue) and then last week I overlooked the item. The type was set two weeks ago as follows:

Did you know—
—that Fern Walter of Spencerville will observe her 90th birthday May 29. She is a member of St. Peter Lutheran Church and its women's group and attends as she is able. Miss Walter has lived on the same farm her father bought in 1880. A brother, Henry, also resides at the homestead.

Margaret notes that in addition to Fern's 90 years, brothers Roscoe, Henry and Martin are 86, 81 and 78 years old, respectively.

After the defeat of the "common situs" picketing bill recently, the "National Federation of Independent Business," which opposed the legislation as did the National Right To Work Committee, published this warning:

"AFL-CIO is assessing its 14.2 million members one per cent per month for next six months to establish war-chest to lobby for common situs picketing, increased minimum wage, repeal of 'right-to-work' and 'reform' of National Labor Relations Act."

That assessment presumably is automatic—in other words, it doesn't matter what the members think about it, AFL-CIO leadership is arbitrarily instituting a one percent assessment.

It makes one wonder where former Indiana Representative Ed Roush is. He successfully worked to get Indiana's "Two Percent Club" abolished, a plan by which both Democrats and Republicans benefitted in raising campaign funds through contributions from public office holders.

Here we have organized labor undertaking a levy that is truly unfair, and not a peep has come from Mr. Roush in behalf of the "common man."

No, he isn't in Congress any more. But he's still in Washington with a nice EPA appointment. And there's nothing to prevent him, as an appointed office holder now, from speaking out against this labor-benefitting "one percent club." It's the "common man" who needs protecting in this case.

—Yoo-hoo — Mr. Roush — —.

The NFIB also tells that part of President Carter's energy conservation program reportedly includes authority to allow the government to FORCE businesses to switch from oil and gas TO COAL!

That IS a switch! Remember three winters ago when Indiana & Michigan Electric Company and other electric utilities were publishing ads urging Americans to support the use of coal so we wouldn't have to bow down to the sheiks and shahs to get petroleum for energy? I do. I remember that electricity was generated in part back then because the government ORDERED the utilities to quit using coal. Remember how our electric bill went up one-third in the dead of winter because the fuel adjustment was needed to cover the additional cost of generating electricity by the use of fuel oil.

The environmentalists and the EPA were wrong—dead wrong —and I&M was right!

—And who do you think pays the bill for governmental edicts which say now you do, now you don't to the electric utilities?

—You guessed it.

While it has been Republican effort basically to lead to the defeat of common situs, to lead to President Carter's withdrawal of his $50 tax rebate idea, to lead to better breaks for business in general, there have been many Democrats siding with the Republicans to get these things done. During hearings on the "Economic Stimulus" program President Carter has been pushing for some time, it was Democrats like Al Ullman of Oregon, Mr. Mikva of Illinois and Mr. Lederer of Pennsylvania who joined the effort to cut back on the inflation-breeding stimuli, according to the NFIB.

And don't forget that former football pro quarterback Jackie Kemp is becoming one of the top "quarterbacks" in the Republican Party in calling the shots for some really sound reforms. And his persistent suggestions have bipartisan support.

'H'sier Scholars'

The State Scholarship Commission has notified Eastside High School that additional members of the graduating class of Eastside High School have been named "Hoosier Scholars".

The newly named "Hoosier Scholars" are: Linda K. Ahrndt, Jordan M. Baughman, Michael R. Bissell, James A. Burns, Sharyl L. Carpenter, Lisa D. Ferguson, Daniel W. Haverstock, Chris A. Sipe, Phillip P. Staley, Rebecca S. Webb, Michael S. Zeigler.

Those named on the first list received were: Laura A. Bevington, Brian L. Burdick, David V. Kandel, Carl T. Kimmel, Lorna M. Reinhart, Jeffrey A. Surfus and Frederick Wagner.

Quayle Seeks StifferSentences

To deter armed assault, Congressman Dan Quayle (R-In) has introduced legislation to severely penalize and prohibit suspended sentences for those who use firearms or knives while committing a criminal act.

"We are searching for a way to make our homes and families safe from wanton criminal acts," the Fourth District Congressman said. "By prohibiting suspended sentences and insuring lengthy prison terms, we will deter criminals from the use of deadly weapons on innocent victims."

Quayle's bill is the first to state that crimes committed with a knife (dagger, dirk, stiletto, knife having a blade over three inches) are equally as dangerous as firearms and should be subject to the same penalties.

The latest crime statistics (1975) support the need to include knives with this legislation, Quayle pointed out. According to that report, a knife was used in more than 150,000 crimes or 28% of the assaults committed in this country in 1975. Knives were used in 3,200 of the murders committed.

Murders totalled 12,061 in 1975. Of the other 464,943 robberies which took place that year, 20% were committed with the aid of a knife and 33% with a firearm.

Blazers Downed In Sectional Despite 'Hud's' Brilliant Pitching Efforts

With Jeff Hudson hurling brilliantly last Saturday, the DeKalb Eastside Blazers defeated the Hamilton Marines 2-0 in the opening game of the DeKalb Sectional. "Hud" gave up only four hits, struck out five and walked one. Hamilton's Don Oberlin allowed the Blazers only three hits, also fanning five and walking one.

The first Blazer run scored after Hamilton's catcher dropped a foul fly with two out in the fifth inning. Rick Keener, the batter, then took advantage of the oppurtunity by singling up the middle for the Blazers' first hit. Lance Billings followed with another single. Then the Marines had the third out in their pockets again when Brent Resor grounded to second on a hit-and-run. But the grounder was bobbled and Keener scored.

The Blazers' second run came in the sixth with Rex Buell getting a clutch hit to bring in a run.

Thursday of this week, the Blazers faced DeKalb Central. "Hud" once again pitched an excellent game but Don DeWitt pitched a little better, giving up only one hit, to Lance Billings. Central won 3-0.

In other games Garrett defeated East Noble and Angola beat Leo. Garrett then downed Angola to go into the championship game with DeKalb which the Barons won, 3-1, for the sectional title.

CETA Ads Bring Reader Response

- Or - How Government Corrupts

An alert reader called Tuesday night to comment about the May 16 issue.

I think the young lady caller gave her name but I don't remember it because she got right into the "meat" of the questions on her mind. One question: why did you have 40% of the May 16 issue taken up by advertisements of CETA? Apparently she thought the ads should have been smaller. Another question: were the ads "public service" announcements (in other words, free of charge) or were they paid for by the public through CETA?

My answer was that CETA pays for such ads. I also noted that probably every newspaper in the nation ran similar ads. At least, in this area, the same ads were run in every newspaper and it represents a sizable expense.

The caller expressed surprise that I would run such ads and be paid for them since for instance, in the same issue letters from Senator Birch Bayh and Congressman Dan Quayle replied to my letters sent to them opposing the establishment of a consumer protection agency because it would just be another drain on the taxpayer through another bureaucratic arm of government.

I told the young lady I was not too happy to publish the CETA ads because they represent the government urging citizens to run to the government for jobs. I also told the young lady that I could not refuse to publish the ads unless the contents are questionable. I also said that, in this case, the contents are "questionable" in my mind, but it involves politics and opinions, and I could not refuse ads on that basis. When I made the statement something like, "Basically, I can't refuse advertising space to anyone who says, 'I have an ad and I want to pay for it'," the young lady said thank you and then hung up before I could say anything more.

I wish she hadn't. I wanted to talk some more about the matter because I believe this involves freedom of speech and freedom of the press - two items which, incidentally, were the main motivation for the lengthy "open letter" to the county daily also appearing in the May 16 issue.

Much as I may disagree with a specific item submitted to this paper, whether it is in the form of a news release or in the form of paid advertising, I cannot tamper with the contents of such items To do so is to violate the basic right of an individual or an organization to express itself to the public. I know that there are those who have said I have "changed it all around and it comes out different from what was given to you."

However, I have never knowingly or purposely changed news releases or letters to the editor to make them come out with a different thought than was intended by the original writer or writers. And next March will mark my 30th year as editor, so I am biting off a big chunk in making such a statement.

The only changes I have ever knowingly made have been to to clarify grammar or sentence structure, or to correct misspelled words, this to save embarrassment for the writer or writers. However, in some instances I do not make any corrections because I believe that, according to who has submitted article or news item, there are times when "leaving it just the way it is" is necessary for one reason or another.

Sometimes you can't win. Having had people say, "I (or we) want this in the paper just as it is written" AND having had other people say, "You change it around any way you think best - I'm not too good on writing," there have been times when I didn't make corrections and should have, and times when I did make corrections or changes and shouldn't have. The writers have let me know afterwards. So my judgment has not been perfect in in that respect.

But - back to the CETA ad caller - my judgment has been "perfect" concerning freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Despite what others have said to the contrary, I have never refused to publish material brought to the news office even if that material was contrary to my outlook - except on one occasion going back more than 25 years. On that occasion, old Phil Collins, a war veteran who lived in and was caretaker of the local Legion Post home, got upset when the late Pete Wafter decided he wanted his whole building (where the Nosey Nook is now located) for his own business purposes. Old Phil was so upset over the need for the Elton Howards and the Garford Smiths to move out (they ran the soda fountain and sundries store at one time) - old Phil was so upset, he wrote a poem objecting to Pete's taking over his own building and referred to something like "an old grocer rat." While the incident occurred early in my journalistic career, I still recognized the unfairness of the poem and that it was a personal attack. After all, it was Pete's building; he had the right to take it over when the lease ran out. I refused to publish the poem - and that is the only refusal I can recall in almost 30 years.

I wish the young lady would get in touch with me again. I am interested in finding out whether she was surprised I would publish the CETA ads because of my past opinions about government programs to "create" jobs, or whether her questions were raised because she would like to see a "consumer protection agency" set up and my views hit a sore spot. I don't want to argue necessarily; I am just interested in what her views are and why on the CETA program and the consumer matter.

If any other readers wonder why so much space was devoted to the CETA ads, the answer is (as I told the caller), "That's the size ad they placed in every newspaper. It was CETA's request for that much space." Some newspapers got still another ad from CETA: I didn't.

Frankly, I didn't want to run the ads - and if this gets back to CETA, they will probably shut me off from further advertising but continue to place it in other papers who keep their mouths shut. But I did run them because I can't refuse requests for space without depriving someone of freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

There's another reason why I "prostituted" myself in this matter, seemingly went against my principles in a sense..... I need the money.

And therein lies the "cancer" eating away at the United States of America. When it becomes so rough that cities, towns, counties, townships, governors, mayors, town boards, county councils, trustees - and small weekly newspapers - must rely on federal government for a portion of income in order to "make it," we have all become "prostitutes," selling our principles, our beliefs, our independence, to get back about one-third of the dollars that were taken from us in the form of federal taxation of all types. The other two-thirds goes to government workers who tell us IF we can get those dollars back and under what conditions.

Community Club In Fund Drive

The Spencerville Community Club is currently conducting a fund-raising drive to help reduce the balance remaining on the building-real estate mortgage.

The old Community Building, formerly the Spencer Township gym, was destroyed by fire in January of 1970. Since that time a $50,000 investment in a new building and grounds, kitchen and dining facilities, a large indoor recreation area, a baseball diamond, a lighted outdoor basketball court and a large parking lot have been constructed.

Over the years, profits from festivals, dinners and renting the building have gradually reduced the debt to the current status of $13,564.99. Contributions in the amount of nearly $1,000 have been received by the club during the current drive.

Those who wish to contribute may mail their donations to: Spencerville Community Club, Building Fund, P.O. Box 21, Spencerville, Indiana 46788.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

This is to acknowledge and thank you for your Congressiongressional Mandate Ballot no. 401 which has been sent to me by the National Federation of Independent Business. Your views, along with those of other NIFB members in the 4th District, have been noted with interest by me.

You will recall that a key issue on the ballot concerned an increase in the federal minimum wage. Only last week the Administration testified before the House Education and Labor Committee in suport of an increase to $2.60 per hour.

Just as I am opposed to the recent congressional pay raise, I am against increasing the minimum wage at this time because it is inflationary and would hurt most part-time teenage workers, and the unskilled.

Thank you again for keeping me posted on your thinking on issues of importance to the survival of small business.

With best wishes.

Sincerely,
Dan Quayle

—that I&M has been overcharging the city of Butler since March of 1972 in the cost of street lighting. The utility recently discovered the error and will give the city some 31 days of lighting already paid for — or should we say "nights"?

—that MM William Reeves of Butler are parents of a son born recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that an alcohol and drugs raid north of Waterloo on a recent Saturday a.m. resulted in the arrest of 98 adults and 38 juveniles. About 50 police officers from five area departments conducted the raid. Charges of "favoritism" by some of the arrested youth were countered by Deputy Sheriff Larry Thrush who noted that four of those arrested were sons or relations of local policemen. The raid was supported by many parents who said they didn't know where their children had been or what kind of party they were attending. The youngest in the arrested group was 13 years old.

—that MM Michael Carnahan of R2 Auburn are parents of a son born recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Charles Curie and Larry Carter recently received degrees at Huntington College.

—that the local Rosenbury boys were NOT involved in the liquor-drug "bust" at Waterloo recently, contrary to rumors.

—that following a worship service at 10:15 a.m. Sunday, May 29, at Coburn Corners Church of Christ, the congregation went to Alton Cemetery for a Memorial Day service.

—that trucks carry 99% of livestock to market and nearly all poultry and eggs from farm to market.

DAR Meets

The John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met April 9 at the home of Mrs. Virgil Cowan of Garrett. Mrs. Hubert Kinsey and Mrs. Clay Latier assisted the hostess. 13 members were present.

Mrs. Lawrence Roberts led the DAR ritual and the pledge to the flag. She read the President General's message after which a National Defense Report was given by Mrs. Calvin Carnahan.

A booklet entitled, "Washington Landmarks," has been presented to the Eckhart Library by Mrs. Carnahan.

Members were reminded of articles which veterans can use, such as commemmorative stamps, greeting cards, stationery and coupons, also articles for the Indians such as good used clothing and junk-jewelry. These articles can be taken to the next meeting.

It was announced that Dr. Bonnell Souder is now a new member of DAR.

Tentative plans are under way for a luncheon honoring new members and inviting prospective members, Mrs. Alan Hardenbrook in chairman.

Mrs. Joseph Newkirk presented a program on conservation entitled, "Wildlife In Your Backyard." All wild life needs water, food, cover and a place to raise their young, she said. And turning a back yard into a wildlife habitat can be done in three stages. First, plant large and small trees, second plant shrubs, and third—wait for it to grow. If a backyard wildlife habitat meets certain standards, a Wildlife Registration Certificate will be awarded as a national bicentennial project.

If a backyard is not readily useful, birds and squirrels can be cared for and enjoyed by using a window box or planter that includes flowers, a water pan and bird seed.

DeKalb County Preschool For Handicapped Info

—by Mike Graham
Acting Director, phnoe 925-3865

(The second of a series)

The preschool services provided involve activities directed toward the alleviation of the disability and toward social, personal and physical rehabilitation. Such services would include evaluation, treatment, personal care, training, education and recreation, as well as counseling and information, and referral services for the family where appropriate.

Presently, there are two programs offered, the Preschool Program and the Infant Stimulation Program. The Preschool Program includes children from age 3 to 6. Classes are held in the classrooms of the First United Methodist Church in Auburn. That congregation has graciously agreed to offer the use of their facilities.

Class begins at 8:30 a.m. and continues until 11:00 a.m. During class time the child may receive academic training, speech therapy, physical therapy and valuable social interaction with other children.

Children in the Infant Stimulation Program do not attend the school itself. This program, designed for children under age 3, is carried on within the child's home environment. The school's teacher visits the child's home on a regular basis, usually for one hour per week.

One of the main goals is to assist the parents in the training of their own baby. It is assumed that no one knows the child like the parents and that with assistance from trained personnel they can be the most effective teachers.

According to the present arrangement, the school's physical therapist also makes regular home visits with the teacher, generally about once per month, to give additional assistance and instruction. Plans are being made for the speech therapist to become involved in the infant program. This could represent a significant improvement in the service being offered to infants and babies.

The present staff consists of two state-certified teachers, a licensed physical therapist, a licensed speech therapist and two experienced staff assistants. The student-staff ratio is kept intentionally high in order to provide a high degree of individual attention.

The school's schedule of classes generally coincides with that of the local public school systems.

Poem For Father's Day In 'Letters'

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

My uncle is Willard Maxwell and he sends me the St. Joe News which I thoroughly enjoy. I wrote a poem in memory of my Dad, Roy E. Maxwell, who taught schools there for many years and lived nearly all his life on the farm east of St. Joe. He passed away a few years ago and I wondered if you might publish my poem in time for Father's Day:

(Dedicated to Roy E. Maxwell)
DEAR DAD,
You may not be with us—
Not anymore—but then—
I picked a little bouquet,
And thought of 'way back when
I helped you carry water
From the pump out by the barn,
You'd spy a 4-leaf clover,
And said 'twould do no harm—
To put it in my pocket for good luck
And all that day
I wondered what would happen
To bring good luck my way.
Well, you taught me how to hoe and weed—
The flowers' names—to gather seed.
So this bouquet is just for you,
It has one red clover and a honeysuckle stem,
With such heavenly fragrance—and then—
I picked a tiny red rose,
No bigger than a dime,
And thought of the yellow ones,
You said they could be mine.
Next I found a plain old weed
But it is filled with love,
For it's as bright and shiny
As the sunshine up above.
The last one was a baby blue,
I found it in the grass—
A tiny little flower—
So I put them in a glass.
It's just a tiny bouqet
From Georgia, where I live.
I know that you would like it
And sniff and say with a smile—
"Boy! that honeysuckle's a nuisance,
But you can smell it for a mile!"

P.S. I know a lot of Dad's old friends have passed on, but I hope you see fit to publish this for him and for the friends he had that are still living; and for my aunt and uncle who live on our farm now.

Thank you!
Sincerely,
Pat Euton

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Attached is a News Release from the American Gas Association which effectively refutes James R. Schlesinger's allegation that deregulation of new natural gas would cost consumers $120 billion by 1985.

Deregulation will cost $39 billion (in inflated dollars) at the most by 1985 which represents an increase of only 8%. More important however, it makes development of our untapped natural gas supplies feasible. Even with deregulation, natural gas would continue to be the best energy buy since all other energies will also rise in cost. In addition, it's our most efficient and environmentally pure energy.

We feel this is a story that the public must understand and hope that you will see fit to use it at your earliest opportunity.

Very truly yours,
W. H. Cassady
Vice President
(Northern Indiana Fuel and Light Company, Inc.)

Dear Sir,

I have read your letters in the Journal Gazette and I have appreciated them. Now I would like to write one for your paper.

Just recently I came back home again to Indiana to visit our family plot at the Alton Grove Cemetery. When we drove up, there was a group of volunteers cleaning the cemetery, and I would like to compliment them for that. It was a job desperately needed but the cemetery needs cleaning and trimming regularly.

I asked one of the men about a caretaker and about the perpetual care we had paid for. Well, what it boils down to, it just is not getting done and there is no one to do it.

I woud like to give you information on what is being done in our county. It was voted some time ago that the township trustees and city officials would hire men to take care of all the cemeteries in their township (usually a retired man will take charge and be in charge of some teenagers or other retired men to do the job). Even a little cemetery back in the middle of a field is taken care of. One township hired a man through CETA, and he has done a beautiful job with their cemeteries and cutting brush along the road.

I have always felt proud of Indiana and have always felt they were way out and ahead of things. I hope my few words will help in still one more way.

Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you we pay 1 mil in taxes to keep our cemeteries up. This is voted on every 2 or 4 years and it is well worth it.

Sincerely,
Margaret (Hart) Keppeler
R2 Edgerton, Ohio 43517

P.S. I would like to take your newspaper. Could you send me information on the price?

Ted:

Thanks for your cooperation in sending us the paper. It keeps us up to date on our former friends who are now old-timers like ourselves.

Phoenix, Arizona

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I read with interest your cogent arguments against the proposals to create an Agency for Consumer Advocacy. I agree with your conclusion.

The plan to establish a consumer protection agency would create a vast new bureaucracy at tremendous cost to the tax payer without any assurance that it will actually promote the interest of the consumer. I believe that there are existing agencies within the federal government capable of dealing with consumer issues. If they are not operating effectively, the answer is reform of those agencies and not the imposition of an entirely new structure.

I appreciate your view on this issue, and I look forward to your continued correspondence.

Richard G. Lugar
U.S. Senator

Anita Bryant Leads Just Cause

Too much publicity has been given in the past few weeks to a subject which shouldn't even be in the news. That subject is homosexuality. The American public has been bombarded by "pros and cons" concerning a law in Dade County, Florida. The extensive publicity tends to convince people that the homosexual individual is an acceptable part of society, that homosexuality is something you have a "right" to choose, as you would choose an automobile in preference to another automobile, or as you would pick one college or university in preference to another college or university because it offers what you want.

Though the public vote was 2 to 1 on the "side" of former Miss America Anita Bryant, she is being attacked by those who sought to have homosexuality become recognized as a "minority group." That's the way some of those individuals have referred to themselves, a "minority group" with legitimate identification through their homosexuality.

And there are those who support Miss Bryant's attackers, including the editorial department of the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. Another source of support for homosexuals comes from the National Organization for Women (NOW) whose president has accused Miss Bryant of "teaching intolerance and bigotry—paths which lead only to violence and killing."

Homosexuals have received support from President Carter, our Bible-totin' President, who has granted conferences to homosexuals through his staff.

This is a case where it is difficult to understand how such a conflict can arise in a society which is based on the recognition of God. Our American heritage is symbolized by a pledge taken with a hand on the Bible. Religious freedom exists ONLY because of God-based religion in this nation. And when the entire Bible is considered in total, when the Old Testament accounts are enhanced by the writers of the New Testament, one very definite truth is apparent concerning homosexuals—their sex acts are unnatural, are "evil."

There is no such thing as "homosexual rights," any more than there is such a thing as rights for blue-eyed girls or rights for six-foot boys.

Plain truth is that homosexuals are abnormal. It is not a fault; it is the result of some quirk in their nature which alters their personality development in sex matters. In other words, they are mentally sick.

If, as they claim, 10% of the nation's population is homosexual, it is an indication to me of just how sick our society has become. And the greatest danger is that, by such declarations, homosexuals MAY convince more people as time goes on that homosexuality IS a matter of choice, a lifestyle which every individual has the right to consider for himself or herself.

Miss Bryant, in her crusade to "Save the Children" from exposure to homosexuals in schools, has taken up a cause which represents the concern of a Christian. If the national president of NOW thinks Miss Bryant is intolerant and bigoted, SHE is intolerant and bigoted. Miss Bryant has the right, as does every parent and adult, to do what they believe is necessary to overcome evil, especially when children are involved.

If the national president of NOW thinks Miss Bryant is leading us down a path to "violence and killing," then how does she explain her opinion that Miss Bryant's "save our children" slogan should be renamed "save some of our children—discard the rest"?

Eleanor Smeal, the national president of NOW is quoted as comparing Miss Bryant's efforts to the Nazi persecution of Jews in World War II.

Miss Smeal has exposed her lack of intelligence. How can you compare efforts to protect young people from an un-Godly influence to the murder of Godly people just for the sake of extermination? This shows how "far out" the civil rights and human rights idea can go.

I said at the start that too much attention was being given to the matter of homosexuality. Maybe I'm wrong. Maybe it's a good thing because it could nudge a lot of people into doing some Bible reading and refresh their memories about God's wrath, God's condemnation of "men who sleep with men and women who sleep with women" in the Old Testment. The term "sodomy" (unnatural sex acts ESPECIALLY between men as the dictionary states it) has its foundation in criminal law from the history of the city of Sodom, destroyed because of its wickedness. That destruction came from God and the "wickedness" is the unnatural sex relationships involving men with men. Miss Bryant's concern about a law granting "rights" to homosexuals is based on God-respecting religious fact.

The truth is, if any parent or adult, whether Christian or Jew, is not upset and concerned about the presence of a homosexual in contact with their children or the children of others, they are failing in their responsibility to protect the welfare of those children.

While homosexuals are to be feared, they are not to be condemned. It is not the person but the ACT that makes people like Miss Bryant rise in protest. The Judeo-Christian responsibility is to be forgiving, not condemning. However, that forgiveness does not mean homosexuality is to be accepted as a normal pattern of living. It is quite the opposite; it is abnormal and unnatural.

The argument by spokesmen for and supporters of homosexuals in the current controversy that they can function just as efficiently as anyone else in their daily living, that they are not out to "corrupt" young people through personal contacts just do not reflect actual experience of mankind. Nations are destroyed because individual character is destroyed under the "do your own thing" idea.

Anita Bryant is doing what ought to be done to confirm the fact that this nation has direct and fundament ties with the one God in our pursuit of individual liberty and responsibility — — UNDER GOD.

'75 Beating Brings Sentence, Fine

At a trial held May 26 in DeKalb Circuit Court, Denver Lee Sparkman, 20, of Auburn was found guilty of assault and battery in the August 1975 beating of Michael R. Haberkorn, 31, of Saint Joe. The jury verdict brought with it a 30-day sentence in the county jail and a $500 fine. The lesser charge of assault and battery was a part of the primary charge of aggravated assault and battery, a felony which could have meant a prison term and a fine.

At a preliminary hearing several months ago, it was brought out under questioning by Prosecuting Attorney H. Charles Winans that Sparkman is considered legally blind and receives a $150 per month disability pension under the Social Security program. Sparkman indicated at the May trial that he can identify a person only at very close range. Beyond that, the image is only of a blurred object.

Haberkorn testified he had enough to drink the night of the incident to "flunk a breathalizer test" if he took one. He said he was spoken to by the driver of a car in the tavern parking lot at Saint Joe as he left around 1:00 a.m. The driver and Haberkorn conversed outside the car, he said; the other occupants, including Sparkman, remained inside the car at the time. Haberkorn could not identify Sparkman at the trial as the person who struck him. He said the attacker came from behind him.

Dr. Clifford Shultz testified that three pints of blood were administered to Haberkorn after the victim was taken to DeKalb Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment. The doctor said he sutured a scalp wound. Deputy Prosecutor Gerald McNerny, who presented the state's case, said the wound required 30 to 35 stitches. Dr. Shultz said the victim was hospitalized five days. There was no testimony elicited that the victim remained under the doctor's care for many weeks before being released, as was the case.

Haberkorn said he talked with the driver of the car, an argument with the other occupants ensued during which he said he grabbed one of them by the shirt and pulled him forward, then released the occupant when the latter complained of his shirt being torn. He said his next recollection was of turning around, during continued conversation with the car driver outside the car, to see a weapon coming down on him.

In final summation, Sparkman's defense counsel, from the firm of Grimm & Grimm, said that Haberkorn started the incident by calling the young men "punks," grabbed Sparkman and slapped him around, cut Sparkman's mouth in the process, tore Sparkman's shirt in trying to pull Sparkman from the car, and generally made Sparkman fearful of a beating.

However, Sparkman's testimony earlier during the trial indicated that the mouth cut was suffered when he pulled back into the car and bumped his mouth on the car window or car frame. He also said that he had been playing softball before being picked up by his companions to "look for some girls," that his companions had had a six-pack of beer, four of which were consumed before Sparkman was picked up, and that he had "half a beer" before the group parked at the tavern at Saint Joe.

None of Sparkman's testimony indicated that Haberkorn had used his fists or any weapon during the incident. Sparkman said he picked up the "tire iron" as he got out of the car on the opposite side. He said he struck the victim twice, once on the arm, once on the head, then checked to see if the victim's heart was still beating. The group then left the parking lot.

Haberkorn was found later by Jay Loy, the victim lying mostly under another vehicle in the lot. There was no explanation how the victim got there. His billfold was found nearby but this was not brought out in testimony at the trial.

Deputy Sheriff Roger Metcalf testified that Sparkman appeared at the sheriff's office after the deputy had attempted to contact Sparkman who was out of the city at the time. Metcalf said Sparkman voluntarily made a statement of what transpired during the incident.

The statement made by Sparkman came several months after the attack occurred. Sparkman was implicated on evidence presented to the sheriff's department by outside sources. There had been no thorough investigation officially by the sheriff's department.

Instructions to the jury on verdict possibilities brought the explanation by Judge Harold Stump that Indiana law allows a person to defend themselves against threat of injury or what they think is a threat of injury. However, such defense is allowed without liability for the results of such defense only if "reasonable" measures are used for such defense.

The jury verdict appeared to recognize the fault of both parties in the incident but that the use of a tire iron was not "reasonable" for self-defense in this particular instance.

The guilty verdict on a lesser charge appeared to indicate a reluctance on the part of the jury to subject Sparkman to the undesirable influences found in a state prison, especially in view of his age and his sight handicap.

Following the trial, deputy prosecutors McNerny and Dan Brinkerhoff, as well as the beating victim himself, stated informally that they did not want to see Sparkman sent to the state prison and that they felt the jury verdict was "fair."

Gas Company Says Cost Of De-regulation Is Exaggerated

American Gas Association President George H. Lawrence said last week that Administration estimates that deregulation of new natural gas would cost consumers at least $120 billion in higher energy bills by 1985 are "grossly exaggerated and contribute to Congressional and public confusion on vital energy policy."

Commenting on testimony by James R. Schlesinger, Jr., the President's energy advisor, before a House Commerce Subcommittee, Lawrence said, "The figure which the Administration should use is $39 billion ($25 billion in constant 1977 dollars) cumulative to 1985 and even that cost vanishes by about 1990. This represents an increase of only 8 per cent in gas consumers' total energy bill between now and 1985.

"It's particularly ironic that the Administration is prepared to impose a $40 billion bill on the American consumer through an industrial gas users tax — a tax which produces not one molecule of gas supply — but is totally unwilling to support deregulation at a lower consumer cost with the strong added benefit of increasing our domestic gas energy supply by nearly 5 trillion cubic feet by 1985," he added.

"The debate over the cost of deregulation of gas must not become a meaningless political numbers game," he continued. "The relative fact is that even under deregulation with higher prices, gas will continue to be the best energy buy for the nation's consumers because the price of all other energies will also rise — and they're already higher than gas."

Lawrence emphasized that the $39 billion figure represents the highest of several realistic price ranges for new gas studied by A.G.A. Also, in the longer term (about 1990), the difference in overall cost to the nation between continued regulation and deregulation will disappear because of the large volumes of replacement energy needed as a result of declining gas production from continued regulation.

Lawrence said A.G.A. has requested that the White House reveal the method and numbers used at arriving at the $120 billion estimate.

Lawrence said he assumed that the Administration's inordinately high estimates are due to a failure to consider the much higher cost of energy which would have to replace the approximately 4 Tcf of additional gas that deregulation would produce by 1985.

"Mr. Schlesinger's figures are more than confusing," Lawrence said, "they're dead wrong. The true cost of deregulation will more than pay for itself in more efficient and environmentally pure energy, more jobs and a stronger U.S. economy."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I hope that no one got upset over the letter appearing last week about the upkeep of Alton Park Cemetery. I didn't get the impression that Margaret Keppeler was writing in anger, rather to offer a suggestion.

Harold Curie gave me some information this week to clarify the circumstances this year at Memorial Day time. Hart's Nursery has taken care of the cemetery. But with the late Harold Kagey not around, and with son Dick Kagey, at college, things didn't fall exactly into place. But as soon as Dick got home, he did the necessary work at the cemetery.

In 1837, according to Harold, the plot of ground was deeded to the Coburn Corners Church of Christ for a church building and for a burial ground. The building was built a mile south but the plot still was utilized, and still is, for burial purposes.

Dan Ransom told me this week that someone from Hamilton says he was in the 58th Armored Artillery Battalion in 1945 with somebody from Saint Joe.

Anyone know who it is???

Ed Ludwig of Newville started a flower shop at his place a couple of years ago. Later he bought into a Hicksville flower shop. Back troubles forced him to get out of that venture last year and he was hospitalized for treatment.

Now Ed is back on his feet again—and doing business from his little shop at Newville.

I mention this for the benefit of those in the area who patronized Ed's shop in the past and once again have him close by and convenient.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met May 26 at the Spencerville Community Building. Alice Hollabaugh, Barbara Longbrake, Mildred McKinley and Marjorie Howey were hostesses.

Members attended in overalls and old clothes for the "hard times" party. The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after prayer by Maurice Gerig, all enjoyed the bountiful potluck supper which included a beautifully decorated birthday cake.

President Ida Reed conducted a brief business meeting. Greetings were extended to those present. A bill of $3.29 for coffee was allowed. "Happy Birthday" was sung to Mary Rutherford and Vivian Bottoms and their birthday offerings were received.

Maurice Gerig showed pictures and told of the trip he and Mrs. Gerig took to the Hawaiian Islands. His presentation was very interesting and greatly enjoyed by all present.

MM Lehr Wilder, MM William Harter and Leon Goodwin will host the June 23 meeting—same time—same place.

Barons Win Regional Title

After a rainout Saturday, the tourney saw Central take a 1-0 win over Wayne of Fort Wayne.

Don DeWitt gave up only 4 hits in going all the way. The Barons had only two hits.

Then the homerun barrage came in the championship game against Snider of Fort Wayne. Dana Post and Gary Baughman hit three-run homers and Jeff Gipple got a round tripper with nobody on base.

The Barons now face Hammond Gavit Saturday at South Bend in the semi-state.

DAR Meets

The Annual Historic Tour of the John Houlton Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution was held in Fort Wayne at the historic Old Fort.

The fort is a reconstruction of the last frontier military post of what is now the State of Indiana. The group witnessed the second special event of 1977, in which the Brigade of the American Revolution, a national organization, recreated the life and times of the common soldier. Both military and domestic aspects of a soldier's life were demonstrated.

Special attention was given to the color of uniforms, as they allowed rapid identification of friend or foe on the battlefield.

The schedule for the day included formation, inspection, trooping of the coluors, and review.

The day's activities were climaxed by luncheon at the Gas House. 11 members and guests were present. Mrs. Ronald Roseberry was in charge of arrangements.

The chapter participated in the Memorial Day parade in Auburn. In the car driven by Mrs. John Martin Smith were Mrs. Lawrence Robert, Regent; Ann Margaret Roberts; Mrs. Everett Allen, Mrs. Marlin Yoder and Mrs. David Bowes.

Invitations have been issued for a luncheon at the Greenhurst Country Club in Auburn June 18 honoring new members of the chapter. This event concludes activities for the year.

Mildred Hansen Retires After 31 Years' Teaching

Mildred Hansen of Saint Joe retired from teaching at the end of the 1976-1977 school year after 31 years as vocal music ter 31 years in art-vocal music instruction.

She taught four years at Roanoke, seven years at Lincoln School in Allen County, seven years at Leo, one year at Saint Joe, six years at DeKalb Central, four years at Fort Wayne and the past two years at Garrett.

She majored in music and art at Manchester College and did graduate work at the University of Minnesota and Indiana University. She obtained her master's degree at Saint Francis College in Fort Wayne.

While at DeKalb Central in 1971, 14 of Mrs. Hansen's students were accepted by the Band and Choir of America and she accompanied them on a tour of Europe.

Senior League Has Much Help

The article a couple of weeks ago about those responsible for getting the Senior League baseball diamond in shape omitted several names. The omissions were not intentional.

In addition to the previously-mentioned Jerry Vinson, Jerry Markle and Ron Walter, there should be included Dean Emerson, Larry Emenhiser, Duane Voirol and Ron Eichel.

Gene Casebere provided paint for the concession stand, with Carolyn Vinson, Sherry Sowards, MM Ben Lengacher, Ron and Sue Eichel and Bill Vinson providing the labor.

Loretta Musser, Riverdale School secretary, helped to get information to students in the school about the Senior League, Little League and girls' softball.

A new scoreboard at the Senior League diamond was donated by Pepsi Cola. The stand has Pepsi, hot dogs, fresh popcorn, candy and pop for refreshments.

There are two Senior League teams from this area involving 24 boys, three Little League teams with a total of 43 boys and one girls' softball team with 15 girls.

Barb Voirol is coaching the girls' softball team. Games are played every Tuesday morning at 8 a.m. at Butler.

Little League games are being moved from the softball diamond to the Senior League diamond to eliminate the need for moving the concession stand back and forth.

PeeWee games will be played at the local softball diamond.

Coburn Corners Church Of Christ Plans New House Of Worship

Deterioration of the present church building due to its age, plus the need for expanded facilities, have resulted in plans for a total new structure for the Coburn Corners Church of Christ located southeast of Saint Joe on State Road 101.

Consideration of the project began under former minister Larry Carter several months ago. Progress has gone to the point where plans have been drawn and are currently undergoing minor modifications. Approval is probable in the very near future.

John Paul Hill, who recently returned to the Coburn Corners church as its minister, said this week that the building will contain 7,200 square feet, an 80x90 structure. Another 1,600 square feet of space is part of a second phase of construction, depending on the ability of the congregation to raise adequate funds.

"As soon as we're $19,000 above our current giving, we'll have the ground-breaking," Pastor Hill said.

The sanctuary will seat 250 with four rooms at the rear to serve as classrooms, fellowship hall and overflow area seating 150 people. At the side of the sanctuary will be two rooms to accommodate an overflow of 60 more persons, making a possible seating capacity of 460.

In addition there will be rooms for the pastor's office, secretary, assistant minister, a nursery, restrooms, kitchen, storage and a preparation room for baptisms.

The parsonage will be used for educational purposes during the first phase of the building program to augment space in the new building used for educational purposes.

In addition to the $200,000-plus cost of the new church building, an additional $32,000 is designated for internal facilities.

C.J. Maxton Observes 50th Year

Maxton Motors of Butler is currently observing its 50th anniversary, or rather the 50th anniversary of its founder, C.J. Maxton, in selling automobiles.

Born in Steuben County in 1904 and raised on a farm between Angola and Hamilton, "C.J." had hard work on the farm and a two-mile walk each day each way for his early schooling to give him a good sense of values. He attended high school in Angola, graduating in 1922. He received a teaching certificate from Tri-State College and taught two years thereafter.

He married Audra Zimmer at about the same time he went to work for L. O. Gates, a Ford dealer in Hamilton. His automobile selling career began in 1927 when the Model T was in style. Later he became a Chevrolet dealer and expanded still later to include Buick, Pontiac and Oldsmobile.

Through the years "C.J." gained a nationwide reputation despite his "small town" location.

Possibly the biggest boost in car sales for "C.J." came because of his honesty. The story is that, shortly after World War II, "C.J." had a Buick convertible in stock. Someone in the entertainment field got wind of it and wanted to buy the car which had a legitimate price tag of around $2,200. A Texas oil man also wanted the car and made a $4,100 offer. But "C.J." said he didn't do business that way—and sold it to an entertainer-manager for the legitimate price.

The word got around to others in the entertainment field, and "C.J." had the likes of actress Rhonda Fleming, band leaders and composers Skitch Henderson, Tiny Thornhill, Ted Fiorito and Benny Goodman, singers Frankie Lane and Connie Haines, and many others, ordering their cars from the small town Indiana dealer.

But the biggest "fuss" occurred when Liberace came to Butler to take delivery of a new car. That was in 1954 and the Butler area was really excited at the prospects of having one of television's top entertainers visit Butler.

"C.J." retired in 1964 as president and general manager of Maxton Motors. Son Jack took on those responsibilities. In 1968 Jack bought a dealership in Ohio and Dick Bercaw became vice-president and general manager, a position he still holds.

Through the years, "C.J." has been an active civic leader. He was a prime factor in the success recorded in 1960 and 1961 when the county subscribed to the construction of DeKalb Memorial Hospital. In addition to helping organize the solicitation campaign, he donated $20,000 to the hospital fund.

Maxton Motors is currently observing the golden anniversary featuring several new cars finished in — gold paint, naturally.

EHS Baseball

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers droped two 1-run losses in the first two games of their summer baseball schedule.

Last Thursday at Kendallville, the Blazers had a 3-2 lead going into the last of the seventh. But Jeff Hudson, who pitched the entire game, gave up two walks. A triple brought those runners around and that was the ball game.

Tuesday on their home diamond, the Blazers were edged 7-6 by Central Noble. Hudson and Lance Billings pitched. A dozen walks helped Central Noble to the win.

10-Hour Session In Negotiations

It was reported Wednesday of this week that a 10-hour session between DeKalb eastern school board and teacher negotiators this week had brought some progress.

Attorney H. Charles Winans serves as spokesman for the school board and Donna Hollabaugh for the teachers in current negotiations.

It was reported that some 14 points had been agreed upon, but none of the points were explained or identified.

Another negotiation session is set for next week.

CETA Continues On Merry Way

To show how entrenched the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) is becoming in our society, Ball State University has received a grant of $24,972 to set up an information center so that information relating to Indiana, Delaware County and Muncie city government will be more accessible to the public. It's called a "government information and data archive." The project director will hire three people through the Indiana Employment Security Office next month (this is what they call "creating jobs") to help in cataloging data and putting it in retrievable form. The system will include legislative roll call votes of the General Assembly, Delaware County and Muncie councils, voting and election returns for state offices and Delaware County and Muncie offices, and a digest of current statutes and ordinances.

Thus, through CETA (and that's our tax money), one city will get the benefits of a $24,000 project which adds four more people to the government payroll, one way or another.

And—thus, while a majority of Americans do not think government programs are the way to increase employment, CETA continues in its determined way to do exactly the opposite of what the public thinks should be done.

Butler Park Board Reverses Trend

A "turnaround" in the direction of the Butler Park Board is apparent with the announcement this week by board president Joe Shelton that summer park and recreation programs have been abandoned due to the lack of funds.

In the past few years, under other leadership, the park board was formed primarily to qualify for federal grants. There was a big "push" for parks and Butler now has five of them. A "push" was also made by the same leadership to get the county to establish a park board for the same primary purpose—to get federal money. However, the county council and commissioners did not take action.

Mr. Shelton has said that the funds to maintain Butler parks must come from that community, from private efforts.

The park board also appears ready to sell certain real estate to get money to maintain two or perhaps three parks in an adequate manner. The property was acquired in the "push" of the recent past for more parks and for a swimming pool for Butler. The pool project never "got off the ground" due to virtual total lack of support from Butler business and industry.

"The current proposals of the new park board appear to reflect a comment heard from a Butlerite some months ago: "What the — do we need five parks for!"

Babies Need 'The Old Way'

In one of the Fort Wayne dailies of the recent past, there was a feature column on the benefits derived from mothers' breast-feeding their newborn infants. The benefits are for both child and mother.

For many years, the philosophy was followed that getting the baby on a "formula" as soon as possible was the proper approach to infant nurishment. It relieved the mother of some of the "bother" that goes with taking care of an infant, an offshoot in thought no doubt of the civil rights and human rights emphasis in recent years. The idea was there, but not spoken, that the mother had a right to her own life and pleasures; therefore, take away the burden of breastfeeding the little ones as they come into the world. In a way, the idea was helpful because it eased the potential feeling of guilt in the minds of those mothers who could not breastfeed their infants. It must be recognized that some are honestly incapable of breastfeeding their little ones.

However, the limited advantages of formula-feeding were allowed to dominate the matter of infant feeding, from what I read and recall in years past. And although the benefits of breast-feeding were still acknowledged, generally speaking, they were cast aside in favor of the "modern" approach.

What struck me about the recent article was that breastfeeding is on the rise. The article pointed out that mothers' milk provides virtually 100% protection for the baby against disease for some time. This protection cannot be duplicated by formula-feeding.

Another point—and this is as significant as the first—is that the association between mother and baby in breastfeeding provides a basic feeling of security for the infant. The relationship between mother and infant in breastfeeding has an ingredient which no formula or bottle can provide—"T.L.C."—tender, loving care.

I have felt for many years that the insecurity so many young people seem to suffer from for the past couple of decades or more has part of its roots in the trend away from the natural process in infant nourishment represented by breastfeeding. Allowing for those who honestly couldn't provide for their infants, too many mothers in recent times were let "off the hook" by their sympathetic doctors who allowed a choice to be made. In so doing, those doctors removed part of the mothers' role of providing basic care of their infants. Not one father, no matter how loving and caring he might be, can duplicate the natural attraction, warmth and affection that is in a woman who has borne a child. After all, for some nine months, that infant experienced attraction, warmth and affection within the mother's body before coming into this world. Who is to say that infants don't have a "sixth sense" by which they recognize if only by touch that one particular protective and affectionate body belonging to "mother."

I hope I haven't given the impression of being an expert on these things. I'm just saying I am glad the benefits of breastfeeding are being emphasized again, that I think this will create closer family ties, and that, as usual, God knew what He was doing right from the start when it comes to Moms and their babies.

Local Man Died, Revived; Experienced 'Hereafter'

—By The Editor

An item appeared last week in the "hospital notes" from DeKalb Memorial Hospital noting that Jim Goldner of Saint Joe had been admitted. I knew he had had back problems for over a year, so I asked Mrs. Goldner about him this week as she left the post office.

She informed me that he had been admitted to Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne, transferring from DeKalb Memorial. The reason: he had suffered a heart attack last week and other complications from past health problems required treatment not available in smaller hospitals such as ours. As of Monday, Jim was in the intensive care unit at Parkview.

Jim underwent sugery last year at Mayo Clinic to correct a back problem. While on the operating table, he died—twice—that is, his heart stopped beating. This unforeseen difficulty brought later kidney problems as well as other hindrances to his recovery. He is set to return to Mayo's again but this was before the heart attack of last Wednesday. Mrs. Goldner said he complained of chest pains before going to DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

As I talked with Mrs. Goldner, the question went through my mind: "How do I ask her?" About what? Well, a few weeks ago Arla Sechler mentioned a recent article in Reader's Digest about people who had died but were revived—and they told a similar story of a bright light, a comforting light, which they saw at the very time that they "died." They said they were aware of what was going on, that they were looking down on the scene as doctors and nurses undertook revival measures. They said they could hear the conversation as well as see the activity related to their physical body—but their "spirit," if that's what we can call it, was witnessing everything that was going on from outside the individual's body.

Arla and Mary Beatty told me that "that's what happened to Mr. Goldner—he died on the operating table and then saw a bright, comforting light—and he watched while they revived him."

So—that's what was on my mind when I talked with Mrs. Goldner. When she mentioned his dying on the operating table, I hesitatingly asked about his "experience," not knowing if such questions might be upsetting; Mrs. Goldner had plenty to cope with already.

However, she is a gracious woman, and she reflected the peace of mind which she said her husband has. He is not afraid to die. No, he doesn't WANT to leave this earthly existence and especially his family. But he is not afraid of death.

When he had his "experience" on the operating table, he heard the conversation going on and told a doctor later what the doctor and others had said while he was dead. He was looking down from above, witnessing revival efforts. He saw a bright glowing light and felt a warmth and comfort coming from it. He felt a sense of communication he never knew before.

Jim Goldner also had a sense of being in the hospital corridor outside the operating room, while he was dead and the doctors and nurses worked feverishly to revive him. He also heard a voice which said, "Go back." He didn't want to; he felt so good. But he went back.

Unless, as this is written, a setback occurs and he is not able to survive, Jim Goldner is alive today after having died, after having seen beyond this earthly existence. He has no doubts whatsoever—there is a life in the hereafter.

The question is always raised, "Do you believe in such things?" My outlook is that it is not a matter of believing "in," it's simply a matter of believing that another individual is telling the truth.

Because of the doubts in the minds of many people, Jim Goldner never told his wife or family about his journey into the unknown. But he did let it out one time in a gathering when someone mentioned the experiences of others. This was before the appearance of the article in Reader's Digest. He simply said, "That's what happened to me"—and that's how Mrs. Goldner and the family found out about the "happening." When the article did appear, many of the details told by others fit exactly with Jim's explanation.

I am not aware that every person who has died and has been revived has the same experience. If someone asks why it doesn't happen to all of them, this bright light, the warmth and comfort it brings. I have no answer. The Bible points out that there are many things which are unknown to us, that God relates to us individually and not as a group.

But what I do know is that what happened to Jim Goldner has brought him peace, that he has passed it along to his wife who spoke about her husband's situation Monday so openly and frankly and without fear or apprehension. Indeed, I feel compelled to say that she was radiant, visibly radiant and beautiful. I can't help but feel that, for some reason which none of us know, certain people are being chosen for some purpose which even believers in God cannot fully understand. These chosen people are telling about familiar things. Where else but in the Bible do you hear about a bright light, looking down from above, a voice giving a command, peace of mind "that passeth all understanding," no fear of death—and the warmth, comfort and assurance of an unseen Presence.

There is no doubt in my mind—in a few moments of death on an operating table, Jim Goldner saw "Eternal Life."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

"Here today and gone tomorrow" is usually heard in connection with the short span of time that money stays in one's pockets. It's sort of a joke.

The connection of that saying with life itself, however, occasionally becomes evident, as is the case with the death of John Coburn. At a session in the local barbershop Tuesday, Dave Hagar, Elwood Savage and Mark Stuck reminisced that John had been in the shop Saturday and got a "ribbing" from the others about his fishing success. And I noted that Ila had been in that day or the day before to place her doll hospital summer-closing ad in the paper again "so John and I do some fishing."

That the Coburn family has close ties despite being somewhat spread out is evident in Ila's proud announcement to me last week that grandson Bob Isham of Garrett qualified for the national junior olympics in Pennsylvania. He is a wrestler. I'm sure Grandpa John was just as proud.

And so, another jolt in the bumpy road of life at the death of a friend. But the jolt is eased by the memory of that precious friendship.

Outdoor Worship Sunday, June 26

The Fifth Annual Community Outdoor Worship Service at Spencerville will be held Sunday, June 26, at 9 a.m. It is held on the church lawns of the adjacent Spencerville United Methodist and St. Peter Lutheran churches.

There will be special music, Scripture readings, sermon and prayer. A social hour will follow the outdoor service.

Residents of the community are invited to attend the worship service "in God's natural temple."

Worshippers are invited to "be comfortable, but come" with folding chairs or blankets on which to sit, if they wish.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express how grateful I am for the expressions of comfort and acts of helpfulness at "Doc's passing. All of your kindnesses helped me to carry my burden of grief. Thank you so much for your thoughtfulness.

Residents Warned To Check On Usefulness Of Coupon 'Pitch'

Deputy Sheriff Gene Snook notified the News Office this week that several inquiries had been made at the sheriff's office about telephone solicitation in the Saint Joe area from a "'Fort Wayne Treasure Chest" organization. The sales pitch is that in return for answering a simple question, the called party "qualifies" for $200 worth of coupons good at various Fort Wayne establishments. It is not an outright gift—the coupons cost "only" $14.95 and a representative will stop by with the coupons if the called party indicates they want to buy.

Deputy Snook advised that the organization has had no written complaints submitted to the Fort Wayne Better Business Bureau and it is registered with the bureau, since April of this year.

The local law enforcement officer suggested that, if a local resident does say "yes" to the offer, they check the coupons to see if they represent merchandise or services the resident will readily make use of. The question at this point is not of legality but of usefulness.

A buyer has three days in which to return the coupons, if they have decided not to accept the offer. Deputy Snook indicated that some local residents had accepted over the phone. But they were unfavorably impressed by the representative who delivered the coupons and then refused to accept the coupons.

If coupons are returned within the three-day period by mail, it is suggested that they be sent by registered mail so that a signed receipt proves the return of the coupons.

Questions about any business or sales proposals from firms or individuals outside the local community will be answered, if possible, by the Fort Wayne Better Business Bureau. A toll-free telephone number can be called, 1-800-552-4631.

One local resident, Mark Haberkorn, took advantage of the bureau's services recently. He had answered an ad in The Saint Joe News which said "Earn $200 a week stuffing envelopes." Wording of the reply from the firm was such as to arouse suspicions. Mark's call to the Fort Wayne Better Business Bureau brought the information that the firm was currently under investigation.

The suspicious wording did not say, "We will pay you $200 to stuff 1,000 envelopes." Instead, it requested $5 for a "kit"; stamped envelopes and addresses would be furnished. Additional wording was something like, "Start receiving money almost immediately" but it did not say the firm placing the advertisement would pay the "stuffer."

Better Business Bureau hours are 9:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily and the toll-free number is for use by area residents as a protection for consumers, supported by private business.

Board Rehires Previously Dismissed Teachers

After a 2 hour and 50 minute executive session, requested by UniServ director Gerald Goen to negotiate the renewal of contracts for two dismissed teachers, the school board of the DeKalb eastern school district voted 4-3 to re-hire the two teachers. A third dismissed faculty member could not be present and his re-hiring petition will be considered at a later date.

Re-instated as teachers in the eastern district are Mark Childs and William Howarth. The vote to reinstate came after the two men said they were withdrawing earlier grievance petitions.

Voting to re-hire were Vaughn Billings, Earl Kelsey, Norman Kinsey and Connie Hollabaugh.

Voting to uphold the board's previous dismissal action were board president Reynold Johnson, Lynn Fuller and Lloyd McClellan.

The cancellation of the contract of Dorothy Whitney, a music teacher, will probably bring legal action, according to Mr. Goen. The board based its cancellation on the basis of decreased enrollment, an allowable action according to Indiana statutes. However, the UniServ director said the board has violated tenure teacher protections.

The contract cancellation was one of seven points accepted by the board recently in seeking to reduce expenditures in order to stay within its budget income.

The board voted to offer Charles Hampel, a Butler elementary teacher, a contract as assistant to Elementary Principal Charles Ray for the Riverdale School. The board had reduced the administrative budget a couple of years ago when the Riverdale principal retired and the board made Mr. Ray responsible for the Butler and Riverdale elementary schools. The move saved over $20,000 a year.

In other action, the board signed a lease agreement with the Saint Joe-Concord Township Fire Department for use of the school property where the old school buildings stood at Saint Joe.

It was voted to apply for federal funds under Title I of assistance to schools. The amount applied for is $40,051.

The board held a second executive session, from 1:30 to 2:00 a.m., to hear a report on negotiations for a new teachers contract.

Victor Coburn

A normal Saturday evening of relaxation with the radio and TV ended abruptly that night for Victor G. "John" Coburn, 66, of Saint Joe. He suffered a heart attack at his home at around 10:30 p.m.

A retired Dana employee, Mr. Coburn was a lifelong resident of Saint Joe. He was born in Rosedale, Ohio, the son of Earl and Jeanie Freeburn Coburn. His birth date was June 19, 1910. He would have observed his 67th birthday the day after his death.

Survivors include his wife, Ila; two sons, William of Hamilton and Calvin of Fayetteville, North Carolina; two daughters, Leatrice Lothamer of New Haven and Leah Isham of Garrett; two brothers, Robert and Orville of Saint Joe; two sisters, Agatha Wasson of Butler and Viola Dressel of Saint Joe; and 16 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home Tuesday of this week at 2 p.m. John Paul Hill, minister of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ, officiated and burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Barons To State

The DeKalb Central Barons advanced to the finals of the state baseball tourney last weekend. They defeated defending champion LaPorte 7-5 as they capitalized on "breaks" in the fifth inning to score all seven of their runs. In the inning the Barons had only one hit, but they benefitted also from four walks, two errors and a wild pitch.

The Barons had defeated Hammond Gavit 5-3 in the afternoon.

The local team plays at 11 a.m. Saturday at Bush Stadium in Indianapolis. A "send-off" rally is planned for noon Friday at the school.

WIFF radio of Auburn will broadcast the Baron game with air time set for 10:45 a.m.

FROM THE KING'S CORNER-
The success of any endeavor comes not from what people say about it but rather from what people do about it. Never has a company been able to rise above its product or its workers. Nor has a community been able to rise above its residents. The same holds true with the church. It is not what we say about the church that causes people to seek out her truths but rather it is how we live those truths ourselves that draws men and women to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ. I would encourage you to remember this one thought: "You are either part of the problem or part of the solution."

Go with God and he'll go with you.

'Teacher Power' Overrides Student-Public Welfare

Executive Session Totally Out Of Place In Discussion On Teacher Re-hiring

—By The Editor

I imagine there are those who are sighing a sigh of relief at the speedy agreement made by our teachers and the school board in contract negotiations. That "relief" is somewhat false, however, due to the fact that the announcement of the agreement had the accompanying words "except money."

The central district is also apparently experiencing quick settlement of contract negotiations. But Garrett is having negotiation troubles.

On the other hand, I imagine there are those who are very disappointed in eastern district school matters, what with the board backing off on its dismissals of two of three teachers recently and re-hiring the two. There are those who fully expect the third to be re-hired, despite the record of misconduct and failure to abide by administrative regulations.

Time will tell if the current circumstances are an indication of better relationships between the faculty and administration or reluctance by the school board majority to stay in the fight. Public opinion in the eastern district has for months been strongly in support of the board in seeking to overcome the tremendous power now in the hands of teachers.

It would be nice if there WAS a genuine closer tie between the faculty and the administration. People are weary of constant haggling. Union leaders know this; they effectively hassle and haggle and eventually wear down enough of the "management" side of the picture and get what they want.

I don't know how long the second marathon session was which led to agreement. But it was stated recently that the first session took ten hours.

No way can anyone make me believe that it takes ten hours one time and more hours other times to reach an equitable agreement. After all, the basic contract agreements go unchanged on some items—at least that's what would appear to be reasonable to expect. The conditions under which we live and the conditions under which education is provided should not require complete revision or alteration every year or two. If that IS occurring, complete change at negotiating time, it's no wonder we are getting less and less for our tax dollars devoted to education. Too much time and attention is devoted to talking about or thinking about negotiations.

It is interesting—and disturbing—to note the inconsistencies of teacher spokesmen. This is a deliberate effort to constantly keep school administration "on the spot" and on the defensive.

Take note:

When three teachers were dismissed, the UniServ director, acting as "coach" for the teachers, kept up a constant demand for hearings, kept up a constant accusation of board unfairness and administrative "picking on" one teacher. The purpose was to get the public to ask—or demand to be told—why the board made the dismissals.

BUT — just two weeks ago, when the school board met to consider a request or petition from the teachers to re-hire the dismissed faculty members, THE UNISERV DIRECTOR ASKED FOR—AND GOT—AN EXECUTIVE SESSION TO DISCUSS THE MATTER.

Why the need for secrecy? Why the turnaround in tactics? Why the shutoff from the public of a matter directly related to the interests of the public? This was not a matter of "personalities." It was a matter of hiring or not hiring on the basis of OFFICIAL reports.

I have my answer. If the public had been allowed to hear the 2 hours and 50 minutes of "discussion," the public would have known FIRST HAND how ridiculous and time-consuming the teacher union efforts are in such matters. No, I wasn't there —but I know from comments by others involving union contract negotiations (not the school's) how nit-picking union leadership is in such deliberations.

The saddest part is that so many teachers, especially the younger teachers, think their union representatives are acting in behalf of professional matters. The actions are strictly "power-play" oriented—and the teacher actually loses the most important factor in his or her career. No, not money; that they get. What they lose is the respect of parents, taxpayers and students.

Nothing personal—but right now I wouldn't give two cents to have Mark Childs, William Howarth or Johnny Zimmerman on our faculty. If that sounds intolerant and extreme, remember that last fall they didn't give a damn about my kid or yours in the teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities. Teachers used students and the classroom to sell their one-sided story.

There may be some dedicated teachers today. However, "dedication" is not the motivating force behind teaching in general nowadays.

Unfortunately, we all are coming out losers.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The DeKalb Central Barons didn't win the state high school baseball championship last weekend. But Baron rightfielder Bob Heimach was named winner of the L.V. Phillips Award for Mental Attitude. He played well during the finals despite knowledge of the fact that his father, Rev. William Heimach, would undergo surgery Monday.

His performance makes him appear to be "a chip off the old block."

To give you an idea of how things are lined up, a news release from the Indiana State Teachers Association tells of the 115th annual meeting of the National Education Association (NEA) in Minneapolis July 1-6.

Look what's on the agenda:

Addresses by President Carter and Vice-president Mondale; a presentation by "Roots" author Alex Haley whose story about his ancestral background has been declared by several historical experts as more fiction than fact; a discussion of national teacher collective bargaining, Social Security for all teachers, progress on NEA priorities under the Carter administration and gun control.

Gun control??? What's that got to do with teaching? Why don't they talk about how to restore definite educational standards, how to be more tolerant of school administration whose hands are tied oftentimes by federal regulations and red tape?

They will have their annual Human Rights Awards dinner July 4. Would you bet that they will have an award for someone who is fighting for the right of parents to have their kids get a decent basic education?

Here's a related tidbit from United Press International:

"Illiteracy among young Americans has become so widespread that the Navy is having trouble finding recruits who can read well enough to function. . . . One illiterate sailor did $250,000 worth of damage to an engine because he couldn't read instructions. . . . A recent study of 23,000 recruits at the naval base here (San Diego) showed that 37 per cent of them could not read at the 10th-grade level. . . . Of those, 70 per cent could not read well enough to complete boot camp."

In case you didn't notice, 1977 is half over already.

—by Tim Mershon, Commissioner

Above is the registration form for the 1977 season of Eastside Little League Football. In order to plan for the coming season, boys should register as soon as possible, although late applications will be accepted.

For those unfamiliar with the program, it is tackle football coached by area men. The games are generally played on Saturdays (a complete schedule will be released later), with practice three days during the week. Practices are scheduled so that they will end before sundown.

Players must be between the ages of 8 (on or before September 30) through 12, and must be in sixth grade or under. Most equipment is supplied by the league. Boys need only furnish teeth guards, sneakers or rubber cleated shoes (no metal cleats) and padded pants if desired (though not necessary).

Group insurance coverage is again available through Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, with coverage similar to that of last year. The cost is $6.65 per player. Information can be obtained from Tim Mershon, Commissioner, or George Kandel, insurance agent.

While we have had a very good record as far as injuries are concerned, it is to be noted that all players should have some type of insurance coverage. The player's parent or guardian must also sign the application form. Additional forms are available from the Commissioner's office.

Every effort is made to have the program available to as many boys as possible. If there are any questions or problems, contact the Commissioner at 115 Park Lane in Butler, phone 868-2002 after 5:30 p.m. week days or on week ends.

Registration forms should be sent to the above address as soon as possible.

Coaches will contact their team members during the first week in August and practices will begin in mid-August.

The first game is tentatively set for September 10 with the season ending November 5. An awards banquet-buffet-supper will follow.

Boys who played last year should already have received a registration form in the mail. If you have played and are eligible again this year and have not received a form, use the accompanying form or get one from the Commissioner.

Objectives of Eastside Little League Football are: to inspire youth to practice the ideals of good sportsmanship; to familiarize each player with the game of football through actual participation; and to instill each player with all the qualities of fair play.

Board, Teachers ReachAgreement

Agreement on a teacher contract was reached last week between the DeKalb eastern district board and the classroom teachers association. The teachers accepted the contract last Friday and the school board ratified it Tuesday of this week in a special session.

The lengthy sessions involving negotiators for both sides brought forth an agreement last week. There were earlier short sessions also held.

A two-year settlement was agreed upon involving several points, except money. Areas of agreement included professional leave, death leave and seniority.

It has been reported that the salary schedule has been restructured to set the eastern schedule at a level comparable to 18 other districts in the northeastern area. This brought salary-step raises of from 7% to 10%, depending on the number of years' experience and the degree held.

In 1976 negotiations, the salary schedule was a major item of contention by the teachers. A "fact sheet" distributed at that time by the teachers, with the support of the Indiana State Teachers Association, the National Education Association and UniServ, indicated the eastern district was last or near last in salary level compared to other areas districts.

However, at a public meeting held October 4, 1976, the school board refuted the "last place" allegations made by the teachers by pointing out that the difference in salary was often negligible, in some cases only $1 or $2 per year.

Who 'Sold' Us On Metrics??

A recent item in the dailies stated that a previously-announced project involving $100 million federal dollars to install new highway signs giving distances not only in miles but also in metric terms had been dropped.

The reason: some 5,000 responses had been received from citizens and 98% of those citizens objected to the proposed expenditure.

This week a letter was received from Roger Marsh, executive director of the Indiana State Highway Commission, indicating that the commission opposes the expenditure of $1 million dollars in Indiana and $100 million over the nation for the project.

Undoubtedly, the primary reason for such opposition from the state highway commission is that they are having enough trouble as it is finding money to construct and maintain highways without spending $1 million on new highway signs.

There may be another reason just as strong, but it isn't being stated too openly. That reason is in the form of a question: WHY convert to metrics?

The Congress passed a resolution some time ago to make the conversion to metrics over a 10-year period. Educators have presented materials to students to acquaint the latter with the metric system. Other sources of information have also promoted metrics.

However, there has yet to be a valid reason given (in my opinion) for the change. The main reasons expressed have been: (1) conversion to metrics will eliminate "problems" of international trade where metrics and our system must be co-translated; (2) metrics is easier because it deals in multiples of ten.

Somehow, the idea has been implanted that we are "behind the times" with our inches and feet. I wonder why that can't be turned around to say that other nations are "behind the times" with metrics?

It has been some time since I expressed views on this matter (the last time as I recall was in reaction to the appearance of a mile-metric distance sign on I-69). I am still opposed to the changeover as I was then.

Why? —because the idea that metrics are "easier" is a half-truth. Not mentioned is the fact that, if you can't add, subtract, multiply or divide, metrics are not easier because the system deals with the use of numbers; the problem is not the system of measure, the problem is simple arithmetic. And with the achievement test scores of students the past ten years, the knowledge of basics has dropped. Thus, changing to metrics is no solution.

This is a case where it is difficult to determine where and how the proposed change to metrics started. It's like the junior-senior all-night prom situation; no one knows why it is continued, but many express informal displeasure at the continuation of the all-night event, including school board members. But no one has the gumption to say, "Let's shut off the use of school facilities at midnight. After that, it's a private matter elsewhere between students and parents."

In my book, the entire program of converting to metrics in this country ought to be dropped. The general public sees little to be gained overall. And it's the general public who must live with such changes.

Columnist Rightly Fears Depravity

Syndicated columnist Morrie Ryskind had this to say recently concerning the "rights movement" by homosexuals:

"The other night I saw on TV a highly-touted British film, 'The Naked Civil Servant,' that attempted to make a hero out of a swishing and totally obnoxious 'fairy,' and found it nauseous.

"But this morning, a local TV column announces that the station will soon run the show again, to the obvious delight of the columnist, who proclaims the concoction a 'TV work of art.'

"But before you write that off as 'different strokes for different folks,' read this news item that appears in the same paper:

" 'Chicago police have arrested four men in connection with the production of a pornographic film featuring two 14-year-old boys. Five other men and some 20 boys are also sought in connection with the ring, known as the Delta Project. . . . . The organization allegedly lures runaway boys into becoming prostitutes for some wealthy homosexuals. . . . The police spokesman said Delta was set up by John Norman, a convicted sodomite currently serving time in an Illinois prison.'

"And a news item of a few days ago told of a clergyman who supervised a group of teenaged boys in a 'halfway house.' It turned out he had sexual relations with them, and encouraged them to do likewise with one another while he took moving pictures — which he sold to wealthy patrons.

"I have before me a dozen such items from a dozen different cities. Now, no matter how innocent we were, there surely was no such plethora of depravity in my day. And no small part of this stems from an overpermissiveness we have allowed in the name of 'freedom.'

"We have seen prestigious teachers, doctors, lawyers rush to 'get out of the closet' to proclaim their joy in being 'queer' —and thus receive the status of 'respectability.' Currently, a professional football player tells all in a book, which is promoted through the talk-shows. And in various colleges, gays are even granted special quarters for their meetings, thus being recognized as legitimate undergraduate groups on a par with, say, a Newman Club, or a literary society.

"I certainly do not regard myself as a moralist, but isn't it time that some Jeremiah cried out, 'Quo vadis, America?' Hasn't society the right—nay the duty—to protect the impressionable young from propaganda for depravity?

"I do not suggest that all homosexuals are guilty of child-seduction. But I could wish the gay boys—and girls, too, since Lesbians now also point with pride to their love-style—would monitor their communities—or go back to their closets. To this old fogy, we were a healthier, happier, nation before this sexual revolution, when opening the door to the bedroom didn't give you status, but marked you as an exhibitionist."

'Parents Right; Educationists Wrong'

"Last week the U.S. Office of Education released the results of an intensive, nine-year study costing $3 million. Its finding: the parents have been right and the educationists wrong."

The above quotation is from an article entitled, "OE Study Finds 'Basic Education' Best." appearing in the July 2, 1977, issue of "Human Events," a Washington, D.C., publication.

Referring to the upset caused many parents by the use of "Man: A Course of Study" for elementary children, plus modern "open classroom" techniques and the permissiveness of allowing a student to progress at his or her own desire, the article tells of a comparative study of 9,200 third-graders throughout the United States who had participated in the "Follow Through" program, a federally funded education program intended to help "culturally deprived" children from poor families. 13 different experimental programs were offered in the study. Boiling it all down, the study compared the achievement of pupils in the "old fashioned" approach of a set number of goals to be reached in contrast to the modern concept of comparatively loose standards of achievement. The modern programs are designed to make learning "fun" and to "enhance the children's self esteem."

"Nationwide, children in the 'old-fashioned' Distar program achieved reading scores at the 41st percentile and mathematics scores at the 48th. Their counterparts in the 'modern' EDC program, on the other hand, scored at the 18th percentile in reading and even lower at the 14th percentile in math.

"Also significant, the USOE study found that, overall, children in the Follow Through program as a while tended to do worse than children from similar backgrounds who had not had the 'benefits' of such a high-priced government program. The study attributed this result to the fact that many of the innovative Follow Through programs stressed 'learning to learn' and 'tended to divert the child's attention from the basics.'

"Of course, this is what many parents have been saying all along. And it didn't take them $3 million to figure it out."

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Comunity Building Thursday evening, June 23. MM William Harter, MM Lehr Wilder and Leon Goodwin were the hosts for the evening.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and all united in the Lord's Prayer after which a delicious pot luck supper was enjoyed by those present. A brief business meeting was then conducted by President Ida Reed. Greetings were extended to the group. "Happy Birthday" and "Happy Anniversary" were sung to those members celebrating these events in June. Birthday offerings were received. The Secretary's report was approved as read. It was announced that the Community Club is having a chicken barbeque supper on Saturday, July 23. Bernice Wilder then entertained us with a skit which was enjoyed by all. The balance of the evening was spent playing dominoes.

Ida Reed, Marjie Dwyer, Lulu Gerig, Sarah Amstutz and Gaylon Markle will be hostesses for the July 28 meeting. Same time—same place. We'll be looking for you.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I've harped before about the excessive size of some of the commemorative stamps put out by the Post Office Department. Now I'll harp again—and it has to do with conserving our natural resources—in this instance, trees, from which wood pulp is obtained to make paper.

I bought 50 stamps recently They have pictures of butterflies. They're pretty. They make a nice addition to a stamp collection.

But—when I used the six rows of five stamps each, I had a strip of gummed paper good only for throwing away. There is enough paper in that wasted paper to make six regular-size stamps.

—And the President talks about putting a big tax on automobile "gas guzzlers." What about the waste in the Post Office Department represented by that excess trim from a sheet of new commemorative stamps?

Isn't it strange? A scandal about Korean bribery involving many Democrats starts making the news, but no big waves are felt—making one wonder why. Then, just by coincidence (!), a story breaks—and gets more attention from the wire services—that former Vice-president Spiro Agnew owes $14,000 in back taxes.

And right at the same time, President Carter sends the Internal Revenue Service $6,000 which he DOESN'T owe. But he sends it anyhow because he believes everyone should pay taxes in this nation.

Lost in the Carter matter is the fact that he had investment credits which removed him from tax liability.

But remember how they put Ronald Reagan on the spot for not paying income taxes a few years back? His deductions were as legal as Carter's. But what a difference in the manner in which the national news media handled it.

DeKalb County Preschool For Handicapped Info

—by Mike Graham
Acting Director, phnoe 925-3865

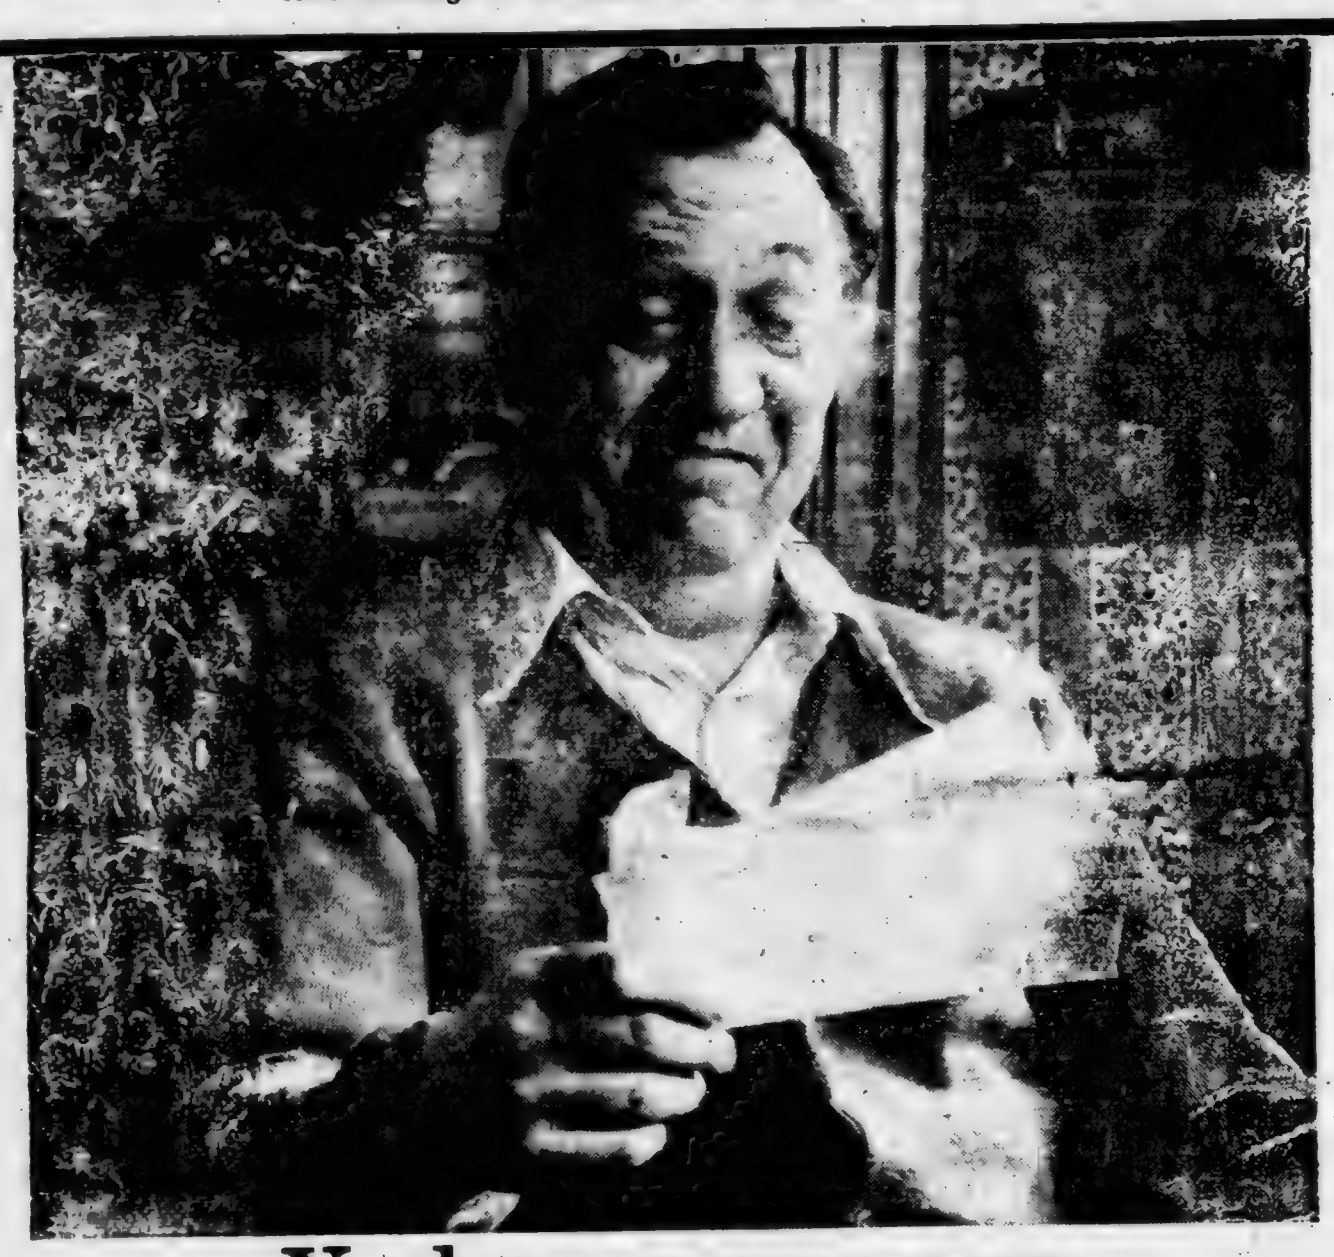
(Third in a series)

The present policy of the school is that there is no tuition charged for residents of DeKalb County. For non-residents, a nominal tuition fee is charged and will be discussed with the family at the time of the interview.

Another question concerns the measurement of progress for a child. This is accomplished by comparing the initial assessment of the child's developmental level with other assessments which are administered after the child has been in the program for a period of time.

The first assessment will give some knowledge of the child's development level in the following five areas: physical, academic, social, self-help and communication. If this assessment indicates a developmental delay in one or more of these areas, this child will qualify for the program appropriate for his or her physical age. An individualized program of instruction and training will be written for the child and realistic goals are established. Periodic reassessment, as well as continuous observations by the staff and parents, will give indications of whether the goals are being approached or need to be revised.

It would be appropriate to stress here that the DeKalb County Preschool for the Handicapped does not label children with an I.Q. score, and seeks to prevent any child from being given a stigmatizing label. Rather, the approach is to use test results in a highly individualized manner. No child is competing against any other but instead is encouraged to reach out for his or her own potential.



You have more power over your electric bill than you think.

No matter what we do to help keep your electric bill in line, there's one thing we have no power over.

The amount of power you use.

So we'd like to point out the most significant places where only you have the biggest opportunities to save.

Insulation

6 to 12 inches of insulation in your attic could save you real money each year.

You'll save even more if you insulate your walls, heating ducts and hot water pipes.

Caulking, weatherstripping, storm windows, shades and drapes also help keep heat inside in winter, and outside in summer.

Thermostat Control

Lower your thermostat in winter. Each degree below 68°F can save three percent of the energy needed for heating. If you have air conditioning, a higher thermostat setting will also save energy in summer.

Hot Water Use

You can save up to 5% a year of the energy needed to heat water if you turn your water heater thermostat down to 120 degrees and take quick showers instead of baths.

Fix leaky hot water faucets promptly. And wash clothes in cold water, if you can.

Washing and drying only full loads of clothes and dishes is more economical, too.

Appliance Efficiency

If you're in the market for appliances and equipment, look for the new energy saving features on refrigerators, freezers, and dishwashers. Choose an Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) of 8 or higher on room air conditioners.

While there are a lot more ways to save electricity, these are the ones that will make the biggest impression on your bill.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.
Working together is the only way.

NOTICE

Eastside High School head football coach Mike Watson requests the presence of all 1977 high school football candidates at a get-acquainted meeting on Wednesday evening, July 27, at 7:00 p.m. in the high school gym. This meeting is very important. Please plan to attend.

Student athletes of Eastside High School are reminded that they must have a physical examination, and the parents and physicians form must be on file in the principal's office before their first practice in any sport.

Any student that intends to participate in any sport during the 1977-78 school year should pick up a parent and physician's form at the High School office and have a physical examination before practice starts this fall.

Football practice will start Monday, August 9, 1977.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Tonda Miller asks "Would the party who took the sink from the front yard please return it? We know who you are and there will be no questions asked."

That hassle over the scheduled baseball tourney game between DeKalb Eastside and DeKalb Central is "sour grapes," if you ask me. When a team enters league competition and the coach KNOWS a tourney will be held at the end of the season, his obligation first and foremost is to the league.

DeKalb Central coach Bill Jones said the school will pull out of the NEIM Summer Baseball League next season because a postponement was not made to accommodate his participation in an all-star game in Jasper as coach. I think it's the height of absurdity for him to criticize the NEIM League president with the declaration, "If that's the way they want to run the show, then they can play without DeKalb next season."

It sounds like a case of "big head" to me. With DeKalb Central having recently made it to the state finals of the state high school baseball tourney, it sounds as if Mr. Jones thinks everyone should cater to his wishes.

Can you imagine our baseball coach Rex Bolinger expecting everyone else to jump to accommodate conflicts in his responsibilities? I can't - never in a million years.

4H'rs In Busy Show Season

Several DeKalb County 4H events of interest to the public are approaching, says Paula Hook, Extension Youth Agent.

The Public Presentation of the 1977 Fashion Revue will be Monday night, August 1, at 8:00 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Auburn. One hundred Clothing and Craft members are expected to participate in this annual event.

After 4H project exhibits are checked in at the Exhibit Hall on Wednesday, August 3 from 2 to 8 p.m. and judged privately on Thursday, August 4, the graded exhibits will remain on display for public viewing.

The Exhibit Hall Open House hours are 2 to 9 p.m., Friday, August 5; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday, August 6 and 1 to p.m. on Sunday, August 7.

The selection of the new 4H King and Queen will begin at 8:00 p.m. at the Fairgrounds on Thursday, August 4. The 4H members will compete for the two honorary positions by giving brief speeches on the "Highlights of My 4H Career".

The Horse and Pony Show will begin at 10 a.m. on Friday, August 5 and the Dog Obedience Show starts at 1 p.m. on Sunday, August 7.

Two evenings will include judging of projects. The Food Preservation exhibits will be judged Wedneesday evening, August 3 at 8 p.m. First-year members only will appear in person to prepare their exhibits while the other divisions will display finished products. On Friday evening, beginning at 7:30 p.m., Flower members will show cut flowers, arrangements, planters and terrariums. Both judgings are open to the public.

Other events include a Tractor Operators Contest, 10 a.m. on Wednesday, August 3; Fourth annual Dairy Goat Show which begins at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 6; third annual Chicken Barbeque Contest to be judged at 6 p.m. Saturday.

A new event this year will be the public judging of Foods Divisions I through V beginning at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, August 6 at the Exhibit Hall. Members, parents, leaders and guests will have an opportunity to learn about the Foods exhibits through personal contact with the judges. If this year is successful, the upper divisions VI through X will undoubtedly be added to the event in 1978.

Members will be checking out their exhibits on Sunday, August 7 after 5 p.m. or Monday morning from 9 a.m. to noon.

School Board Says "No" To Reinstate Teacher

The DeKalb Eastern school board met in regular session July 18, then held a special session July 19 to consider a request to be rehired by Johnny Zimmerman. He, Mark Childs and William Howarth were dismissed this spring. However, at a recent meeting, the board voted 4-3 to rehire Childs and Howarth. Zimmerman's request was held over due to his absence from the community.

UniServ director Gerald Goen again asked for a closed hearing on the matter, as he had for the Childs-Howarth matter, and the board granted the request.

After an hour and a half closed session, the board re-opened the meeting to the public and presented its findings to the public as follows:

(1) The School Board finds that the grievant does not dispute reasons for his dismissal, but desired only to present his explanations for the things he did.

(2) The School Board finds that the grievant admits as charged that he did absent himself from one half day of teacher "in-service" training without excuse and without leave.

(3) The School Board finds that the grievant admits that he used foul and abusive language in a loud and boisterous manner at a public school function while he was acting as an off field play spotter at a high school football game.

(4) The School Board finds that the grievant admits that he breached his 1976-77 teaching contract (extra-duty agreement concerning coaching as assistant baseball coach) in that he did unilaterally stop his coaching duties, turned in his uniform, and refused to complete his coaching obligations.

(5) The School Board finds that the grievant presented no evidence or argument that the School Board and or the school administrative personnel at any time breached articles VII or X of the 1976-77 Teacher-Board Collective Bargaining Agreement.

(6) The School Board finds that the grievant admits that he could not work harmoniously with his building principal.

(7) The School Board finds that the grievant admits that he has not made up all of his teaching license deficiencies.

The board concluded its findings with the declaration that Zimmerman was notified of his discharge and non-renewal of his contract for valid legal reasons. Zimmerman's request to be reinstated to a full teaching-coaching position was denied.

The decision not to re-hire was by a unanimous 7-0 vote.

New Liquor Store In Saint Joe ?

In a legal notice to be published in August, the Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission will announce a public hearing August 23, 1977, at 1:00 p.m. in the courthouse at Auburn. To be reviewed is an application by Commercial Properties of Butler for the carryout permit. Officers listed are D.L. Lane, president, and J.M. Lane, secretary.

Chris Sipe Named MVP

Chris Sipe of Eastside scored 23 points and was named the game's most valuable player in the first of two all-star games between DeKalb County and Noble County high schools. The games were played June 30 and July 7. Proceeds from the benefit games went to the United Fund organizations in both counties. The sponsors were the Kendallvile News-Sun and the Auburn Evening Star.

The DeKalb squad won the first contest 123-99. The second game was an overtime affair with Noble County gaining a 124-115 win.

Three players were used from each of the schools in each county. In addition to Sipe's 23 points in the first game, Eastside's Dave Kandel had 8 markers.

In the second game, Sipe had 13, Kandel seven and Jim Burns had 11.

TO THE EDITOR—

Congress of the United States
Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for your participation in the Congressional Mandate Ballot number 403 which has been forwarded to me by the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

Your views on these controversial issues are always most welcomed by me. As you will recall, one of the questions dealt with proposed changes in the National Labor Relations Board. H.R. 77, the Labor Reform Act of 1977 would promote an imbalance in the National Labor Relations Board in favor of labor unions, while restricting management's right to appeal NLRB decisions.

I oppose this legislation. Any plan which would allow unions to become legal and active without the benefit of secret ballot by the workers cannot be in the worker's best interests. This bill legislates a prejudice in favor of unions and would cause a wide range of economic ramifications should it become law. In short, it is unfair to both workers and employers. You can be assured that I will oppose this legislation when it comes to the floor of the House.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if I can be of assistance to you in the future With kind regards.

Sincerely,
Dan Quayle

St. Joe Man Dies

Gene R. Tracy, 30, of St. Joe was dead at the scene with massive head and neck injuries Wednesday morning when his motorcycle went off U.S. 6 and struck a tree at the west edge of Waterloo.

According to police reports, Tracy was eastbound at a high rate of speed when he entered a curve near Center Street and his motorcycle went out of control. The motorcycle left the road for 24 feet before striking a tree. Tracy was thrown another 22 feet after impact with the tree.

The accident happened at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Mr. Tracy was born Gene Roy Tracy in Hicksville, Ohio, on July 11, 1947. He lived in the Tri-State area for most of his life, and for the past 11 years made his home at St. Joe. He had been an employe of the the Auburn Foundry for 11 years.

Survivors include two daughters, Carla Kay and Terri Jean, both of Waterloo; his parents, MM Russell C. Tracy of Grabill; and two sisters, Mrs. Arnold (Sharon) Smith, Rock Ledge, Fla., and Mrs. Robert (Violet) Kinney, Angola.

Services for Mr. Tracy were held at the Bale Funeral Home at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. The Rev. Michael Kennedy officiated.

Football practice will start Monday, August 9, 1977.

The heat pump. An energy-saving idea a lot of people are comfortable with. Even Uncle Sam.

But when it heats, it works more efficiently than any other electric heating system around.

It captures the heat that exists in outside air, even on cold days.

As a result, you can heat your home using up to one-third less electricity than other electric heating systems.

This more-for-your-money, energy-saving feature has made the heat pump very popular with a lot of people.

Including the federal government, whose energy agencies recommend it over other types of electric heat.

Actually, we don't sell heat pumps. But, the way we figure it, every bit of electric energy that can be saved these days helps all of us.

"Iron Horse" at Garrett

A chugging, smoke-belching Iron Horse from out of the past pulling a string of equally old-fashioned passenger cars, known as the Chessie Steam Special, will arrive in Garrett, from Chicago, the afternoons of Saturday, July 30, and Saturday, August 6.

The steam train is on a six-month tour of the Chessie System to help celebrate the Sesquicentennial of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the nation's first, and now a part of Chessie. The B & O was chartered on February 28, 1827, in Maryland. Chessie's project has been described as "the single greatest steam excursion train in American railroading history."

The train consists of open-window coaches, air conditioned coaches, a premium-fare first-class parlor car and observation car, a car in which passengers can set up sound recording equipment and a snack and concession car. A gift shop featuring railroad items, including the famous B & O dining car china, is also aboard the train, along with a series of graphic panels tracing the 150-year history of the B & O, specially prepared for the Steam Special by the curatorial staff of the B & O Railroad Museum.

Locomotive 2101, the steamer that pulled the American Freedom Train the past two years, will power the Chessie Steam Special. The T-1 class engine, 110 feet in length and weighing 809,000 pounds, has four pilot wheels, eight driving wheels each 5 feet 10 inches in diameter, and four trailing wheels. The ex-Reading locomotive, built in 1946, carries in its tender twenty-six tons of coal and 19,000 gallons of water.

The train will be in Garrett two hours and visitors may view only (not board) the train during its stop.

Everyone in Garrett is looking forward to these excursion trains. The city has set aside north-side park, adjacent to the railroad, as a picnic and rest area. Miss Garrett Queen contestants will serve as guides and hostesses for the event. Automotive traffic will be rerouted so that pedestrians will have freer access to the train. The Chamber of Commerce, Garrett Merchants Association and local organizations are making plans to welcome all the visitors to Garrett and extending Hoosier hospitality to the passengers.

The VFW and Elks are planning open house with food available. The American Legion and Rosary Society will serve box lunches. The Jaycees will have sno-cones. Food and drinks will be available from the following organizations: Lutheran Church, Methodist Church, Historical Society, Psi Ota Xi, Order of Rainbow for Girls, and Masonic and Order of Eastern Star.

Did you know—

—that Indiana's U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar has urged a House-Senate conference committee to act on Clean Air Act amendments before the August congressional recess to help protect the jobs of more than half a million Hoosiers employed by motor vehicle and related industries. For some four months Lugar has actively promoted the extension of auto emission standards now applied to 1977 model cars. By early June, both the House and Senate had passed legislation to extend the 1977 emission standards to the 1978 models. But differences in the two bills now await resolution in a House-Senate conference committee that has yet to hold its first meeting.

—that Congressman Dan Quayle's Right-to-Know amendment came a step closer to final enactment when the House voted 350-40 to approve the Conference report on the Military Authorization recently. Quayle's amendment, which was included in the bill, will assure the public's right to know should chemical or biological tests ever be resumed. Any tests or experiments would be held up until civilian officials have had 30 days to review testing proposals.

—that the summer band program began July 11 and will continue through August 12.

There are two centers of instruction, the band room at the high school and Riverdale School.

—that Doug L. Dilley, 20, of St. Joe was westbound on County Road 64 when he lost control of his car and it swerved into a south ditch this week. He was not injured.

—that Rick Richmond, 6-4 forward from Eastside High School, will enroll at Marian College this fall, according to Knights' head basketball coach John Grimes. Under Coach Bill Peden at Eastside, Richmond averaged 16.5 points and 11.4 rebounds per game during his senior year. He was named to the County Tourney Team. Rick's parents are MM. Duwayne Richmond of Butler.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

I appreciated receiving a copy of the February 10, 1977 issue of the Saint Joe News which carried my letter on ratification of ERA by the Indiana General Assembly.

This matter has not been settled. Efforts to rescind will be made in the next session of the legislature. Right now we have the IWY (International Women's Year) State Meeting in Indianapolis to contend with. (Please see enclosed).

ERA was not referred to Indiana voters in referendum, but we do have a chance to vote down the IWY recommendations which include ERA. I hope you can give the July 18, 1977 IWY meeting due publicity.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Jean H. Harvey
(Mrs. Dale W. Harvey)
RR5 Box 419
Monticello, Indiana 47960

The enclosure, noted as coming from The Phyllis Schafly Report of May, 1977 (she leads the anti-Equal Rights Amendment effort) presents "The Real Goals Behind the IWY Questions based on a study of the pages cited in Agenda Letter No. 17."

Conclusions stated include that the IWY seeks preferential treatment of women over men in Federal jobs and Federal grants even if women applicants are not better qualified; seeks Federal Government responsibility for the care of preschool children through babysitting services for all children, also known as day-care centers; seeks enforced sex-integration through the Federal Government (Department of Health, Education and Welfare); seeks power for the Federal Government to enforce preferential employment of women by private business; seeks ratification of ERA; seeks sex-integrated prisons; seeks preferential health treatment for women; seeks additional Social Security taxes on the value of a woman's services as a homemaker when she is not employed outside the home; seeks an equal number of men and women in all areas of foreign policy; seeks to compel news media to give preferential treatment in hiring and promoting women to all policy-making positions; seeks to eliminate laws against rape and revise them to prohibit only sexual assault by either sex, a lesser crime; seeks to give the kill her unborn baby at any time; seeks to get women in half the elected and appointed offices even if voters do not choose to elect them.

It should be noted that President Carter has named Bella Abzug as chairman of the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year. She was defeated by New York voters in her effort to be re-elected to the U. S. Congress last November. She will have $5 million to work with in her appointment. Columnist James Kilpatrick points out that the commission's 38 employees will draw pay and go through all the actions to prepare a report which will be read by very few people—"And five million dollars goes down the drain."

The above is published late due to the illness of The Editor. However, the information is still of significance due to the fact that the IWY convention in Indiana July 16 had an overwhelming number of its select ted delegates to the nation convention in Houston described as "Pro-Life, Pro-Family, Pro-God and Ati-E.R.A." —Ed.

SMOKE—AND CRIB DEATHS

(A health message from your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana)

Babies have tiny lungs. And even tinier airways and blood vessels in their lungs. Sometimes, tiny can mean trouble.

Adult lungs have a hard enough time coping with pollutants in the air, which narrow the airways. Pollutants, including second-hand smoke, pose a special threat to little lungs. When tiny airways constrict even further, breathing itself can be impeded, perhaps stopped altogether.

That chilling possibility is raised in a study that examined the smoking habits of mothers whose babies died from crib death — compared with a matched group of mothers of living babies. Also called "Sudden Infant Death Syndrome," crib deaths usually occur in the first year of life. Nobody yet fully understands why apparently healthy babies die suddenly in their sleep.

Working in cooperation with a children's hospital in Seattle, Dr. Abraham B. Bergman found that mothers of babies who died from crib deaths had an unusually high rate of smoking. Dr. Bergman concluded that passive smoking by babies may be one contributing factor to crib death.

One of the measureable effects of second-hand smoke is an increase in the carbon monoxide in the blood of nonsmokers. Carbon monoxide robs the body of the oxygen it needs. And recent researchers have suggested that crib death may be caused by an abnormality in the control of breathing, or even a weakness in the baby's control of its oxygen supply.

Not all the research results are in on this tragic topic, by any means. But more and more studies indicate the damaging effects of second-hand smoke, particularly on babies and young children.

To find out more about protecting nonsmokers and defending everybody's lungs, contact your local American Lung Association at 802 West Wayne Street in Fort Wayne 46804 — the "Christmas Seal" people.

Your shopping cart can tell you a lot about your electric bill.

Like food and everything else you buy these days, inflation has hit us, too.

So, it would be easy to blame inflation for rising electric rates and leave it at that.

And, for sure, inflation has doubled and tripled the cost of everything from towers and transformers to coal and cable.

Take coal, our single largest operating expense. Its cost has gone up fourfold and more in the seventies.

But the reasons for rising rates go beyond those everyday expenses.

We must build pollution control devices like precipitators to help keep our air clean as we burn this coal.

And those devices cost millions. Installing them in existing plants can cost as much as the original plant. For example: our Tanners Creek Generating Plant cost 130 million dollars to build. Installing new pollution control devices on that plant will cost 96 million dollars.

Of course, power plants cost a lot more today, too. And, to keep up with your needs, we'll need more of them.

Which means we're going to have to borrow money to build them. But even that's more expensive these days.

Interest rates and construction costs have doubled in the last ten years.

Obviously, keeping up with these rising costs and trying to stay ahead of the steadily growing need for electricity isn't easy.

But, by sharing the facts and problems as well as the good things electricity brings, we hope you'll better understand some of the forces that have made your electric bill go up.

EHS Baseball

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers ended their summer baseball season recently in a 1-0 loss to Northridge in the finals of the NEIM Summer Baseball League Tourney. The Blazers had gone into the finals with a 5-2 win over West Noble, a 5-4 victory over Fremont, and a forfeit win from DeKalb. The forfeit came when Baron coach Bill Jones went to Jasper to coach a team of Indiana All-Stars. The NEIM league president rlued that there would be no delay in the league tourney. There appeared to be a lack of adequate communication to some extent and some assumptions in the situation.

In the final game, Blazer mainstay Jeff Hudson allowed just one hit but it did not figure in the score. Northridge scored in the first inning on a leadoff walk, a hit batsman a fly-out moving runners to second and third, and an infield grounder which allowed the run to score.

The Blazers had only two hits. However they had scoring oppurtunities in the third and fourth. In the third, they had men on second and third and one out. Two strikeouts ended the threat. In the fourth a runner was cut down at the plate after having walked, stolen second, and advanced to third on a [illegible] only to be thrown out at the plate on an infield grounder.

The Blazers finished the season at 5-6, a good showing for a team with just two seniors in the starting lineup.

Happy Fifth Anniversary At Vulcraft

—By The Editor

Big things are happening at Vulcraft.

This month marks the fifth anniversary of the start of production on local assembly lines of the world's largest manufacturer of steel beams. Vulcraft is a division of Nucor Corporation.

However, the anniversary is but part of "what's happening" at the local plant. An addition is now being constructed on the plant's office building. Begun this spring, the addition will add over 5,000 square feet to the building's original 8,000-plus square feet housing management, sales, and design employees.

But that is not the whole story.

Grading has been completed south of the present facilities for another building which will house a production line for steel decking, the "cover-up" applied to steel beams to form a building's roof. The company has decking plants at Norfolk, Nebraska, and Grapeland, Texas. The local plant will make for greater convenience in providing midwest customers with beams and decking.

The present assembly line and railroad receiving building is in the shape of a "T", the vertical leg 722 feet long and the crossarm 621 feet.

According to Doug Lang, local Vulcraft production manager, the new decking plant will contain 73,000 square feet. There will be five employees engaged in the automated production of decking, those employees coming from the present work force.

However, the new production line will require additional trucking and office employees to keep pace with the anticipated steel decking sales.

The decking building is expected to be completed by December with production set to start in April of 1978.

There is still more to the story. But it lies in the future. A long-range "idea" calls for the construction of a mini-steel mill on Vulcraft's acreage which lies just east of Saint Joe. However, no plans are "on the boards" at present. Vulcraft already has three such mini-steel mills, which are really steel-recycling plants providing all the steel needed for beam and decking production. The other plants are located at Darlington South Carolina, Norfolk, Nebraska, and Jewett, Texas.

Vulcraft at Saint Joe currently employs about 200 people.

So - it's "Happy Birthday" to Vulcraft and congratulations for past success, current expansion and bigger plans for the future.

Letters to the Editor

8-1-77

Dear Ted,

As President of Riverdale P.T.O. for the school year 1976-1977, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the excellent publicity you gave us throughout the year as well as your support with donations for our carnival.

We really had a good year in P.T.O. at Riverdale and have all the parents, principal, teachers, and people of the community to thank for their efforts, because without them it wouldn't have been a success.

Our children are our greatest possessions, and for that reason I hope to see more and more parents involved in school church, and community affairs in which our children are involved. We have them for such a short time.

We were sorry to learn of your illness, but pray you will be "in the pink of health" again real soon!!

Thanks again, and may God bless.

Sincerely,
Mrs. William Burton

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

Please cancel our subscription to the Saint Joe News.

We have recently moved from the Saint Joe area and no longer wish to take the paper.

We enjoyed your editorials very much and hope you will continue to be outspoken for the sake of your community.

I am enclosing $3.00 for our subscription that did run over our last due date.

Thank you and keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
The Byron C. Richardsons

Dear Ted:

I write this letter in appreciation of several things that you have done for the baseball team this season. First, your support of our car wash and wax helped us to reach our goal of purchasing the remainder of our outfield fence. Your attendance at almost every game (home and away) and the follow-up coverage of those games has helped the program tremendously. In addition, I would like to extend a special thank you for presenting the players and I with large framed action photos of the season. These will preserve memories for us for many years to come.

I realize that these gestures are but an extension of your active support of all school activities and your concern for the school as a whole. Again, thank you very much.

Sincerely,
Rex W. Bolinger

LITTLE LEAGUE FOOTBALL INFO

Little League football Commissioner Timothy L. Mershon has announced that he will be available to answer questions or to give out registration forms Monday and Tuesday of each week at the Spencerville Community Building and at Wild Cherry Park the remainder of the week. Parents and/or players may stop in from 12:15 to 12:45. The commissioner is taking time out of his lunch hour to perform this service for Saint Joe and Spencerville area parents and players.

LARRY MASON INITIATING ZOO AND SHELTER SIG CAMPAIGN

Larry Mason, curator of "Larry's Reptile World" at Saint Joe, is currently carrying a petition seeking support for a county zoo. He has met with almost complete success, having some 300 to 400 signatures at the present time from residents in various parts of DeKalb County. He reported this week that he had only five people who did not want to sign the petition for various reasons.

The idea of a zoo came up in connection with the problems in Butler in recent weeks concerning barking and stray dogs. A group in the county has been seeking to establish a county humane shelter and Larry recently suggested to the Auburn city council that a zoo and humane shelter could be operated and maintained jointly. Auburn recently established a park board and is now eligible for federal grants. Such monies could be used for the zoo-humane shelter idea, Larry suggested.

The local young man became involved directly in the matter due to his position as dog warden in Saint Joe. Taking over those duties last year from Ervin Fetters who moved away from this community, Larry has continued the diligent and cooperative dog control efforts of Mr. Fetters within the corporate limits of Sain Joe.

In providing information to Auburn officials, Larry has offered his services in establishing and maintaining a zoo-humane shelter complex. He suggested that a minimum of 10 acres should be available for such a site in order to accommodate future growth.

He plans to present the petition to the proper officials to assist them in making a decision on the proposal.

Larry has become somewhat of a public figure in the eyees of children in this area as the result of the many programs and displays he has presented at various schools. He takes an array of "exotic pets" with him for these demonstrations which have apparently been very popular with the kids. His quiet and gentle manner with the reptiles obviously makes him very adept in controlling them.

Norris Chapel II Dominating Church League

Norris Chapel II is undefeated thus far in Saint Joe Church League competition, according to league secretary Lavon Hart. The season is rapidly drawing to a close with the climax the traditional All-Stars-League Champions game. It will be played toward the end of this month. The All-Stars are composed of players from every team other than the title winners.

The schedule next week is as follows:

Monday, August 15—Coburntown I v Newville CC, and Coburntown II v Coburntown I.

Tuesday—Newville UM v Newville CC, and St. Joe CC v Coburntown I.

Wednesday—Mt. Pleasant UM v Hicksville CC, and Norris II v Norris I.

Thursday—Newville CC v Coburntown II, and Spencerville UM v Newville UM.

Monday, August 22, Norris I faces Coburntown II, and St. Joe CC plays Norris I.

Tuesday, August 23, Newville CC plays St. Joe CC.

These schedule changes are due to rainouts and other conflicts.

Vulcraft to hold Annual Picnic

The annual company picnic for Vulcraft employees will be held Saturday, August 20, at Bixler Lake at Kendallville.

One of the highlights of the get-together will be the "challenge" softball game between Vulcraft employees and employees of Sechler's Pickles. The "challenge" began last year and is expected to be an annual affair. Last year, Vulcraft won the "championship" and the trophy, a miniature steel beam with an attached pickle.

Keith Busse was given a "sportsmanship" award by Frank Sechler, a giant inflated plastic pickle.

From reports of last year's outing, it sounds as if everyone has a lot of fun.

Search For St. Joe H.S. Grad. Pics

There has been a "want ad" the past few issues concerning old pictures of Saint Joe High School graduates. Willard Maxwell is attempting to gather as complete a showing as possible for the annual Saint Joe High School Reunion to be held Sunday, September 18, at the local conservation club. The pictures can be kept by the owners or donated to the graduate group for posterity - and showing at the annual reunion.

Willard has gotten help from Carl and Mary Carpenter in particular. When the old school house was torn down about eight years ago, Carl spied some graduate pictures which appeared headed for the trash pile. He took them for safe keeping and now the Carpenters have something to add to the reunion's reminiscing.

So, if anyone has pictures, especially for the years 1941 thrpecially for the years 1941 through 1952, Williard would ap for display at the get-together.

- And I would like some pictures from 1947 when the local waterworks was put in, and a picture or pictures of the academy which was located at New ville in the good old days when that community was thriving due to its location on the Saint Joe River.

"BROWSING"

While I was in Doug Lang's office this week getting some information about Vulcraft's expansion, I glanced up at a shelf of books. One of them stood out like a sore thumb - it was the "OSHA Reference Manual". OSHA is the federal agency that tells everyone what is safe and what is not - in the opinion of desk-riding bureaucrats.

It's no wonder the manual was so noticeable - it's three inches thick!

General Tel News

General Telephone Company of Indiana recently announced that it had filed a petition with the Public Service Commission of Indiana which will result in rate decreases for many of its 420,000 customers. Company President Albert E. Beckwith stated that while many residential rates will decrease, some rates will increase. Increases will counterbalance decreases and the company will not realize any revenue gains as a result of the realignment.

If viewed favorably by the Commission, the action would lower the rates for telephone extensions, Touch-Calling lines, and "premium" telephones like General's Starlite and Styleline models. Some non-recurring charges for both residential and business customers would also decrease, said Beckwith.

As an example of the decreased rates, residential extension rates would drop from $1.25 per month to 75 cents and business extension rates would drop from a monthly charge of $1.75 to one dollar.

The petition also requests the authority to increase rates for key trunks, PBX trunks, CENTREX exchange access lines certain non-recurring services and certain other items.

Beckwith concluded that General Telephone is requesting this rate adjustment to bring these charges in line with their usage and cost.

Doubts About ISTA Leadership Proved - By ISTA!

—By The Editor

"After levying criticsm recently against school boards throughout the state for the slow pace of teacher contract negotiations, Indiana State Teachers Association officials (ISTA) admitted yesterday that earlier this year, the 15 largest ISTA affiliates agreed — or were urged — to postpone settlements until August."

The above quotation is from a feature story in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette by Brian Knowlton last weekend.

It is significant that such an article appears in that Fort Wayne publication because the trend of thought put forth in its editorials and in its news articles has been on the liberal side and liberal means pro-teacher and anti-school board. This is the pattern followed generally speaking all over the nation.

The story tells that the Fort Wayne Education Association "took some heat" from ISTA officials and a few other teacher groups in other school corporations because the Fort Wayne contract settlement was made in June and without too much difficulty.

The "heat" was evident due to the desire of ISTA officials and other classroom teacher groups to hold out until August to make a settlement. This would possibly gain a better settlement for the larger corporation teachers, and the larger corporations set the pattern for smaller schools.

Note the deception of the July 28 statement from an ISTA official: "School boards and management seem to have dug in for a fight to stop equitable contracts from being negotiated . . . And it's not because teachers aren't willing to bargain in good faith."

I was puzzled in the past few weeks because our own DeKalb eastern and central districts settled their contract matters last month. Only the Garrett system had problems, but those apparently have been ironed out. My puzzlement came because, at the same time that two DeKalb County school systems reached an early agreement, it was announced in news stories that only 50 teacher contracts were on file with the Indiana Education Employment Relations Board some 10 days ago. Last year, there were 150 on file at the comparable date.

Now the puzzle is solved. The difference is due directly to the ISTA leadership. Late contract settlements and filings are a deliberate move to create difficulties in negotiations.

But what really gives the tip-off as to the quality of leadership in the ISTA is the statement made by Ronald Jensen, executive director of the ISTA, in commenting on the situation:

"There's a very basic difference in motivation. Our purpose is to get an agreement and get teachers on the job with the right contract. . . . We're not the ones that are negative. We tend to be positive."

That is a marvelous example of double-talk. Mr. Jensen admits to the pressure from the ISTA to get teachers to drag their feet in contract negotiations, then calls the efforts of the ISTA "positive"!!

There are probably those readers who have grown weary of my never-ending writings about teachers and education and so on. And there have been teachers who have not felt too friendly about my views. However, the public admission of pressure tactics by ISTA officials confirms my "harping" that misstatements, half-truths and deception have been a part of teacher leadership tactics and that teachers as a group and as individuals have been "used" by their own leadership.

Letters to the Editor

Auburn, Ind.

Dear Ted,

Enclosed is my check (which) is very late) for this year and a year ahead. We enjoy the News very much and your editorials are fine and to the point. I usually agree 100% only when you holler about the stamps. Being a stamp collector for over 30 years I welcome all the new stamps and I feel that stamp collectors keep the price of stamps down as the collectors and the dealers buy millions of stamps the first day of issue and more than pay for the plates and engraving. I collect both U.S. and foreign - singles and plate blocks and whole sheets. Enough of that.

I owe thanks to many people in St. Joe, Butler and Spencerville area for the gifts two years ago for Old Settlers Day at the Fair, I could not get the names in the Evening Star for some reason. I went over twice and still could not get it in the paper. But many thanks to all of them. I hope all the Old Settlers come this year as I think I have a very fine program coming up for Sept. 28 and some more prizes.

Hope you are feeling fine by now and are "up and at 'em."

Sincerely,
Josephine Johnson

Mr. T. E. Haberkorn, Jr.
Saint Joe, Indiana 46785

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for your recent letter urging my opposition to legislation providing federal financing for congressional campaigns.

I am sympathetic to your views, and I have serious reservations about federal funding for congressional campaigns, not only because of its infringement on First Amendment rights, but also because of the real possibility that it will insure the re-election of even more incumbents than has been the case under the present system. I have even greater concerns about the feasibility of the proposal as it relates to primary elections. Given the struggles of the Federal Election Commission in trying to cope with the aftermath of a single presidential campaign. I doubt that there is any way that that or any other agency can successfully police 435 House plus 33 Senate races within a year, whether or not primaries are included. Moreover, the current legislation fails totally to address the serious problem of unlimited electoral influence by labor union political committees. This omission is, in my judgment, a fatal defect.

I am grateful for our agreement on this important issue. I hope that our agreement extends to other issues as well, and that my service as Senator earns your ongoing support.

Sincerely,
Richard G. Lugar

Dear Friend:

Thank you for contacting me to express your support for a prohibition on the use of compulsory union dues for political purposes. I regret that the large volume of mail I have received on this issue prevents a more personalized response.

As you may know, Senator Helms offered an amendment to impose such a restriction during the Senate's consideration of S. 926, legislation to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971. While I appreciate your comments, I must inform you that I opposed this amendment, which was tabled by a vote of 67-25.

The Federal Election Campaign Act sets clear guidelines for the political activity of both unions and corporations. I feel it is of the utmost importance that these two groups be treated in a consistent manner. The Helms amendment sought to restrict the portions available to unions without placing any such restrictions on similar corporate activity. In addition, the Helms amendment would have had the effect of prohibiting activities specifically allowed under Federal statutes, which have been upheld in several Supreme Court rulings as being activities protected under the First Amendment. While labor unions and corporations are essentially prohibited from making political contributions or expenditures in connection with a federal election, they are permitted to use union or corporate funds to communicate with their members and their families on any subject, including general political maters as well as specific communications regarding opinions on candidates and election issues. Any action which would restrict this activity, as the Helms amendment would, would likely be held unconstitutional.

My reservations over the possible constitutionality of the Helms Amendment, coupled with its one-sided application only to unions and not to corporations, made it unacceptable to me. Although we may not see eye - to - eye on this question, I do apreciate knowing of your interest.

Sincerely,
Birch Bayh
United States Senator

Photos Show Expansion At Local Vulcraft Plant

Last week, the fifth anniversary of the Vulcraft plant at Saint Joe was announced in these columns. Also noted were the current expansion programs at the steel beam plant.

In the photo above, the new addition to the office quarters is shown. The original building ran from left to right as far as the darkened portion of the roof line. The area to the right is the new addition. The building houses management, sales and designing offices.

In the photo below, the graded area is shown on Vulcraft propety where a decking plant will be built yet this year. Production is expected to begin in April of 1978. The plant will make more convenient the delivery of steel beam and decking to customers in the midwest.

Vulcraft now employs some 200 people.

Sen. Humphrey's Anger

Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota had his dander raised last week when a proposal to change standards related to ice cream would have diminished milk business. The Senator, long described as a liberal in political circles (and liberals would have you believe they are not inclined to strong language and aroused emotions) wrote a letter to an agriculture official and he used no uncertain terms to describe his opinion of the proposal. He described the proirresponsibility in the griculture department. (The Senator's home state of Minnesota is a "dairy" state.)

Now, don't misunderstand — I don't disagree with his outlook in the matter. In fact, I heartily agree. One of my pet gripes is the artificiallity of much of today's food products in many instances.

However, I am a bit perturbed because it has been under liberal influence in the Congress for the past 40-plus years that much artificiality has come into being—artificial prices due to government programs which have messed up the basic law of supply and demand, for instance, thus raising prices and thus adding to inflation. We have an artificial prosperity to a great extent because of so much money being paid to people who do nothing constructive—or do nothing, period. And this adds to the inflationary trend.

All of the artificiality has come under Democrat liberal and Republican liberal control of Congress. Efforts have been made by Republicans following their party tradition, plus some Democrats, to stem the tide in the movement away from individualism toward collectivism but the Republicans have been dubbed the "do nothing" party when in reality the "inactiveness" of that party has been a reflection of the desire to allow people to live their own lives as they see fit rather than have the government constantly interceding through this and that social program.

Senator Humphrey unfortunately has become alarmer after the horse is out of the barn. He and his liberal colleagues opened the barn door.

Wiff Radio Continues Growth

WIFF radio, located on County Road 29 southeast of Auburn, is currently undergoing an expansion of its quarters. The station is pictured above as it has appeared in the past as seen from the driveway approach to the building.

When the addition to the building is completed, a Spanish motif will greet the eyes of visitors to the AM-FM radio facility. The additional space will provide a reception area and conference room, as well as additional office space.

Wayne Paradise, owner-manager of the station, not only has provided the best equipment available for broadcast purposes. He is also utiliziing the latest in heating equipment for the entire building.

A solar heating system is being installed by designer Doug Graham, with the construction work done by Butler & Butler Construction Company of Auburn. The system will utilize a large water storage area underneath the new addition. It includes a wall of concrete, styrofoam, and another wall of concrete. Water will circulate from the tank through pipes in the southern wall of the building exposed to the sun's rays during the winter.

Next issue: A glimpse at the equipment which gives WIFF "the best facilities of any station its size within 200 miles." —Ed.

SUPERMARKET SURVEY

In February of 1974, a questionnaire was published in this paper and was also available in Saint Joe business houses. It sought public opinion and information concerning the need for banking facilities and supermarket facilities in this area.

In May, just three months later Knisely National Bank of Butler announced plans for a permanent structure to house a branch bank at Saint Joe. No, the questionnaire did not achieve such dramatic results; the bank board had discussed the proposal for some time before the questionnaire appeared. What it did was provide vital information for bank directors and served as a turning point.

The supermarket portion of the questionnaire did not bring any concrete results. Supermarket officials, to whom the information was made available, generally felt there was not adequate concentration of population to support a supermarket.

Now, with the branch bank having gained more than 600 new customers and $1 million in deposits in its first year of operation, with more employees at the Vulcraft plant than in 1974, with future expansion of that plant definitely in the future, with the number of new homes built in the past three years in the surrounding area (no big splurge, rather a steady healthy rate of new construction), with the amount of improvements made to older homes in the area indicating a high degree of permanent residence (Widney Avenue in Saint Joe is a prime example of such improvement), and especially with the success of the branch bank, it seems time to renew efforts to gain supermarket facilities for local residents.

You are asked to complete the following questionnaire (it will take only a few moments), leave it at the place of business where you obtained it, or drop it off or send it to Mary Beatty at Knisely Branch Bank in Saint Joe. Urge your friends and neighbors to do the same. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

As with the bank situation in 1974, there is no big "push" or overselling planned. What is sought is honest and factual information to present to appropriate parties to assist them in evaluating this community and its supermarket potential. It will do no good to exaggerate and lead to a "flop."

A Basketball Picture? In August??

But, with the old adage "better late than never" in mind, The News gives its readers a look at the DeKalb Eastside Lady Blazer sectional champions of 1977.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Local Visit Of Quayle Unit Set For August 30

Fourth District Congressman Dan Quayle, though a "freshman" in Congress, is making his voice heard in Washington and is getting background for his voting from those he represents, to all appearances.

The voting record of Representative Quayle appears to be extremely more reflective of the wishes of his constituents than was the voting record of the man he defeated last fall, the popular J. Edward Roush.

The voice of the people is being heard through Quayle's mobile office which travels throughout the Fourth District. If the Congressman is home, he travels with the van. If he is in Washington, the office is manned by members of his staff in the Fourth District.

Several cities and towns have been visited in recent weeks by the mobile office. Saint Joe will be on the list of stops for the first time Tuesday, August 30, when the unit visits DeKalb County. Residents of the Saint Joe-Spencerville-Newville area are invited to make their views known in person when the unit does make its stop here.

The schedule for Tuesday, August 30, is as follows:

Garrett—9 to 9:45 a.m. at the library at the southwest corner of Randolph Street.

Auburn, DeKalb Memorial Hospital—10:15 to 10:45 a.m.

Open visitation—11 a.m. to noon, north side of court house square.

Waterloo—1 to 1:30 p.m. at the southwest corner of Indiana and Main streets.

Butler—2 to 2:30 p.m., parking lot by Bob Meyers Standard Service.

SAINT JOE—3 to 3:30 p.m. on the main street.

It is indicative of Congressman Quayle's desire to be well-informed by all his constituents that Saint Joe has been included on the mobile unit's itinerary this time around. Local residents are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to present their views, ask questions and obtain information concerning the federal government.

ROSCOE WALTER

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Roscoe G. Walter, 86, a long-time funeral director at Spencerville. He had recently resided at Betz Nursing Home in Auburn due to failing health.

Mr. Walter was born September 17, 1890, the son of Henry and Samantha Davis Walter of Allen County. In 1916 he married Jennie Steward who died in 1961.

Survivors include two daughters, Fara Lee Baidinger of Spencerville and Margaret Drerup of rural Auburn; two brothers, Henry and Martin of Spencerville; a sister, Fern Walter of Spencerville; 16 grandchildren and six great grandchildren. A son, Marion, was killed in 1941.

Mr. Walter was a 50-year member of Concord Lodge 556 F&AM and Spencerville Chapter 386 Order of the Eastern Star; Scottish Rite, Valley of Fort Wayne; Mizpah Shrine of Fort Wayne; Royal Arch Masons of Garrett; Royal and Select Masons of Auburn; and Knights Templar of Garrett.

Rev. Wilbur Miller officiated at the funeral. Burial was in White City Cemetery at Spencerville.

UM SOCIAL

Spencerville United Methodist Church will have an ice cream social Saturday, August 27, starting at 5 p.m.

The social will be held at the church.

Residents of the community are invited to enjoy the food and fellowship that evening.

EHS Football

Athletic Director Bill Peden has announced that the DeKalb Eastside varsity football team will participate in a Football Jamboree at Churubusco August 20 at 7:30 p.m.

The playing schedule is as follows:

1st quarter—'Busco v Leo.
2nd quarter—Woodlan v Leo.
3rd quarter—Woodlan v Eastside.
4th quarter—'Busco v Eastside.

Admission price is $1.50 per person. Pre-school children admitted free with an adult.

Eastside fans will be seated on the west side of the field.

There will be two fan buses transporting Eastsiders to 'Busco Saturday. One will leave Butler at 6:30 p.m. The other will leave Spencerville at 6:30 p.m. Both will come to the Riverdale Elementary School at Saint Joe and leave there at approximately 6:50 p.m. to head for 'Busco.

The bus fee is 50 cents per person.

The first game of the season is set for Friday, August 26, at Southern Wells. On Friday, September 2, the Blazers face Adams Central at home. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Football season tickets are on sale at the high school principal's office and at the Saint Joe Branch Bank. Adult tickets are $5 and student $4.00.

Also available is an All-Sports Season Ticket. It provides admission to all home Eastside athletic contests, high school, junior high, girls and boys. It is not valid for tournaments, however.

The price is $35 and provides big savings over gate admission prices. For those attending athletic contests regularly, the All-Sports ticket can mean a saving of one-half through the season.

All-Sports tickets are available only to adults, at the high school office and branch bank.

You have more power over your electric bill than you think.

No matter what we do to help keep your electric bill in line, there's one thing we have no power over.

The amount of power you use.

So we'd like to point out the most significant places where only you have the biggest opportunities to save.

Insulation

6 to 12 inches of insulation in your attic could save you real money each year.

You'll save even more if you insulate your walls, heating ducts and hot water pipes.

Caulking, weatherstripping, storm windows, shades and drapes also help keep heat inside in winter, and outside in summer.

Thermostat Control

Lower your thermostat in winter. Each degree below 68°F can save three percent of the energy needed for heating. If you have air conditioning, a higher thermostat setting will also save energy in summer.

Hot Water Use

You can save up to 5% a year of the energy needed to heat water if you turn your water heater thermostat down to 120 degrees and take quick showers instead of baths.

Fix leaky hot water faucets promptly. And wash clothes in cold water, if you can.

Washing and drying only full loads of clothes and dishes is more economical, too.

Appliance Efficiency

If you're in the market for appliances and equipment, look for the new energy saving features on refrigerators, freezers, and dishwashers. Choose an Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) of 8 or higher on room air conditioners.

While there are a lot more ways to save electricity, these are the ones that will make the biggest impression on your bill.

SERIOUS INJURY IN CAR CRASH

Herbert A. Hoover, 20, of Spencerville suffered serious injuries early Saturday when he drove off State Road 1 about a mile and a half south of Saint Joe. He suffered a broken left leg, shattered left elbow and ankle and facial injuries. He was placed in the intensive care unit of Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Police said Hoover was headed south when he went off the east side of the road, travelled along the edge of the yard of Mrs. O. E. Ginther and struck a rock. The car then crossed a driveway and struck a fence post, a tree and a utility pole.

The accident occurred at 2:20 a.m. Hoover's 1976 car was demolished.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

Dorine Singer, reporter

The Newville Township Homemakers Club met August 10 in the Hicksville Bank Building. 14 members answered roll call with "the best vacation I ever had."

All enjoyed singing "In the Good Old Summertime." Reports were given by Annabelle Culler on gardening; Elva Hook on fashion; and Dorine Singer on consumer canning tips.

"Climb until your dreams come true" was read by Lois Guiff for devotions. A produce auction brought fun and profit for the club.

Rozella Mickelson conducted an oral contest on questions from the Guinness World Book of Records, after which the meeting closed with all repeating the home ec creed.

The September 14 meeting will be at the Newville Church at 1 p.m. Indiana time. Bernice Harter and Mary Platter will be hostesses. Bring produce for auction.

The heat pump. An energy saving idea a lot of people are comfortable with. Even Uncle Sam.

But when it heats, it works more efficiently than any other electric heating system around.

It captures the heat that exists in outside air, even on cold days.

As a result, you can heat your home using up to one-third less electricity than other electric heating systems.

This more-for-your-money, energy-saving feature has made the heat pump very popular with a lot of people.

Including the federal government, whose energy agencies recommend it over other types of electric heat.

Actually, we don't sell heat pumps. But, the way we figure it, every bit of electric energy that can be saved these days helps all of us.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

We were in the middlee of packing to go to Lake James Saturday, August 20, when a phone call came from Ralph Garman that he had found a giant puffball. I didn't have time to run out to the Garmans' —and I was out of Polaroid film for my camera, anyhow—so I didn't get a picture of the overgrown product of Mother Nature.

The puffball weighed 18 3/4 pounds and was "big as a bushel basket."

Hearing about the puffball brought back memories of my youth when it was a big treat to ride in Uncle Harry's Model A Ford from his cottage at Pretty Lake and go tramping with Aunt Berniece through the fields and woods in that area looking for puffballs and hickory nuts.

Next week sounds like a busy one in town. After the fire department's chicken barbecue this weekend, there is the auction of the local restaurant on Wednesday, an auction at the Nosey Nook Thursday, varsity football game Friday, a Junior Girl Scout Bake Sale Saturday, a flea market and auction by the fire department Saturday, an open house and rally day Sunday as well as an annual meeting Sunday at the Lutheran church, and the annual Saint Joe High School reunion Sunday.

—And I suppose I've missed something — — —.

When Mike and Mark pitched in to publish two issues of this paper in July after two issues were missed due to my illness, one of the typesetting jobs for Mark was the annual report of our school district. The report tells where the money comes from to run the district and where it goes. The "receipts" part only lists totals because every taxpayer contributes to the operation of the school system. However, the disbursements are itemized because it is the spending of that money which has the most meaning for those who support the system.

If you will recall, the annual report had quite a few listings. The nature of the report and its setup is such that errors can be made when the eye wanders away from the actual order of listing, especially when similarities of names appear.

This happened to Mark when he set the type and he didn't and I didn't catch it in proofreading.

To show how little things can cause trouble for someone else, (and that doesn't mean the little things are not important), just one initial in one item created some concern in the mind of a patron in the school district. That patron notified a board member who notified Superintendent Kenneth Cole and he in turn notified me. The wrong initial threw suspicion on the validity of the expense listed.

Though Mr. Cole felt somewhat embarrassed because he had to notify me of the error, I am glad he did so. And I am glad that an upset school patron contacted a board member who contacted the superintendent—because the error was then explained and any misunderstanding thus eliminated.

My conversation with Mark about the matter was not to embarrass him; I wasn't fault-finding. Rather, it was to point out a lesson of life—that you never realize just how much effect your actions may have on another person or persons, as in this case where but one improper initial was a cause of upset and concern for one school patron. Also, the incident illustrates that misunderstandings can often be cleared up when a person goes to someone directly involved instead of assuming the worst or going on appearances or rumors.

I don't know who complained and I don't care to know. But I do want that person to know I am glad he or she contacted a school board member to register a complaint or ask a question, that the board member passed it along to Mr. Cole and that Mr. Cole informed me of the matter. Someone's mind should now be at ease as a result.

The incident illustrates that the best "public relations" program in school matters is a "built-in" part of every job involved, every relationship involved—rather than a separate "spokesman" or "public relations director" setup.

—And it's cheaper!

Wislers Now Own Local Grocery

MM Cecil Wisler of Saint Joe took over as owners of the local grocery Wednesday, August 24. The store had been run as part of a chain of Hep's Dairy Stores the past several years. However the original chain of some eight stores is now down to but one, located in Fort Wayne, as the owner has gotten out of the grocery business.

The building, which originally was a two-story structure, underwent major remodeling in 1975. The second story was removed, a complete new roof installed, siding replaced front windows, and insulation installed, as well as other improvements.

The corner location has been a grocery for many years. In the late 40's, it was operated by Ira Moore. Into the 50's, the grocery was operated by Lloyd "Butch" Dunten and son-in-law Don McElroy. In the 60's, it was the Bill Vinson family followed by the Ted Voirols who then sold to Hep's.

A new illuminated sign has been installed on the east side of the store building, with the new name, "Bita General Store." What's "bita"? Well, those who don't know might stop in the store and ask.

School Board Meet'g Dates

Because of the "sunshine laws" now in effect, units of civil government are required to provide news media with information pertaining to meeting dates.

Superintendent Kenneth Coll has, therefore, issued the following:

"Notice is hereby given that the regular meeting schedule of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School Board of Trustees is held on the first and third Monday of each month at 8:00 P. M. in the Office of the School Superintendent, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, during the months of January, February, March, April, May, October, November, and December. GOP WOMEN

DeKalb County Republican Women's Club met recently for its annual summer picnic at Eckhart Park Pavilion in Auburn.

The evening's featured speaker was State Representative Norman L. Gerig who related some of the highlights of his first year at the state legislature.

The committee for the picnic included Christie Myers, Joan Knepper and Jeannette Lloyd.

The next meeting is set for Monday, September 12, at 7:30 p.m. at President Pat Clark's home, 214 South Center Street, Auburn.

Those attending should bring an item for a plant auction.

Anne Kagey Heads CC Education

"A new approach to Christian education at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ"—that's the way Pastor John Paul Hill describes his congregation's latest undertaking.

Continuing to explain the effort, Pastor Hill says, "We are all aware of the great responsibility placed upon public school teachers. Parents faithfully send their children into the classroom 36 weeks a year. In return, a parent anticipates a well-rounded, educated adult 12 years later. The responsibility of the church as 'teacher' is also great as she tries to rear well-rounded and mature Christians.

"Because the Coburn Corners Church of Christ seriously accepts this charge, we are making a change in our approach to Christian education. Beginning Sunday, September 4, our Junior Bible School and Junior Church took a major step forward. For children in grade 1 to 6, both hours are coordinated under the Junior Action Series. There will be individual studies, interest centers, small and large group studies with an accent on participation and maximum learning.

"The coordinator of this program, Miss Anne Kagey, makes a special appeal to parents who are without a church affiliation to enroll their children in the program. Recognizing how vitally important the Bible and faith are for a healthy spiritual growth, your child will be challenged to work at learning the Word of God.

"Should you have questions regarding the program, please call Miss Kagey at 337-5522 or the church office at 238-4567."

LL FOOTBALL

Commissioner Tim Mershon announces that the Eastside Little League Football Program would like to thank everyone who helped make their paper drive successful two weeks ago.

In response to a large number of requests, plans have been made to run paper pick-ups on a regular basis. Those who would like to have old newspapers picked up every two months may send their name, address (and directions to get to their home, if needed) and phone number to Mr. Mershon, 115 Park Lane, Butler, Indiana 46721.

Public participation will be greatly appreciated by the Little League staff and by all the boys who benefit from using the equipment purchased with money raised from paper collections.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

I would like to thank you for the nice picture you gave me.

I'm sorry I haven't written you before this, but have been involved with Mickey Mantle baseball. Our team did quite well this summer, and I felt very honored to get to go to West Virginia and Sherman, Texas.

Thanks again for the nice things you do for Eastside.

Lance Billings

The Mickey Mantle team from Auburn was sponsored by Bob White of White's Westwood. Lance, Gary Rinard and Rick Keener of Eastside played on the Auburn team which went to the national finals. —Ed.

GS Troop 29

—Nancy Garman, reporter

Our troop has not been idle this summer; we just haven't been writing reports.

We have had meetings, although not regular, all summer except in July which was "Leader's vacation."

In June, the following girls painted the trash cans in Saint Joe as a service project: Mindy Baker, Jennie Hollabaugh, Liat Osmun, Tammy Van Dyke, Julie Hollabaugh and Ellen Garman. Also lending a much-appreciated hand were Betty Longardner and Loretta Loy.

On June 14, the 6th grade girls, Tina Scott, Kathy Mack, Ellen Garman and Wenda Grimm, along with myself and Pat Osmun, spent a fantastic day at Cedar Point. This is an annual event for the girls who are "Bridging To Cadettes."

August 9-12 was our troop campout at Beedy's Lake. Although we got rained on every day, we still managed to have a lot of fun, including games, fishing, an "Onion Hike" to find their breakfast, and a most inspiring "Scouts Own." Miss Robyn Loy accompanied us as a most capable assistant.

Two girls, Liat Osmun and Ellen Garman, spent a week at Girl Scout Camp Ella Logan and enjoyed it very much.

We were pleased to have a sister Girl Scout from Eugene, Oregon, Miss Erin Barber, attend some of our meetings and also go camping with us. She was a welcome addition to our group and we will miss her, as she has returned to her home.

At our meeting on August 29, we had 16 girls present. We will soon be forming new patrols and have already started planning exciting things, such as a big bake sale Saturday, September 17, in the front yard of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. There will be posters up next week. Watch for them.

All 4th, 5th and 6th grade girls are welcome to come and join us. Let us show you how much fun it is to belong to a Girl Scout troop.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends for their prayers, cards and expressions of sympathy at the loss of our father, Roscoe Walter.

An Explanation

The questionnaire which appeared in this paper August 18, seeking public response concerning supermarket facilities, was misleading in one respect. It had been my intention to place posters with additional questionnaires attached in local business houses, as was done in 1974. The August 18 article inferred that this would be the case.

However, I didn't know at the time that the Cecil Wislers were completing arrangements to purchase the local grocery operated for the past several years as Hep's Dairy Store.

When their son-in-law, Jim Miller, came to the house and told me of the plans, I was concerned lest anyone think that the questionnaire came out with knowledge of the Wislers' plans; it might appear to be a deliberate move to hamper the Wislers; it might look like a "dirty trick."

So, no posters and additional questionnaires were put out.

As one who has "pushed" patronage of home town merchants for many, many years, I do not wish to be creating additional problems for someone from the local community operating a grocery in this community. It seems only fair to give the new owners a chance.

However, it will do no harm for readers to complete the questionnaire and turn it in, it seems to me, since some of the answers can be of help to the Wislers as well as any supermarket officials who were in mind when the questionnaire was published.

No supermarket representatives have made any recent contacts about this area, to my knowledge. The questionnaire is strictly this paper's effort to obtain pertinent information which could be helpful in providing for the needs of the average family in the community. If we can add to the business community bit by bit with permanent new business ventures, everyone will benefit.

The few questionnaires which have been turned in thus far point to one very definite factor: fresh meat is a "must" in any local grocery venture which expects any amount of patronage. And the Wislers have said they intend to have fresh meat as soon as they can obtain a refrigerated enclosed meat display case (such cases cost "a fortune").

So, if you haven't filled in the questionnaire yet, I suggest that you do. It will be a help to any grocery venture.

'Sunshine Laws' Costly

The new "sunshine" laws are considered to be a step in the right direction toward creating an informed public. The laws establish certain standards to require notification of the public of meetings held by various civil government units and their subordinates.

The idea is good, basically; no fault can be found in wanting to let citizen-taxpayers know what decisions are being made and how their tax money is being used.

However, the additional burden and liability placed on the various governmental units became evident a week ago when the News Office received notice of meetings of the Auburn Park Board, the Auburn City Council and the Auburn Board of Zoning Appeals.

Also received was a notice of the meeting dates for the year of the DeKalb eastern school board.

I have a hunch the cost of the "sunshine laws" was not appreciated when the legislation was passed. Think of it. Auburn city government is notifying all news media in the county. That means clerical work — additional clerical work — to prepare the notices and prepare them for mailing, additional cost for and greater use of paper, and increased postage commitments.

The liability possibilities demand that extensive notification be given news media, even in communities where the unit of government has no authority. This is to avoid the legal obligation to, for instance, a resident of Auburn who does not subscribe to the Auburn paper nor listen to the Auburn radio station. Such a person could conceivably claim that adequate notice had not been given (if the meeting notice was not provided to this paper and that person happened to be a subscriber to this paper).

If that seems far-fetched, consider the trivialities resorted to by some attorneys on which to base a liability suit in other matters.

So, while "open government" seemed a desirable goal to seek with "sunshine laws," the practical application now reveals another cost added to governmental and civil activities.

And bureaucratic red tape is lengthened another inch or two.

Adding to that disturbing thought is the knowledge that, under conditions existing before "sunshine laws" were passed, citizens already had the "right to know" and had the right to attend civil government meetings.

EHS HARRIERS

Coach Bob Brown's Eastside harriers soared off to an impressive, yet somewhat disappointing start this year by soundly defeating Hamilton and Angola, but losing to Dekalb by a single point.

The meet was held at the golf course in Hamilton with Hamilton, Angola, Eastside and DeKalb Central running against each other in dual-meet competition.

The Blazers' Butch McBride led most of the first half of the race, but missed a flag at one point on the course and had to double back. He lost the lead to the Baron's Barkman at this point, and was never able to regain first. The local runners also were without the services of Jim Whitman, who is one of their top men and former junior high ACAC cross country champion.

Ken Ray finshed second for Eastside and fifth overall as he was nosed out by the second Barkman to cross the finsh line for DeKalb. Tony Salinas was next as he came in seventh overall. These arriers were followed by Eugene Evans and David Drake who completed Eastside's top five. Coach Brown was particularly pleased by the performances of Drake and Evans who are both freshmen.

Also taking part for the Blazers were Jim Gilvin and Sonny Salinas.

Scores for the meet were: DeKalb Central, 27, Eastside, 28; Eastside, 20, Angola, 35; and Eastside, 20, Hamilton, 35. The winning time for the race was 13:28.

Juniors Butch BcBride and Kenny Ray and senior Tony Salinas gave Eastside a one-two-three finish Monday of last week as the Blazer cross-country team downed Fremont 19-42.

McBride posted the second fastest time of his career for the two and one-half mile course with his winning time of 12:52. Ray notched his fastest time for the same distance at 13:01. Salinas came in at 13:53.

Fremont took fourth and fifth while Blazer freshman Eugene Evans came in sixth with a time of 14:48. Eastside sophomore Jim Whitman was seventh at 14:58. The Blazers also took the next three spots won by Dave Drake, Evan Collins and Jim Ervin. Nick Gollmier and Sonny Salinas finished 13th and 14th.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures; "Go thou and do likewise."

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 390, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

SUPERMARKET SURVEY

In February of 1974, a questionnaire was published in this paper and was also available in Saint Joe business houses. It sought public opinion and information concerning the need for banking facilities and supermarket facilities in this area.

In May, just three months later Knisely National Bank of Butler announced plans for a permanent structure to house a branch bank at Saint Joe. No, the questionnaire did not achieve such dramatic results; the bank board had discussed the proposal for some time before the questionnaire appeared. What it did was provide vital information for bank directors and served as a turning point.

The supermarket portion of the questionnaire did not bring any concrete results. Supermarket officials, to whom the information was made available, generally felt there was not adequate concentration of population to support a supermarket.

Now, with the branch bank having gained more than 600 new customers and $1 million in deposits in its first year of operation, with more employees at the Vulcraft plant than in 1974, with future expansion of that plant definitely in the future, with the number of new homes built in the past three years in the surrounding area (no big splurge, rather a steady healthy rate of new construction), with the amount of improvements made to older homes in the area indicating a high degree of permanent residence (Widney Avenue in Saint Joe is a prime example of such improvement), and especially with the success of the branch bank, it seems time to renew efforts to gain supermarket facilities for local residents.

You are asked to complete the following questionnaire (it will take only a few moments), leave it at the place of business where you obtained it, or drop it off or send it to Mary Beatty at Knisely Branch Bank in Saint Joe. Urge your friends and neighbors to do the same. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

As with the bank situation in 1974, there is no big "push" or overselling planned. What is sought is honest and factual information to present to appropriate parties to assist them in evaluating this community and its supermarket potential. It will do no good to exaggerate and lead to a "flop."

1. I reside in (circle one) Saint Joe Spencerville rural area

2. If outside corporate limits of Saint Joe, how far? ..... miles

3. How much do you spend in an average week for household needs obtainable at most supermarkets? $.....

4. Where do you do most of your grocery shopping .....

5. Do you think a supermarket is needed at Saint Joe? ☐ yes ☐ no

6. If a supermarket were to locate at Saint Joe, would you probably do all or most of your grocery shopping there, assuming it has competitive prices, quality products, good service? ☐ yes ☐ no

7. Would you do more business at Saint Joe with presently existing businesses if you could also supermarket-shop here?
☐ probably more ☐ possibly more
☐ already do as much shopping as possible at Saint Joe

8. In general, in your present supermarket shopping, do you:
☐ go where the price is lower but the product MIGHT be unsatisfactory - in other words, do you "take chances; or ☐ go where the price may be a little higher but you can depend on the quality of what you buy?

9. In buying fresh meat, do you prefer:
☐ a meat display where you can select from unpackaged cuts; or
☐ a meat display with all cuts pre-packaged; or
☐ it makes no difference

10. How essential is fresh meat in your grocery shopping?

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

It was nice to have Lewis Walter stop in the shop a couple of weeks ago when he and his Mrs. were in this area. He was my "teacher" back in 1948 when I took over The News. He was on a GI apprenticeship at that time and stayed with me for a couple of years. He then went to Higley's at Butler, then to Warsaw, then to Mexico for a year in mission work as a printer, then back to the states.

I don't know if this is good or bad—but he didn't look any older two weeks ago than he did years ago. I believe he could still get out on the ball diamond and keep up with the younger bunch as he did years ago with the Legion softball team and The News softball team in the Auburn league.

—And there is something special when an old friend leaves with the blessing, "The Lord be with you." I know he meant it because he followed up with, "I appreciate your Christian witness in your editorials."

He doesn't realize how much nourishment he gave me with those kind words.

Hey — Kenny Mack is walking around like a blind man — he lost his glasses, probably in the vicinity of the Bita General Store. The glasses have thick lenses with a black nylon frame and are in a brown case with a clip. If anyone knows where they are, call Kenny at 337-5329.

Dick Shook of Washington, D.C., a faithful subscriber for many years with family roots in Spencerville, sends word that he is retiring after 39 years in the practice of law. He and the Mrs. have a new address: 4505 North Kingshighway, Unit 2-B, Myrtle Beach, South Carolina 29577.

—Who's the clown who said they'd give up, too, after 39 years of practicing?

FARM BUREAU

—Mazie Myers, reporter

On September 9, 24 DeKalb Farm Bureau women attended a District III women's meeting at Churubusco.

Mrs. Carl Perkins, DeKalb County, and Mrs. Lewis Blaskey, Elkhart County, took care of registration. Coffee and rolls were served until 10 a.m.

Mrs. Ernest Gross presided at the business meeting and Mrs. Russell Neadstine gave the welcome.

All county women leaders gave reports and received a gift.

"Stepping Stones—Gateway To Achievement," was the title of Mrs. Guy Gross' talk. She is second vice-president and director of the Women's Department.

After noon lunch, George Neff told of some changes in state offices. Allan Miller was named to the staff of Natural Resources. Marvin Metzger has been selected as director of Organizations Department. He had been District II fieldman.

There were 58 entries in the flower show handled by Mrs. Wayne Strader, Mrs. Richard Strayer and Mrs. Neadstine.

Mrs. Gary Herendeen supervised the Pet and Hobby Poster Contest which had 15 entries.

Two movies were shown, one featuring the "Hollywood Squares" on use and misuse of alcoholic beverages. The other showed Rural Youth program works.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met August 25 at the Spencerville Community Building. MM Earl Hodges hosted the meeting with help from Ida Reed and Gaylon Markle substituting for MM Maurice Smith who were vacationing in Utah.

The group sang the Doxology after which a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed.

President Ida Reed conducted a brief business meeting. Greetings were extended to those present. A motion carried to donate $3 to the Spencerville Fire Department Auxiliary for a square or day each month on the calendar which they are composing.

"Happy Birthday" was sung for those having birthdays in August and their birthday offering was received.

The meeting was then turned over to Dorothy Hodges. She read an article, "Captain Stubby Says," and Earl Hodges read, "Taste For Apples." Dorothy then told us that since it was about time for school to start, they had prepared a little skit, "A Day of School In a One Room Schoolhouse." Clara Brandon was introduced as the teacher and the first five grades were represented as follows: first, Dorothy Hodges; second, Evelyn Johnson; third, Nellie Schaeffer; fourth, Earl Hodges; and fifth, Mildred McKinley.

After the pledge to the flag, they sang one verse of "America." This was followed by Scripture, then one verse of "The Church In the Wildwood." Then we heard the pupils recite their reading, arithmetic, spelling and history lessons. Then school was dismissed for the day.

This skit brought back many pleasant memories to us, as the usual antics of a day at school were enacted.

The next meeting will be held September 22 with MM Karl Hart and MM Faye Wilmot as hosts. Same time—same place —we will be looking for you.

GENERAL TEL PROGRAM

General Telephone's "Youth and Communications" program, designed primarily to educate Indiana elementary school students on emergency telephone calling procedures and proper telephone usage, will be presented September 19 at Riverdale Elementary School.

Monday's program features Linda Fultz, the company's public affairs representative, who is in charge of the program. The content of the program consists of four different subjects, determined by the age of the audience.

A kindergarten program teaches youngsters how to properly reach an operator in an emergency, what to say, and how to keep a telephone line connected in case a trace is required. Fourth grade students are taught correct telephone usage when placing or receiving a call.

Students in the seventh grade see a program illustrating man's method of communication from the beginning of time, through the present, and into the future. High school seniors are shown an outline explaining General Telephone & Electronics (GTE) and the opportunities existing within GTE and General Tel of Indiana.

The company offers these programs throughout the Indiana exchanges it serves. Since the program's inception in 1974, it has been presented to more than 50,000 Indiana students.

EHS HARRIERS

The Eastside cross country team ventured to Churubusco last Friday for the annual Churubusco Invitational Meet. The Blazers finished ahead of 14 teams but still placed 11th overall in one of the strongest fields of high school distance runners ever assembled in this area.

Dave Painter of Heritage took individual honors as he covered the difficult course in 12:27, only 7 seconds off the record. Painter averaged less than five minutes per mile for the two and one-half miles.

Butch McBride was Eastside's leading runner as he finished 18th with a time of 13:25. Kenny Ray was the Blazers' next scorer as he came in 41st with a time of 13:45. Tony Salinas placed 72nd, Jim Whitman 76th and Eugene Evans 118th. 166 runners took part in the race.

Norwell, ranked 18th in the state, took team honors while Lakeland was second. The Blazers face these powerful squads in dual-meet competition later in the season.

The Blazers rolled to two victories Monday of this week as the locals crushed Hamilton 18-37 and stopped Prairie Heights 24-31 at Maxton Park.

Junior Butch McBride coasted the final quarter mile and still turned in the excellent time of 12:53 as he took individual honors. Perkins of Prairie Heights was second while junior Ken Ray placed third in the time of 13:06.

Sophomore Jim Whitman ran his best race of the year as he placed fifth with a time of 13:30. Coach Bob Brown was particularly pleased with the strong effort turned in by Whitman. He noted the Blazer sophomore is just now recovering from a knee ailment and should start coming into his own.

Senior Tony Salinas was seventh with a 13:43 and freshman Eugene Evans posted his best time with a 13:56.

Evan Collins, Jim Irvin, Nick Gollmer, Sonny Salinas and Jack Ridenour rounded out the Blazer attack.

The Blazers dropped their second meet of the season while picking up their sixth victory Tuesday at Shoaff Park. The local harriers were nipped by Leo 30-36 while stopping Churubusco 36-58.

Coach Bob Brown was rather disappointed, it is reported, in the times of the local runners, although he noted the meet was held in a driving rainstorm and Eastside was running its second straight meet in two days.

Butch McBride finished third with a time of 13:35 while Ken Ray came in fifth at 13:42. Jim Whitman was seventh at 14:30, Tony Salinas eighth at 14:32 and Eugene Evans 13th at 14:48.

Effort In Progress To 'Up' Spencer Twp. Fire Protection

The Women of Spencerville have started a Fire Fighters Auxiliary.

The first meeting was held August 14 at the fire house to elect the following officers:

Sharon Baker, president;
Cherie Bushee, vice-president;
Betty Miller, secretary;
Jean Moore, treasurer.

Meetings are to be held every second Sunday of the month. Anyone who wants to can join.

The organization of an Auxiliary is part of a combined effort by both men and women in the community to provide improved fire protection to the residents of Spencer Township.

Purchase of a new truck is in the offing, a legal notice for bids appearing elsewhere in this issue.

The Spencerville Fire Department is a separate corporation. It operates independently but has received some support in the past from the township. Other funds have been raised through dues-donations and raffles.

The setup in Concord Township is of a different nature. In the Saint Joe-Concord Township Fire Department relationship, the department operates under the jurisdiction of the Saint Joe Town Board and the Concord Township Trustee. According to law, the fire chief for the Town of Saint Joe is to be appointed by the Town Board. However, the practice for many years has been to allow the fire department to elect a chief and other officers. This arrangement worked satisfactorily, to all appearances, until the past three years when the fire chief also served as President of the Town Board. From comments coming from some local residents and property owners, the conflict of interest in the situation has been a detriment to the functioning of both the Town Board and the fire department itself.

The local department is not empowered to incur any obligations without the consent and approval of the Town Board and/or the Township Trustee. Equipment and facilities do not belong to the fire department; they are the property of the taxing unit which provides the equipment and facilities.

Lack of knowledge and understanding of this relationship has apparently been the cause of friction and misunderstanding in recent years.

The fire department of itself can neither buy nor sell equipment, except as funds are made available to the department by a taxing unit or the department undertakes a fund raising project.

However, when equipment is purchased or acquired, by whatever means, it becomes the property of the town or the township.

Liability incurred by the fire department becomes a liability for the town and/or township; that means taxpayers are responsible for such liability. For this reason, the functioning of the fire department is a matter of concern for all taxpayers in the taxing unit area; what goes on in the fire department is as much the public's business as is the expenditure of funds for street lights, maintenance, sewage matters, and so on.

"TRUST ME"

"Trust me."

"Bert, I'm proud of you."

The above two quotations (one from Candidate Jimmy Carter and the other from President Jimmy Carter) are intended to make those who voted for Mr. Carter wince. There are other quotes or comments from the President to add to the list. But let's just stick to the above two for starters.

Concerning trust, Mr. Carter stated during his campaign he would reduce the size of the Presidential staff. Instead, he added more to it. During the campaign he said he would not give up United States' interest and influence in the Panama Canal Instead of sticking to that promise, he signed a treaty just a week or so ago to give Panama it's independence despite public opinion which has been overwhelmingly in favor of maintaining U.S. influence in Panama.

National columnist Morrie Ryskind had this to say about the situation this week:

"The records show Richard Nixon did not invent the Presidential Enemy List. FDR, JFK and LBJ had like compilations of non-admirers whom they sought to discredit.

"Apparently Mr. Carter also has such a list — not of personal foes, but a compendium of Red rulers openly hostile to the USA. And Jimmy's modus operandi is unique. No rough stuff for him; he prefers to turn the other cheek, give them what they want, and urge them to sin no more.

"There are scoffers who term this paying protection money to mobsters in the vain hope of buying their good will, and they assert that in the process Jimmy is stupidly dropping old friends.

"It certainly gives Jimmy some strange playmates: dictator Torrijos of Panama; Fidel Castro, with whom he's getting palsy-walsy; the Vietnam Liberators whom Jimmy okayed for a seat in the UN; Angola, now under Red domination; and the Black Nationals of Africa, whose gallant guerrillas recently invaded a hospital in Rhodesia, killing a nun and a doctor who were ministering to the sick.

"But last week was designated in Washington as 'the Week of Panama,' so let's concentrate on that. Jimmy had said from the start that the public might oppose the pact but that he hoped to convince the people through a series of fireside chats that it was just what the doctor ordered and that from now on all would be peaches and cream between us and our Latin friends.

"The (opposition) figures must have warned Jimmy that he needed a diversionary gimmick and he came up with the notion of having some 27 dignitaries from Latin America witness his signing of the pact with Torrijos at the Pan American Building. In my book, that was a shabby and intellectually dishonest publicity stunt, unworthy of even a Madison Avenue cynic, let alone one who was 'born again.' For the razzle-dazzle clearly implied a lot of things that weren't true.

"It is as phony as the proverbial three-dollar bill, since it is written on wind and in water and can mean not a thing unless and until the Senate votes on it. And surely the debate on the pact will take months.

"Why the unseemly haste, Jimmy? Afraid your fireside chat audience won't accept your reasoning? You ask us to trust you — but you clearly don't trust us."

So much for trust in one area.

As to the President's proud feeling about Bert Lance, the Georgia banker whose activities in the past have brought a crisis situation endangering his appointment as budget director, Mr. Lance has not yet been proven guilty of violating any banking laws. However, his way of doing things HAS brought enough criticism from banking experts that even Mr. Carter's own Democrat party members in Congress have serious doubts about the wisdom of appointing Mr. Lance to such a high position as budget director.

President Carter campaigned against Gerald Ford partly on the basis of casting a shadow on Mr. Ford and Republicans in general as being associated with special interests, with special MONEYED interests, if you please. "Ethics" was the significant word.

Yet, Mr. Carter's selection of White House assistants and others in high posts includes some 45 persons from the state of Georgia, Mr. Carter's home state. Among these is Mr. Lance who represents not only a personal friendship with the President, he also represents MONEYED interests as a banker.

Mr. Carter campaigned with an assurance to voters that any appointments would be made not just on the basis of technical requirements. Also to be a factor was the ethical side of the picture—those unwritten laws which determine how trustworthy a person is.

The problem which has arisen in the selection of Bert Lance as budget director indicates that Mr. Carter has reneged on his promise to restore integrity to government. His promised "ethics" have gone out the window.

Commenting in another column, Mr. Ryskind says of the canal treaty matter:

". . . So let me quote Georgie Anne Geyer, a political columnist noted for her liberal philosophy:

" 'I can recall no sensitive foreign-policy so bungled in presentation and so mired in hypocrisy, cant and outright deceit. This becomes even more repellent coming from an Administration of such lofty pretension.' "

—that the remainder of the Eastside reserve football schedule has been cancelled.

Athletic Program Cost Exceeds Gate Receipts

In an effort to raise funds to support the Eastside Athletic Department, a raffle will be held with the drawing to occur at halftime of the Eastside-Leo football game to be played October 28 at Eastside.

Prizes to be awarded include a 19-inch RCA XL100 color TV, donated by Parkison TV of Butler; a portable 8-track stereo with AM-FM radio, donated by Spake & Watson TV of Butler; a $50 gift certificate, donated by Cooper Jewelry of Butler; and 50 gallons of gasoline, donated by Tules' Mobil of Butler.

Tickets go on sale Friday, September 16, at the Blazer-'Busco football game. Tickets are also available at Geddes Drug Store, Parkison TV where the first prize will be on display, Spake & Watson TV, Cooper Jewelry, Sutton's Super Valu, all of Butler; Bita General Store in Saint Joe; Laub's Shell Mart in Spencerville; any Eastside High School coach; and Eastside High School Athletic Booster Club Members.

The rapid expansion of athletic programs the past two or three years into more sports and the participation of girls in many of those programs has created a financial obligation which the athletic department may not be able to fulfill without outside assistance.

The athletic department is self-sustaining; no tax monies are used to support the department, except for salaries of coaches and the athletic director.

Bill Peden, athletic director, recently appeared before the school board to review the situation. He has also sent letters to all athletic participants since consolidation created Eastside High School, asking for their support by attending as many athletic events as possible.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for the pictures and frames you gave me.

I know it was hard to find the time to go to the ball games and take all those pictures. You must have taken a lot of time to be able to get action shots instead of just the line up.

Thanks again for the pictures.

The heat pump is a device that heats and cools your home.

But when it heats, it works more efficiently than any other electric heating system around.

It captures the heat that exists in outside air, even on cold days.

As a result, you can heat your home using up to one-third less electricity than other electric heating systems.

This more-for-your-money, energy-saving feature has made the heat pump very popular with a lot of people.

Including the federal government, whose energy agencies recommend it over other types of electric heat.

Actually, we don't sell heat pumps. But, the way we figure it, every bit of electric energy that can be saved these days helps all of us.

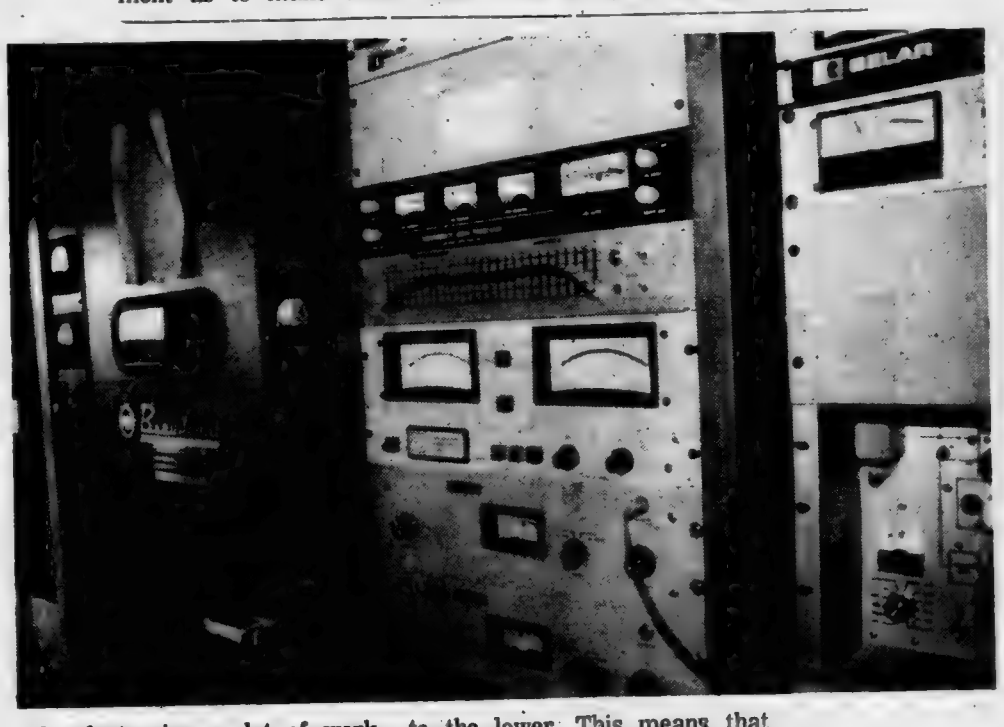
WIFF - The Radio Voice Of DeKalb County - Upgrades Total Facilities For Improved Service To Broadcast Area

When an employee speaks in praise of an employer who provides "the best" for all the employees, it's something to talk about—and recognize. And such praise came recently about the efforts of Wayne Paradise who has, according to that employee, obtained such up-to-date equipment as to make WIFF radio in DeKalb County a small station with "the best equipment for its size in 200 miles."

In these days of continuous strikes, work stoppages and the general expression of discontent, such words of praise emphasize that it is people and attitudes which bring satisfaction and not just "things."



In electronics, a lot of work can be done with a physically small piece of equipment. Such is the case with new equipment installed in recent months at DeKalb County's "own" radio station, WIFF-AM and FM.

In the above photo, the center panel is a new installation, perhaps some two feet wide or so. But it carries a big name— "discriminate audio processor." Its function is to control tone clarity by controlling the output of high and low frequencies as well as mid-range. Since the human ear cannot hear frequencies above a certain level and below a certain level, sending out those inaudible frequencies represents a waste of power output.

The row of slide controls seen in the photo just below the top row of dials controls the frequency output. It can be seen that to the left, the levers are down; toward the center they are fairly uniform and "up" while toward the right, the controls again gradually go to the lower. This means that the low frequencies (controlled by the left side of the unit) are cut down; the middle frequencies are set higher; and the high frequencies (controlled by the levers at the right end) drop downward.

The strength of the station's signals in the average hearing range is thus increased within its broadcast range by using power for hearable frequencies and not wasting power on inaudible frequencies. The power output is not increased overall; it is, rather, concentrated more in the hearable range.

All radio stations of any size have separate studios where equipment is set up and arranged according to the use to be made of the individual studios.

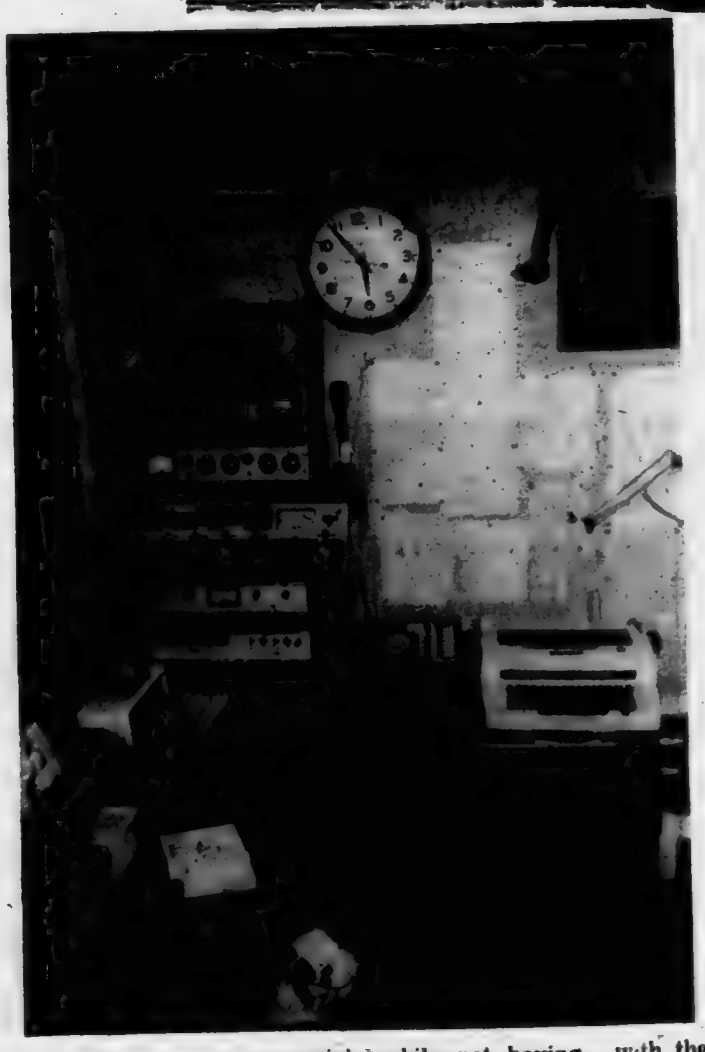
Above, Pat Oberlin is shown in Studio A as she gave Butler and eastern DeKalb County news on a recent date. Normally, Pat's news broadcast is by telephone. Her news segment is heard week days at about 11:05 a.m. She is one of the "mainstays" in the news department and has been a reliable source of information for several years as a part-time community service broadcaster.

Studio A is actully much larger than the above photo would seem to indicate, only about one-fourth of the total studio area included in the photo. Studio A has a table, chairs and microphones for interview-type programs, along with the necessary electrical monitoring and broadcasting controls required.

Though her segment of news is designated as "Butler news," Pat welcomes news items from the entire east side school district area of the county. Those in the Saint Joe-Spencerville-Newville area can reach Pat at 868-2579.

The Saint Joe News

Established Saturday, March 7, 1883, as free paper—Second class subscription Jan. 28, 1887 September 22, 1977 Vol. 95—34



It takes people to make WIFF the "public servant" it represents in radio broadcasting. A very popular segment is "The Trading Post," a call-in program on which area residents may advertise for-sale or wanted items. WIFF owner-manager Wayne Paradise, above, is the usual host on the public service program heard just after the 9 a.m. news.

An important part of WIFF's service to this area is in the nature of news broadcasts. The above photo shows the news room which, while not having an impressively "big and new" range of equipment, still has a newness in that it is integrated with the transmitting equipment and is newly-arranged as part of a continuing process of remodeling has occurred in recent months.

Studio C above is where 85% of the day's broadcasts originate. Though extensive use of taped commercials is involved, along with recorded music, on the country-music AM station and the "easy listening" and religious programs on FM, a "live one" is needed at the controls during broadcasts to see that everything falls into place at the proper time.

One of the outstanding services offered by WIFF is its carefully-planned presentations of remote (or "on-the-spot") broadcasts of grand openings or special promotions by area businesses. Above at left is "Mighty Mike" Metzger who, in addition to serving in the advertising sales department, puts in time as a disc jockey.

At right is Ron Hensley who not only provides the technical know-how as station engineer to set up equipment for such things as the above remote but also is overseer of the equipment in the home station.
Ron also is responsible for the carpentry which has made possible an attractive and efficient interior at WIFF's quarters on County Road 29.
Ron and his family have purchased the home of Lela Northrup at Saint Joe and moved in recently.

There are others at WIFF who contriute an important part to the station's success. Included are W. A. "Bill" Rump who has Noble County news; copy writer Jenny Bartels; Nell Souers in sales; and disc jockeys Charlie Walter, Bob Richards and Denny "DJ the DJ" Dangler. Part-time help completes the staff.

Put them all together and you have a small-community radio station with an owner who seeks to provide the best in equipment for his staff and the best in radio entertainment and information for its listeners.

A news-photo story about the radio station appeared in these pages a few years ago, referring to the station as "the quiet one" in DeKalb County. The "quiet one" has been so effective, however, that a recent survey by an independent consulting firm showed WIFF with a higher listener rating during much of the broadcast day than any other radio station in the area, including all Fort Wayne radio stations.

Current construction of expanded building facilities includes utilization of a solar heating system in coordination with two heat pumps to heat and cool the building. This reflects the desire of Mr. Paradise to be up-to-date, yet not lose the "homey" and friendly atmosphere evident in the manner with which the staff as a whole relates to the public it serves.

WIFF-AM is located at 1570. WIFF-FM is located at 105.5 on the radio dial.

In April of 1976, Phil Haberkorn, above, became WIFF's first full-time program director. He joined the station in May of 1971 on a part-time basis when he was a full-time student at IU-PU Fort Wayne, preparing for a radio-television career. The 1969 Eastside grad was then named news director in August of 1972 before taking over program director duties in 1976.

News director Jerry Clark is shown above at the mike. His duties include coordinating the input of local and national news and covering significant happenings in this area.

Sports director Dave Martin is a veteran at WIFF and provides play-by-play broadcasts of athletic events in the county as area merchants may request or support such coverage.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Kate Bowser sends the following information concerning the article on the local grovery:

"In regards to MIS-information about the store building purchased by Margaret and Cecil Wisler—

1st—Ira Moore never operated a grocery in THAT building. He operated a grocery and gas station at the west end of town in the property occupied now by Mike Beatty—as did at one time—Helen and George Wade —and "Mutt" and Ruth Coburn.

"The Wisler Building for a good many years housed the local Post Office—then in the 30's "Skinny" High of Spencerville had a restaurant there—then Bill and Dessie Hurni a grocery—then Basil Sheffer a restaurant. The building was owned by the "Odd Fellows Lodge"—the lodge rooms were in the upper story.

Roy Bowser rented the building and bought Basil's Restaurant equipment—in the 40's—However Roy operated a Grocery Store there until late 40's—--then he bought Art Lyons grocery across the street—where Lloyd Noel's is at this time—Isobel and Byron Woodcox took over the building vacated by Roy—This was during World War II—and St. Joe supported 3 groceries—West End, Isobel's and Bowsers—In early 50's Roy sold the large grocery to Byron and Isobel Woodcox —and Don McElroy took over the smaller store—a few years later "Butch" Dunten sold his store in Ft. Wayne and took over the small store from his son-in-law—Then followed Bill Vinson in the 60's—then the Ted Voirols—then Bill Vinson took over again and it was Bill who sold to Heps."

I think there were so many changes in the grocery business in the 40's and 50's that both Kate and I are confused. The reason I say this is that the February 3, 1949, issue of The Saint Joe News carries an ad sponsored by all of the local businesses in operation at that time, and among the names are "Walters Grocery," "West End Grocery" and "Moore's Grocery."

Little Hoosiers

Riverdale Little Hoosiers held their organizational meeting on September 13 in the Riverdale Cafetorium.

Officers for the club this year are Mark Hudson, president; Dirk Tejan, vice-president; Diane Miller, secretary; Michelle Freese, treasurer; and Jody Lepper, state-wide council member.

The group discussed club rules for the year and decided to again follow a pioneer theme. The sport bag sales have been a big success. The profit made from selling these bags will be used to purchase pioneer-type Christmas tree ornaments for the tree the Little Hoosiers bought for Riverdale School several years ago.

Room representatives were elected. They are: 4A Karen Hissong; 4B Mark Johnson; 5A Tim Rayle; 5B Jodi Baker; 6A Randy Miller; and 6B Kim Hissong.

The club plans include participation in the Johnny Appleseed Festival in Fort Wayne September 24 and 25. The corn display the group assembled for the state convention last spring was to be on exhibit. Little Hoosiers helping with the festival include Liat Osmun, Jody Lepper, Randy Miller, Karen Schmucker; Toby Shinaberry and Mark Hudson.

Little Hoosier Moms this year are Bev Shinaberry, Dorothy Lepper, Jeannie Schmucker and Julie Hissong.

KING'S KORNER

We are pleased to announce some additions to our program here at the church in St. Joe. We have done this in order to provide a well-rounded program to produce well-rounded people for the Lord's Service. We added a total youth program on Sunday night because of the need for young people to feel a part of the church today. We also wanted our youth to have an opportunity to put their faith in action as well as to know that you can have fun and still be a Christian. If you have any young people who are interested in being a part of this program, bring them to church Sunday evenings at 7 p.m.

The second program we have added is Wednesday night Prayer and Bible Study at 7:30 p.m. Prayer meeting helps put the power back in the church because as it has been noted, "PRAYERLESS PEWS CAUSES POWERLESS PULPITS!" This we cannot afford in a day when God seems to be slowly fading from the scene. Thus we invite you to attend this service where Prayer and Bible Study have their rightful place. A nursery is provided, so bring the family and come.

God is not dead for His Spirit is still moving among His people. Let Him into your life and great things will happen. Remember, "GO WITH GOD AND HE'LL GO WITH YOU."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Little Joey Robinson of Auburn has really had a tough time of it in his six years on this earth. It has also been far from an easy road to follow for his parents, MM Lynn Robinson.

Ralphine was telling me about Joey's latest health problems when I was in the hardware this week. Born with birth defects which seemingly have led from one to another, Joey last weekend came up with some sort of infection which caused the family doctor to say, "Get him to the hospital."

Open heart surgery lies in the future for Joey. But such things as the current infection, coupled with other physical problems, have made a heavy burden for him, his parents and his grandparents.

Sunday afternoon I was nosing around Auburn for a while. It was close to supper time so I stopped in at George and Tom's pizza parlor. The two young men are sons of our local Postmaster, George Armstrong.

George and I conversed before a phone call reminded him that he was due for bowling at 6 p.m., not 6:30. He made me feel pleased when he asked how I was feeling, after my layoff in July and early August and also said he enjoyed my editorials.

I had never been in the pizza parlor which they took over about six weeks ago or so. It's a very pleasant atmosphere and has a separate dining area that is very attractively furnished and decorated. This is in addition to the front area of booths, tables and counter accommodations.

George said he knew what the feeling is when things "get to you." Back at the tender age of 19 (he's 23 now), he was overcome by pressures of college work, concern about what his life would or should be, and so on. He was demobilized for six weeks, including hospitalization. But he looks to be "in the pink" now.

I got two large pizzas to bring home for Sunday supper and they were very tasty.

Brother Tom also owns "The Brown House," a popular driveup eatery in Auburn.

I have neglected to acknowledge publicly the efforts of several people to make my immobility more bearable a couple of months ago. I think I did mention Dee Steininger and Gene and Annabelle Stafford in an earlier column. But there were others. I have tried to remember all of them with brief notes of appreciation, but I probably have overlooked some one somewhere along the line, which I regret.

I recall that when I collapsed, Leo Swary and Tillie Akins were close by and responded to son Mike's request for help. Tillie slapped a cold towel around my neck and Leo helped Mike get me to the car. Though the situation wasn't funny, I must smile every time I think of it. Having editorialized in the past about Emergency Medical Services (EMS) and my concern about the program's costs, I would probably be considered the last one to seek the service of an EMS unit. But I can say honestly and truthfully that, when I became aware that something was wrong that morning of July 5, I was thinking about possible need to call the EMS unit. Though no call was made, I knew EMS was there ready to respond and I knew there were many volunteers on call should their help be needed—and it was reassuring to me.

But the funny part was that, when Tillie put that cold towel on my neck, after I got up to a sitting position in a semi-conscious state, someone asked, "Can he get up?" I believe Tillie said, "We can call the EMS." And I immediately started to get to my feet and made it with the help of others. It took the help of others; Esther had been practically bowled over when she tried to give me support earlier, alone.

I have no doubt that there have been a few smiles (mine included) when the episode is recalled, possibly with the words, "Did you see how fast he got up when EMS was mentioned?"

The Junior Girl Scouts had a party and celebration Monday in recognition of Liat Osmun's winning of a contest for a patch design. Nancy Garman, Pat and Cheryll Hollabaugh were in charge of a screaming bunch of girls. Why were they screaming? Well, one of the games had two teams lined up in front of a paper sack which was tied shut with a string. Inside each team's sack were some peanuts. The contest was to see which team could have all its participants untie the sack, get a peanut, shell it and eat it, and then re-tie the paper sack. The catch was that they had to do it while wearing mittens—not finger gloves but mittens.

If you want to know why the screaming occurred, try it yourself.

Butler EMS Unit Says 'Thanks'

—Kay Strombeck, Butler Unit Liaison Officer

The Butler Unit of DeKalb County EMS would like to thank the following people and the rest of the community for their support during our recent fund drive.

All money and donations went to furnish our new quarters.

Since our unit is volunteer, there are many long hours spent at our facilities. We now have room for sleeping accommodations, kitchen facilities, meeting rooms plus our spacious garage. Without the community support, most of these things would not have been possible.

Again we thank all of our supporters—

Economy House, Pat Oberlin, Paul and Mareta Mutzfeld, The Knisely National Bank, Jennie Hammon, MM Forrest Oiler, Don Wolf, Garrett Plumbing & Heating, Harold Call, Mary Betz, W. Liat Osmun, Girl Scout Units Win Honors At County Fair

The Scout Parade on Tuesday of county fair week was a big success. There were 39 units with over 400 participants.

All four of Saint Joe's Girl Scout troops participated and three won first place ratings.

Junior Troop 29 placed first with a marching unit as did Cadette Troop 192. The new Senior Troop placed first with a float.

Adult leader Pat Osmun has expressed thanks to all who assisted the troops in any way to make this such a successful night. A special "thanks to Ted who donated scads of poster board for signs, posters, etc. As you can see, it all came to a good end."

Last spring the Scout Parade Committee ran a contest open to all Girl and Boy Scouts in the county to design a patch for this year's Scout Parade. The winning design was submitted by Liat Osmun of the local Junior Girl Scout Troop. She is the daughter of Allen and Pat Osmun and received a plaque and a $25 savings bond at the presentation of awards last Saturday evening at the fair.

September 7 had Girl Scout registration at Riverdale School in the cafetorium. Due to a lot of continued hard work by some dedicated adults, there is a new Senior Troop in Saint Joe.

LIAT OSMUN

Other troops include a Cadette Troop of four girls, a Junior Troop of 17 girls and a Brownie Troop of 37 girls—and growing! "Somebody's doing something right," says Pat.

The combined troops would like to thank all who participated in the recent bake sale. It was a very big success.

EHS Harriers

Eastside split a pair of dual meets Tuesday at Shoaff Park in Fort Wayne. The local harriers topped Southern Wells 20-35 but lost to Heritage 22-39.

Eastside's Butch McBride tied for second with a time of 13:22 while Kenny Ray came in fourth by posting his best time at the Fort Wayne course with 13:31.

Jim Whitman was the next Blazer runner as he came in 11th with a time of 14:20. Tony Salinas was 15th at 14:17 and Eugene Evans 18th at 14:45. Dan Drake was 21st with 15:25.

Junior Butch McBride set a new Eastside record for the 2½-mile trek recently as he toured the Maxton Park course in 12:-41. However, Eastside lost the meet to Garrett 23-34.

McBride won the race easily and Coach Bob Brown noted that the local harrier could have lowered the mark by quite a few more seconds if he had been pushed. The old record was held by Jim Burns who is now attending Tri-State University.

Cora Funk

Mrs. Cora E. Funk, 76, formerly of R1 Saint Joe, died last week at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. She had been in failing health for eight years.

Mrs. Funk was born January 14, 1901, in Oakwood, Ohio. She married Lorin Funk in Oakwood in 1924. He resides north of Saint Joe.

Other survivors include two sons, Orville of R1 Auburn and Robert of R4 Auburn; a daughter, Mrs. Lola Phillips of R2 Waterloo; two brothers, Aaron Cohart of Oakwood and Jake Cohart of Cecil, Ohio; ten grand children and three geat grandchildren. A son, two sisters and two brothers preceded her in death.

Mrs. Funk was a member of the First Baptist Church in Auburn and was an active member of the DeKalb County Extension Homemakers Club activities.

Funeral services were held Friday, September 30, at the Feller-Graffis Funeral Home in Waterloo with Rev. Carroll McNutt officiating. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

Newville Extension Homemakers met at the Hicksville Bank September 14. Doris Hart presided. Hostesses were Bernice Harter and Mary Platter.

All sang "Tell Me Why" and "The Homemakers Prayer." 15 members answered roll call with "my favorite or my worst teacher." Using the book of Galatians for devotions, Myrtle Mills also read several quotations from Jo Petty's "Apples of Gold." A book report on "How To Talk With God When You Aren't Feeling Religious" was given by Dorine Singer.

Zella Collins reported on child care related to cancer in children over age 3 and it was very informative. Needlework Guild money was taken for the "In Gathering" in October.

Your shopping cart can tell you a lot about your electric bill.

Like food and everything else you buy these days, inflation has hit us, too.

So, it would be easy to blame inflation for rising electric rates and leave it at that.

And, for sure, inflation has doubled and tripled the cost of everything from towers and transformers to coal and cable.

Take coal, our single largest operating expense. Its cost has gone up fourfold and more in the seventies.

But the reasons for rising rates go beyond those everyday expenses.

We must build pollution control devices like precipitators to help keep our air clean as we burn this coal.

And those devices cost millions. Installing them in existing plants can cost as much as the original plant. For example: our Tanners Creek Generating Plant cost 130 million dollars to build. Installing new pollution control devices on that plant will cost 96 million dollars.

Of course, power plants cost a lot more today, too. And, to keep up with your needs, we'll need more of them.

Which means we're going to have to borrow money to build them. But even that's more expensive these days.

Interest rates and construction costs have doubled in the last ten years.

Obviously, keeping up with these rising costs and trying to stay ahead of the steadily growing need for electricity isn't easy.

But, by sharing the facts and problems as well as the good things electricity brings, we hope you'll better understand some of the forces that have made your electric bill go up.

Letter To The Editor Brings Reason For Proclaiming The Observance Of NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK – OCTOBER 9–15

—By The Editor

This is National Newspaper Week (October 9-15).

And just as I was about to compose some comments extoling the virtues of this dinky little weekly newspaper, I received a subscription renewal from a reader with the following comments:

"There is much complaint about your lack of news in most of your papers. Please scurry around and give us REAL news as you have done in a FEW papers.

"We NEED the paper in this community, but we need something besides complaints on school reports (many of which I agree with) and sports."

I don't mind getting notes like that. It helps to keep my hat size from getting bigger. But I don't really know what "news" is missing what there should be more of. I agree that sports are reported in this paper to an extent which at times is not justifiable for some readers. But the sports news I DO include is a fraction of what is going on in high school sports activities.

With the increase in those activities due to involvement of girls in sports to a greater degree than before, there is bound to be an overload of that subject.

If you were to ask the coaches and assistants about the use of sports reports in this paper, you probably would hear complaints that I'm not reporting everything they send.

So, which way do you go?

I should point out for the above subscriber and others that all the sports events have not been publicized because I have exercised my judgment in editing. That judgment is—too much is expected from news media in reporting sports activities. Some of those activities aren't worth the space, relatively speaking. I see no reason to report in detail girls' volleyball, for instance, because the activity isn't that important yet in the mind of the general public. It IS important in the minds of the participants and their parents. But I must draw the line somewhere. The same goes for freshman football, junior high football, gymnastics, and so on. Some of those activities are for HEALTH purposes, not for fame.

Those remarks may have me "in dutch" with the girls' volleyball team (which has been a winner this season) and the coach, the latter sending comments about each game. This information is being given to the Butler Bulletin, the Auburn Evening Star and WIFF radio, as far as I know. I am probably the only one NOT using everything sent out by the athletic department.

Before anyone in those sports puts me down, remember that the amount of space available in this newspaper is only a fraction of that contained in other media. This IS a SMALL smalltown newspaper primarily due to economics. It costs money to use more newsprint, it cost money to mail heavier editions—and it costs money to devote time to setting type for that additional space.

There is another fact of life related to getting more news. If I ask, "What's new?", the universal answers are as follows: "nothin" or "same old thing." If I wait long enough, I may get some news. But then I'm away from the News Office too long and the paper is late as usual.

Also, there is a noticeable hush when I walk in on a conversation already in progress in whatever place I may enter. But that is to be expected—look at all the people I've betrayed by quoting them when they didn't want to be quoted!

As I said before, I don't mind getting criticism because I know there are things "wrong" with my efforts and I WANT to hear about them so something can be done about it, if possible and justifiable.

I might point out that you can't please everyone. While the above subscriber has an understandable complaint, I should note that there have been complimentary comments from others giving the opposite outlook—"you have more news in that little paper than so-and-so does in theirs."

The above reader's final observation—"we NEED the paper in this community"—is appropriate for National Newspaper Week. The reason: dozens of communities have lost their local "voice" when their local paper either ceases publication or becomes a part of a chain of newspapers. While having local people work for a paper having ties with outside ownership is helpful, there is something distinct and unique about a locally owned, independent community newspaper. "The good old days" were better in that respect; the local newspaper WAS locally owned and WAS independent. It WAS a part of the total community, a contributing part because the editor was a contributing part.

The Saint Joe News is the only remaining independent, SMALL smalltown weekly newspaper in this part of the state, to my knowledge. It is also one of the very few smalltown newspapers expressing views editorially. It is the only remaining newspaper for miles and miles whose editors have been an active part of total community affairs for most of its 95 years of existence.

It is very appropriate that a reader expressed criticism of this paper and the need the community has for this paper right at the time National Newspaper Week is being observed.

And it should be noted that along with that reader's criticism came a news item. That's constructive criticism in my book.

My thanks to that reader.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

When the fair queen was announced and Joy Zeigler from Eastside was the winner, I thought I had a "scoop" with a photo of her during bat girl duties with last spring's Eastside baseball team. I had obtained a 20x24 enlargement of the fetching young miss earlier, so I stuck it in the News Office window. But then Mark said it was Michelle, not Joy, in the the photo, but I left it in the window anyway. Then a couple of other students said the photo WAS Joy, so I thought again I was "on track." But still later it was re-affirmed that Michelle was the object of my roving camera efforts. (It seemed the roving camera always roved toward the bat girls for some reason.)

Anyway, it's great that Joy won the queen crown at the fair—and it's great to have the photo of Michelle in the News Office to brighten the atmosphere. But the two instances shouldn't be too surprising—good looks runs in the family. (Yes, Jane, I know they're talented, too. — — That's for Jane Kempf, Auburn Evening Star columnist who just HATES to have men look at beautiful women.)

Emma Strombeck came up missing her blue and white all-weather coat when the recent Saint Joe High School reunion broke up. If anyone knows of its whereabouts, Emma would appreciate the information.

TO THE EDITOR—

Friend Ted,

A note to you about the owners of the store where the Wislers are now.

I worked for Ira Moore at the West End Grocery. Helped him move to the building where Wislers are and worked for him there for a couple of years. So Ira Moore did own the building and store.

On account of poor health, he sold to Mr. Dunten and went west.

Mr. Dunten put his son-in-law (Don McElroy) in the store. I worked for him a while. McElroy's trade dropped off. He left then Dunten moved here and ran the store himself.

The little building between Monroe's house and the store was the old Post Office that Mr. Storer was in. The post office was moved where it is now and the little building was connected to the store as it is now.

Well, how are you and family in St. Joe? I miss the town. Also hope Henslevs like it. I listen to WIFF all the time. The boys do well.

Sincerely,
Lela Northrup

Mental Health Clinic To Open At Auburn Nov. 1

The Northeastern Psychiatric Clinic has announced that its new Auburn clinic is scheduled to open November 1 in the new medical office building on the site of DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

Dr. James Spink will be the clinical director. He is currently serving at the Kendallville clinic.

John Birkey and Bonnie Sheldon will assist Dr. Spink. Administrative assistant will be Kathy Hatton of Auburn.

Appointments may be made before the opening date by calling the Kendallville office at 347-2453.

When the Auburn office opens to the public, its phone number will be 925-2453.

The Auburn office will be the second clinic operated by the Northeastern Indiana Psychiatric Clinic organization. The Kendallville office has been in operation for several years.

Dale Cochard, executive director for the two clinics, reports that more information will be released at a later date.

Being considered at the present time is a plan for free emergency service. It would offer one hour per day for same-day service without an appointment when a crisis occurs.

Also in the discussion stage are plans for part-time offices in Angola and LaGrange.

The expanding availability of mental health facilities in the four-county area is the result of several years of groundwork in the 1960's by a group from DeKalb and Noble counties who, at times, appeared to face failure and disappointment. However, patience and persistence eventually brought the formation of the area clinic and the opening of the Northeastern Center at Kendallville. The opening of the Auburn clinic will be a continuation of efforts to provide comprehensive mental health facilities in a four-county area.

Taxes Due Nov. 10

DeKalb County Treasurer Joan Knepper reminds taxpayers that the fall installment of taxes is due on or before Thursday, November 10, for real estate, personal property, mobile homes and ditch assessments.

Office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Friday.

After the November 10 deadline, an 8% penalty will be added. "Pay early and avoid the penalty," advises the county treasurer.

John Houlton DAR Wins Award

The John Houlton Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution was recently awarded another first place state honor for the chapter pressbook.

The 32-member chapted tied with Schuyler Colfax Chapter South Bend for first place. The South Bend chapter has over 272 members.

There are 110 chapters in Indiana eligible to compete for the award.

Pressbooks are judged on the basis of organization, neatness, news article content and total coverage. They were judged this year by the State Regents of Missouri, Florida, Georgia, and Kentucky.

Mrs. Clarence Bowers of Waterloo, Pressbook Chairman for the John Houlton chapter, was assisted by Mrs. Oris Wise of Corunna.

In the eight years since organization of the local chapter, John Houlton Chapter has exhibited a pressbook each year and has won three first place awards and three second or third place awards.

The chapter has expressed its thanks to the five DeKalb County newspapers for their cooperation, which made the winning of awards possible.

Three delegates from the local chapter attended the state conference. They were Mrs. Calvin Carnahan, State Recording Secretary; Mrs. Clarence Bowers, Chapter Registrar; and Mrs. Ernest Harter, American History Month Chairman.

Resolutions were passed recomending that more collection and administration of funds be made locally rather than by federal involvement; that courts establish guidelines for the rehabilitation and punishment of juvenile offenders and publish those guidelines, and that more juvenile offenders be treated as adults in crimes of more serious nature and for repeated offenses; and that control of schools be returned to local communities in seeking a return to fundamentals, in view of the drop in scores in scholastic aptitude tests in recent years.

The October 8 meeting of the DAR was hosted by Mrs. Oris Wise of Corunna. Mrs. Ernest Harter reviewed the conference activities and gave an extensive National Defense report.

Mrs. Claud Husted presented an informative program concerning her experiences in the Peace Corp in Western Samoa. She and her husband taught math, health, hygiene and foods in a boarding school for girls. Samoa lies half way between Hawaii and New Zealand. It was controlled at one time by Germany, by New Zealand, and then became independent.

The Samoans were described as having a very religious culture, attending church several times on Sunday, and having family devotions every day. No one ever goes hungry. There are plenty of native foods, such as taro, bread-fruit, coconuts, papaya and bananas.

The poet, Robert Louis Stephenson, lived and died in Samoa and is buried there.

Mrs. Husted show many artifacts such as coins, stamps, materials, shell beads and baskets made by the natives.

Blazers Lose

The hapless Eastside Blazer football team lost its seventh game of the current season Friday when Hamilton took a 41-8 win at the Blazer field. It was the annual homecoming for the locals and, in addition to a losing night, players and fans had to endure rain.

Hamilton had over 400 yards gained in rushing with Bill Thompson getting over 300 of that total.

The Blazers had 140 yards in rushing, which was better than their efforts in most of their previous games. But they had only two pass completions in 21 attempts for 13 yards.

The Blazers are hampered this year by a lack of numbers in experienced players. Some who played last year did not go out for football this year due to discouragement and disillusionment last year when former coach Al Peugeot felt compelled to resign. Lack of cooperation from his assistants was the key factor plus retaliation against him by some members of the upper grade faculty when he refused to participate in a teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities. The teachers' salary dispute with the school board was taken into the classroom and into extra-curricular activities, demoralizing the student body as a whole.

Eastside's new football coach, Mike Watson, has had to take on a big responsibility, under the circumstances. However, the willingness of his small squad to take their lumps and come back for more is the encouraging element for faithful Blazer fans.

EHS Harriers

Eastside junior Butch McBride was selected to the Allen County Athletic Conference first team in cross country for the second straight year. The honor was announced last week.

McBride earned the distinction by finishing sixth in the ACAC championship meet at the tough Churubusco course with the excellent time of 12:-50. This was his best time at the 'Busco course.

Coach Bob Brown pointed out that McBride had been a consistent leader this year in cross country meets as well as setting a new Maxton Park course mark for a Blazer runner.

Eastside has had winning seasons during the three years that Mc Bride has been a member of the varsity squad.

Blazer junior Kenny Ray and sophomore Jim Whitman also earned ribbons as they placed 16th and 20th, respectively. Both these runners had their best times at the 'Busco course. Ray toured the two and one-half miles in 13:31 while Whitman posted a 13:41. Tony Salinas and Eugene Evans rounded out Eastside's top five.

The Blazers placed fifth out of 10 behind Norwell, Heritage, Carroll and Leo.

In the junior high all-conference meet, Gilbert Ortiz was 10th and Jeff Dangler 13th.

Tuesday of this week the Blazers beat Angola 20-35 for the locals' 10th season win. They have dropped six meets.

Coach Bob Brown said the win was "the best performance by my top six runners."

Butch McBride, Kenny Ray and Jim Whitman took the first three places in the chilly and windy conditions. McBride had a time of 12:57, Ray 13:05 and Whitman 13:31 over the Maxton Park course.

Tony Salinas came in sixth and Eugene Evans eighth.

McBride's earlier time of 12:-41 placed him in a tie for 75th place among Indiana's top 125 cross country runners. It was recorded in a meet with Garrett September 30 at Maxton Park.

You have more power over your electric bill than you think.

No matter what we do to help keep your electric bill in line, there's one thing we have no power over.

The amount of power you use.

So we'd like to point out the most significant places where only you have the biggest opportunities to save.

Insulation

6 to 12 inches of insulation in your attic could save you real money each year.

You'll save even more if you insulate your walls, heating ducts and hot water pipes.

Caulking, weatherstripping, storm windows, shades and drapes also help keep heat inside in winter, and outside in summer.

Thermostat Control

Lower your thermostat in winter. Each degree below 68°F can save three percent of the energy needed for heating. If you have air conditioning, a higher thermostat setting will also save energy in summer.

Hot Water Use

You can save up to 5% a year of the energy needed to heat water if you turn your water heater thermostat down to 120 degrees and take quick showers instead of baths.

Fix leaky hot water faucets promptly. And wash clothes in cold water, if you can.

Washing and drying only full loads of clothes and dishes is more economical, too.

Appliance Efficiency

If you're in the market for appliances and equipment, look for the new energy saving features on refrigerators, freezers, and dishwashers. Choose an Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) of 8 or higher on room air conditioners.

While there are a lot more ways to save electricity, these are the ones that will make the biggest impression on your bill.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

For those who may wonder, the telephone is back in service again at the News Office. No, it wasn't the telephone company's fault; it was mine, when service was discontinued.

Most merchants don't mind the soaping of windows at Halloween time—though it is a bit early for that activity. But they do mind when obscene words or phrases are soaped on the windows. Unfortunately, it only takes one in the crowd to spoil the fun for everyone else.

A note from Mildred Jarrett: "Congratulations! Your last paper told the things we need to know."

Sen. Lugar Returns $150,000 From Unneeded Office Funds

U.S. Senator Dick Lugar of Indiana has returned unspent funds designated for office purposes to the tune of $154,218. As of September 1, 1977, the close of the fiscal year 1977 for governmental accounting purposes, the Senator sent back that amount of money.

The funds, which would have totaled more than $205,600 had Lugar been in office the entire fiscal year, represent unspent portions of the salary and office expense allowances provided each Senator. The money returned represents more than 27% of the budget made available to the Senator for office operations.

Lugar credited his savings to a smaller than average staff and careful expenditures for staff travel and office supplies.

"It's important for public officials at all levels to be careful in their stewardship of taxpayers' money," Lugar said. "Senators and Congressmen who profess concern for cutting deficit spending can make a small contribution right in their own offices and set a good example for other officials in the process. We have not cut corners where service to Hoosier citizens is involved, but we simply found no necessity for our office to spend all the money allocated to us."

Unlike most veteran Senators, Lugar declined to set up an unofficial "office account," created by private contributions to supplement regular office allocations. Beginning in 1978, such "slush funds" will be banned under new Senate rules.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met September 22 in the Spencerville Community Building. MM Karl Hart, Pearl Shull and Ida Reed were hosts.

At 6:30 p.m. the group was called to order and after prayer by Karl Hart, all enjoyed the usual bountiful potluck supper.

A brief business meeting followed. There were 43 present.

The Harts then took charge of the meeting. We enjoyed a sing-along with Anne Kagey as leader and Violet Hottel at the piano. Karl then showed pictures of "The Kado-Lato Farm" and identified the many beautiful flowers, guided tours, trees, local helpers in Dutch costume, and so on. This presentation of pictures of scenes right here at Spencerville was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Ellen then gave each of us a lovely pen, a souvenir of Kado-Lato Farm. The beautiful floral decorations on the tables were also given away.

The next meeting will be held October 27 with Elva Hoover, Mary Rutherford and Kathryn Shockley as hosts. Same time —same place—see you there.

Riverdale PTO Offers Help For Workbook Sales

Tonda Miller, president of the Riverdale PTO, attended Monday night's school board meeting and offered the services of the PTO in handling school workbooks. Geddes Drug Store at Butler recently informed the board that they would no longer handle the sale of school workbooks.

It was indicated that the offer would be given further consideration by the board.

It was reported that meetings of the Communications Committee (school board members and faculty members) were continuing and that school in general and rapport in general are better this year than in many previous years.

Discussion was held on a suggestion to change the automatic three-day suspension of a student smoking on campus. Some consider the suspension a three-day vacation. A possibility is a "smoking clinic" in place of the suspension.

Student behavior on school buses was discussed, reports given of foul language and misbehavior. The superintendent was instructed to take steps to correct the situation.

There also was a report of excessive school bus speeds and the superintendent was directed to communicate with all bus drivers about the matter.

Gifts Again Sought For Mental Health Patients

While it may seem early to think of the Christmas season, the Mental Health Association in DeKalb County has begun its annual campaign to gather gifts for residents of the Fort Wayne State Hospital and Training Center and the area nursing homes in DeKalb County.

The drive began October 17 and the gifts are needed by Thanksgiving, since they must be wrapped, labeled and delivered the first week in December. The gifts are to be new and unwrapped. The committee will do the wrapping and tagging of the gifts.

Specific gifts have been asked for by each patient. The lists of specific gifts requested are at each collection center. Items included in the lists are such things as socks, knit caps, aftershave lotion and so on. This provides the donor with the opportunity to select those items they wish to purchase. Each patient receives two gifts of approximately $3 value each.

If donors prefer, they may contribute cash or a check payable to the DeKalb County Mental Health Association. These donations may be sent or given to any of the various area chairmen.

The collection center for the Riverdale area this year is Brown Furniture & Hardware in Saint Joe, not the News Office as has been the case for many years. Jean Carpenter and Mrs. Philip Lutz are co-chairmen for this area. They can be reached at 238-4212 and 337-5437, respectively.

In Butler, co-chairmen are Mrs. Thomas Armstrong at 868-2807 and Mrs. Thomas Poinsett at 925-0585. Kandel Insurance Agency is the depot.

"You can let the love shine into the heart of a mental patient by purchasing a gift," says Mrs. James Watson, county chairman of the annual project.

Emergency Mental Health Service Now Available In Area

Dale Cochard, executive director of the Northeastern Comprehensive Community Mental Health Center, Inc., has announced that the center now has emergency service available at the center. The service began October 17.

One hour of emergency service per day, five days a week, is available. Evening and weekend emergency service will continue as is by calling the Hospital Emergency Room.

Cochard stated the new service is open to anyone needing emergency mental health services. One hour each afternoon will be provided for emergency service. A therapist will be on duty to see all emergencies. Residents may call or come to the center between 3 and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday for free consultation with a therapist.

Any resident of DeKalb, Noble, Steuben or LaGrange counties is eligible to receive this service. Mr. Cochard stressed that this is an emergency service free of charge.

When an emergency occurs a call to the center at Kendallville, 347-2453, any time during the day will bring consultation within 24 hours.

On November 1, a center will open at Auburn in the new Medical Center building on the site of DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

EHS Harriers

Charles Ray, reporter

The Eastside High School varsity cross country team rolled over Angola 20-35 to complete a successful dual meet record of 10-7. The Blazers then finished a strong 13th out of a field of 22 teams in the very competitive Fort Wayne state sectional meet Saturday.

Against Angola, Eastside's Butch McBride toured the Maxton Park course in 12:57 to take top honors while Blazer Kenny Ray finished second at 13:05. Jim Whitman came in third for the green and white with a time of 13:31. Angola captured the fourth and fifth spots with Tony Salinas coming in sixth at 13:53. The Hornets had 7th place while Eugene Evans was 8th at 14:17. Other Eastside finishers were Dave Drake 11th, Jim Irvin 14th, Sonny Salinas 17th and Jack Ridenour 19th.

Junior Butch McBride again paced the Blazers in the sectional meet as he came in 32nd out of the 154 participants. McBride's time was 13:35. Ray was next for the Blazers at 43rd with a time of 13:43. These two junior harriers were followed by sophomore Whitman, freshman Evans and senior Salinas. The local runners gained revenge for two of their losses as they finished ahead of both DeKalb Central and Garrett. Individual honors went to Dave Painter of Heritage who covered the 2½-mile course at Shoaff Park in 12:37. Bishop Dwenger took the team championship.

Head coach Bob Brown pointed out that he was quite pleased with Eastside's showing in the state sectional as well as the overall season. He noted that with the exception of the losses to DeKalb Central and Garrett, the Blazers have turned in rather strong performances this fall. Coach Brown also remarked that Tony Salinas is the only senior on the team, which should insure the Blazers to be very competitive in cross country again next year. The Eastside mentor emphasized that all his runners are still improving and he expects their times to drop from 20 to 30 seconds by next year.

Blazers Lose

The Blazers from Eastside were defeated 38-0 Friday by the Central Noble Cougars. It was the eighth straight loss for the locals.

The Cougars gained 350 yards to but 125 for the Blazers. The locals missed a scoring opportunity in the final quarter with two yards to go on fourth down. But they missed by inches.

Others say. . . .

Congratulations to Sen. Richard Lugar and hisses to Sen. Birch Bayh for their votes on the Pearson-Bentsen amendment to gradually remove federal control on natural gas (editor's note: Lugar voted to remove controls and Bayh voted to retain controls) . . . The of $1.47 for gas that flows across state lines is clearly ridiculous. . . . I suspect government regulators intend to drive the gas companies out of business so that the government can capture yet another sector of the private economy. This will allow the politicians more jobs to fill with federal workers which may help to solve the unemployment problem, but in the end, when we all work for the government, who will pay the taxes? . . . . Interesting support to deregulate natural gas comes from . . . the U.S. Chamber of Commerce . . . and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives. . . .These groups do not want a repetition of last winter's drastic shortage of natural gas. . . So, I say congratulations to Sen. Lugar and to Rep. Dan Quayle, who supports higher gas prices in the House. These men are honest politicians. . . .

The Saint Joe News

Established Saturday, March 7, 1883, as free paper—Second class subscription Jan. 28, 1887 . October 27, 1977 VOL. 95—38

TO THE EDITOR—

I am writing in regard to the EMS unit stationed in Butler. When we called for it they were there within minutes and very gently administered oxygen and loaded Mother and took her to the hospital. I do not think the people of this community realize what a valuable service they render to everyone.

Here's hoping you never have to call them BUT if you do, rest assured you will have the very best of care. Our thanks to them "a million times over."

Betty Brown

Dear Ted,

Just a note to let you know I really apreciate your sending "The News" to me. It makes me feel as though I haven't left "home" behind me altogether. It's nice to hear about all our friends back in Saint Joe. Believe it or not, I miss that place

Also, I want you to have our permanent address, so you can continue to send me the newspaper. It is 75 Wright Avenue, Morgan Hill, CA 95037.

This "new home" of ours is about the size of Garrett and the people seem to be quite friendly—more so than the people were in San Jose.

Please give my regards to everyone in Saint Joe, especially Margaret Wisler. I miss her most of all.

Thanks, Ted.

Love,
Sue Stoffer

Hi Ted—

Thanks for reminding me that my subscription was due. Enclosed you will find my remittance. Hope this note finds you well. I read in your paper that you had some health problems recently. Hope things have rectified themselves. Made a trip through Saint Joe a couple of weeks ago but only stopped at three or four places. You know-Timmerman's, Chaney's, Mason's, and Churches' and Bevington's. Just don't have all the time I'd like sometimes! Please give our best regards to all the folks I must have insulted by not stopping. I beg their forgiveness. That trip, I believe, was my first to Saint Joe in over a year and a half.

Nikki and the boys are fine. Peter's in first grade this year and is head-over-heels into his school work. Nikki is painting up a storm, as you might suspect/expect. It's good to receive the "News" because it does a fine job of reporting events. Though criticism is sometimes well-deserved and justified, as an out-of-towner I can glean a tremendous amount of information from just those four pages. Keep it coming. Continued good health.

Coburn Corners Stewardship Committee Makes Plans

The Coburn Corners Church of Christ recently announced the beginning of a Stewardship of Life campaign. According to the minister; John Paul Hill, the purpose of the campaign is to encourage the entire church congregation to become more active in the total program of the church.

Over the next three weeks, each church family will be visited personally and informed of the needs and opportunites facing the church. A fellowship dinner, set for November 5, will bring the entire congregation together. Architectural plans will be unveiled for the new structure to serve the needs of the congregation.

Andy Crow, General Chairma of the Stewardship of Life program, has organized a staff of four chairmen, including Mrs. Mary Mathes, Arrangements; Mr. Lavon Hart, Publicity; Mr. Max Ward, Prayer; and Mr. Robert Wilder, Stewardship. Members of the congregation will assist these chairmen in carrying out the program. The committee's goals are to involve the entire church family in service and the financial support of the church.

Did you know

—that a report last week contained the information that Indiana had the lowest rise in local and state taxes per person in fiscal 1976. It amounted to only $8. The average jump over the nation was $67 per person. Alaska had the biggest increase ($1,054). New York, the top runner for 10 straight years, came in second with a rise of $1,040 per person. The next highest included California, Hawaii, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, Wyoming, Minnesota, Nevada and Maryland. Americans paid an average of $731 in state and local taxes in the fiscal year 1975-76.

—that Joyce Fetters of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that MM John Ross of Saint Joe are parents of a son born October 22 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that unemployment claims for the week ending October 22 went up 2,692 compared to the previous week.

—that the Blazer junior high football team finished second behind undefeated Churubusco during season play with a 5-2 record. Their final win was a 22-0 effort over Garrett.

—that the annual CROP campaign has its kickoff dinner Friday this week. The goal for the county is $8,500 used to feed hungry peoples of the world.

—that Victoria Means of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that government regulation reaches more and more into the personal living of Americans. The Food and Drug Administration is now drawing up rules for the handling of food. Included is a minimum level of 6 inches from which food can be stored on a floor; the internal temperature to which roast beef in delicatessens must be cooked is 130 degrees F; live animals are forbidden inside stores (except for guide dogs for the blind); meat-cutting blocks must be made of hard maple or a similar non-absorbent wood; and washing facilities would be available to all employees, with a personal towel for each one.

—that Veterans Day was observed this week for the last time as an October "long weekend" holiday for some government employees. In 1968, the U.S. Congress, prodded by organized labor passed a "Monday Holiday Law" to change the observance of Veterans Day, Columbus Day and George Washington's birthday into paid one-day vacations. Several states, including Indiana, thereafter declared a rentention of the traditional November 11 as the proper observance of Veterans Day. Originally, November 11 was called "Armistice Day" to commemmorate the cease-fire of World War I at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month. President Gerald Ford signed the bill last year which restores the original observance.

—that Mrs. Mildred Jarrett accompanied her sister-in law, Mrs. Loretta Jarrett of Kendallville, and her daughter, Mrs. Maxine Ritter of Pleasant Lake, to Jackson, Michigan, Saturday to attend the funeral of their nephew, Gene Jarrett, 44, son of MM Virgil Jarrett, who spent several years in the Auburn area.

—that development of a multipurpose Arthritis Center at the Indiana University School of Medicine has received a boost with a grant of near $320,000 for three years from the National Institutes of Health.

—that Airman Kevin Griggs, son of MM Aubrey Griggs of Saint Joe, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland AFB, Texas.

—that the leaf display in northeastern Indiana and southern Michigan must have been at its peak over the weekend.

'Please Don't Burn Leaves On Blacktop'

The local town board has issued a request through member Loretta Loy that residents do not rake leaves into paved streets for burning. Heat from leaf burning causes damage to blacktopped surfaces. For this reason town residents should dispose of their leaves in another manner.

Blazers Lose

Angola defeated the DeKalb Eastside Blazers 53 0 Friday night at Angola.

The Hornets gained 426 yards and 46 yards passing. The Blazers had only 44 yards in total offense.

The loss made the locals' record 0-9.

IFC Report

Mrs. Dale Hertz, Mrs. Charles Sweitzer, Mrs. Robert Eldridge, Mrs. Robert Grogg, Mrs. Granville Deaton, were hostesses for the October meeting of the DeKalb County Past Officers Club of I.F.C. The dinner meeting for the Club was held at the United Methodist Church in Waterloo.

Cadette GS

—Pat Osmun, Troop Leader

Cadette Girl Scout Troop 192 was far from idle during the past summer. Due to driver training, June and the first half of July found us having meetings around various schedules.

July 20th, the 9th grade girls spent an exciting day at Cedar Point along with their leaders, MM Allen Osmun. Everyone invited a guest to go along and they all had a terrific time riding the rides and sampling all the good food.

On August 18, Julie Mishler, Babette Herschberger, Robin Loy and Lynette Longardner, accompanied by Pat Osmun, Nancy Garman and their daughters, Ellen and Liat, left for a five-day trip to McCormick's Creek State Park near Spencer, Indiana. The day ended with an exciting trip to the emergency room of Bloomington Hospital when Robin developed something that turned out to be severe muscle spasms. In the process, Babette Herschberger earned her Challenge of Emergency Preparedness and the neighbors treated the girls to homemade ice cream.

The next two days were spent in hiking, swimming and enjoying the beautiful park grounds.

On Saturday evening at 9:00, we went to "Theater In the Woods." Two melodramas were presented: "Her Fatal Beauty, or A Shopgirl's Honor" and "Curse You, Jack Dalton." We also enjoyed Saturday afternoon in the Nature Center looking at the exhibits and working the quizzes.

Sunday morning during worship services, it started to rain. It cleared up during "brunch" and the girls went swimming. Soon after the girls left for the pool, it began to storm again. While the kids waited at the pool on someone to pick them up, the leaders tried in vain to keep the screen kitchen from falling down.

After picking up the kids, we put the kitchen back together and Pat went to the laundramat to dry clothes and sleeping bags while Nancy helped the girls cook supper. After a delicious meal of chili, we washed dishes and were preparing our campfire program when the rains came. OH BOY DID THEY COME!

After a half hour of fighting to keep the kitchen up and the tents dry, we gave up. When the rain finally subsided somewhat, we packed the kitchen articles in the truck.

When we heard on the radio the news of tornadoes in Illinois 45 miles away, we decided we had to sleep girls somewhere besides in tents. Use your imagination! We slept five teenage girls and one adult in the back of a pickup truck with a cover and one adult and one pre-teen in the front seat. Needless to say, it was a most unsettling night.

After a hurried and very muddy breaking of camp on Monday morning, August 22, we headed for the nearest McDonalds for breakfast which turned out to be lunch. (It took longer to break camp than we anticipated.)

In Indianapolis we stopped for two hours at Weir-Cook Airport to watch the airplanes. The rest of the trip was fairly uneventful as all the girls spent the remainder of the trip sleeping.

We arrived home around 5:00 p.m., tired and weary, but everyone said it was one of the best campouts they ever had.

On September 14, we spent three hours picking the apples Parlia Hull gave us to make cider for our bake sale. We found out just how good a tree-shaker and jug-washer Lynette can be.

On Friday we took the apples to the cider mill and Saturday you bought the cider. We hope you enjoyed drinking it as much as we enjoyed making it.

Thanks to Parlia for apples, Ted for posters, you for buying.

Your shopping cart can tell you a lot about your electric bill.

Like food and everything else you buy these days, inflation has hit us, too.

So, it would be easy to blame inflation for rising electric rates and leave it at that.

And, for sure, inflation has doubled and tripled the cost of everything from towers and transformers to coal and cable.

Take coal, our single largest operating expense. Its cost has gone up fourfold and more in the seventies.

But the reasons for rising rates go beyond those everyday expenses.

We must build pollution control devices like precipitators to help keep our air clean as we burn this coal.

And those devices cost millions. Installing them in existing plants can cost as much as the original plant. For example: our Tanners Creek Generating Plant cost 130 million dollars to build. Installing new pollution control devices on that plant will cost 96 million dollars.

Of course, power plants cost a lot more today, too. And, to keep up with your needs, we'll need more of them.

Which means we're going to have to borrow money to build them. But even that's more expensive these days.

Interest rates and construction costs have doubled in the last ten years.

Obviously, keeping up with these rising costs and trying to stay ahead of the steadily growing need for electricity isn't easy.

But, by sharing the facts and problems as well as the good things electricity brings, we hope you'll better understand some of the forces that have made your electric bill go up.

L.E.T.T.E.R.S—

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted—

Please extend my subscription to the "News" through the '78 issues.

It has been 44 years since I started signing diplomas for high school graduates in Spencer Twp. and it takes about that long to appraise the quality of the product produced by the system with cooperation of associates and parents.

Choices in the curriculum were limited, but I believe the foundation was sound. For when I reflect the years I find patriotic and responsible community members and leaders, engaged in most any activity they aspired to pursue. Some are situated in the near-by communities, others scattered far and wide. But always the same — honorable.

Sincerely,
Everett Paschen
(Crown Point, Indiana)

P.S. I have no knowledge of a bad apple in the basket from 1934 thru 1951. —E.P.

It is appropriate that Mr. Paschen used the word "basket" in his postscript. When we came to this community, Mr. Paschen was teacher, principal—and varsity basketball coach! That was in "the good old days." —Ed.

Dear Sir:

My name is Robert J. Hill and at the present time I am a inmate here at London, Ohio, and I would like to ask a favor of you. I don't have family or friends who cares and that can be a hurting thing. So could you print a good ad in your paper to let your readers know that I would like very much to receive mail from them, because I believe that they do care about another human being. So any ad you print for me will help me to receive letters.

Thank you very much.

Robert J. Hill
No. 138-574
P.O. Box 69
London, Ohio 43140

We believe this best "ad" is a letter in this column. So, there you are, readers—a call from someone in need. —Ed.

Dear Ted,

Thank you for sending us the paper, even after our subscription had run out.

We are also glad that you recovered from your illness. We really enjoy reading your paper.

Enclosed you will find payment for this year's paper.

Thanks again! May God bless and keep you in His care."

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. George Abel

Humane Society Workshop Nov. 9

The DeKalb County Humane Society will hold a workshop at People's Savings & Loan in Auburn Wednesday, November 9, at 2 p.m.

Miss Phyllis Wright of Washington, D.C., a field representative of The Humane Society of the United States, will be the guest speaker. She has been the society's animal specialist since 1969, assisting local and state governments in developing animal ordinances.

During the Korean war, she was Chief of the War Dogs Receiving and Holding Station in Alexandria, Virginia. Miss Wright has been involved in animal management and control all her life.

Well-versed as a public speaker, Miss Wright has appeared frequently on television. She subscribes to the "each one, teach one" strategy of spreading the humane ethic.

The public is invited to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Sp'ville UM Harvest Supper November 12

Members of the Spencerville United Methodist Church are preparing to serve their annual Public Harvest Supper Saturday, November 12. Serving begins at 4:30 p.m.

The menu includes turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, salad bar, green beans or corn, beverage and pie.

There is no set charge for the supper. Free-will offerings will be taken.

Residents of the community are urged and invited to attend.

PTO, OpenHouse November 15

Eastside elementary principal Charles Ray urges all parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and friends of students at Riverdale Elementary School to mark Tuesday, November 15, on their calendars. That is the date for the annual Riverdale Elementary School Open House which will follow a brief PTO meeting at 7 p.m. The open house will continue until 9 p.m.

All relatives of the students are invited as well as anyone interested in viewing what is taking place in the local elementary school. Due in large part to the significant parental support shown each year, the DeKalb eastern open houses were publicized by the National Education Association a few years ago as demonstrating successful ways to hold open houses.

The "Positive Mental Attitude" theme started in the elementary schools in the district last year will be featured at this year's open house. Emphasis will be placed on courtesy, respect and positive mental attitude. The Riverdale Student Council is in charge of promoting this project. It is believed by school personnel that emphasis on these aspects of behavior will help develop young people into tomorrow's responsible citizenry.

Mr. Ray encourages all citizens to support the Riverdale Open House. He also recommends that everyone continue to take an active part in the improvement of local schools to insure an outstanding education for all our young people.

Andy Crow Takes Over From Denny Baker As Lions Club Goes Into 37th Year With Significant Budget Of Over $8,000

The first big job for the new president was the operation of the club's lunch stand at the DeKalb County Fair in September. The club realized a profit of $3,900 from the lunch stand this year.

One of the main reasons for the success of the lunch stand year after year is the assistance given by wives of Lions Club members.

The club also has an annual hand-cranked homemade ice cream social, the old-fashioned ice cream preparation begun in 1958 during the presidency of Ted Haberkorn. Thereafter, other groups began hand-cranking, also.

Lion Bud Shockley provided The News with a report of the proposed projects and budget through November 1 of 1978. Administration, which includes International and state dues, convention expenses, etc. amounts to $1325. International projects (Youth Exchange and Lions International Foundation) accounts for $245. State projects (Cancer Research, Leader Dog, Eye Bank, Care and Helping Hand, and Kidney Fund). will require $1140. County projects (Wee Haven, Needlework Guild, Bloodmobile, Mental Health Christmas Gifts, and Mental Health Clinic) have $330 budgeted. Community projects (Bibles for graduating seniors, Letterman Night, Sight Conservation, Leader Dog Raising, Summer Recreation, Scouts, Emergency Projects and School projects) are the largest part of the budget with $3350 required. Club Properties at $500 and Special Projects with $1500 round out the club budget. The total is $8,390. This represents an increase of 26% over the 1976-77 budget.

The Lions organization is not a spectacular type of operation. The local club has quietly performed its may efforts to support various projects without excessive fanfare. Yet, the benefits from Lions clubs' activities, including the local group, are considerable and worthy.

To assist him during the current club year, Andy Crow has Don Miller as 1st vice-president, Phil Washler 2nd vice-president, Terry Bosserman 3rd vice-president, Lavon Hart secretary, Jerry Storer treasurer, Charlie Cole tail-twister, Randy Reinhart Lion tamer, and directors Bob Wilder, Joe Smith, Bud Shockley and Glen Moore.

Chartered in October of 1940 with the Auburn Lions Club as sponsor, the original membership included Clifford Billow, Frank Bowman, H. Stanley Garman, Dennis Gerig, Clyde Hart, Edgar Hoffman, Willard Hurni, Don Keller, Duwayne Kinsey, Earl Kinsey, Claude Laub, Fred Leighty, Arthur Lyon, Paul Martin, Derwood Ridgway, Ralph Sechler, Basil Sheffer, Benjamin Shook, Dale Wicoff, Leslie Wilbern, Lloyd Yeiser and Richard Key.

Mr. Hurni is the only remaining active member of the original charter membership.

Leo gained 279 yards rushing while the locals had but 15 on the ground. Lance Billings completed 7 passes in 23 attempts for 64 yards, but there were 3 interceptions to nullify any progress made through the air.

Leo tried only 3 passes and completed 1 for 12 yards.

Ron Schmucker, diminuitive Blazer defensive linebacker, led his team in tackles, as he has consistently done in other games.

Lady Blazers Win V'ball Sectional

The Lady Blazers volleyball team advanced to regional competition last weekend when they took the Eastside sectional by defeating Angola, Fremont and DeKalb Central.

The Lady Blazers downed the Angola Hornettes 15-13 and 15-6. Then they downed Fremont 15-11 and 15-9 before the final match with the Baronesses. The scores were 15-12 and an overwhelming 15-4.

The Lady Blazers' volleyball lineup is familiar—Lisa Johnson, Connie Oberlin, Amy Hampel and Mary Jo Baughman—from the Lady Blazer sectional basketball champions of last spring.

The Goshen regional Saturday, November 5, will be in two sessions, one at 1 p.m., the other at 6 p.m. Doors open at noon and 5 p.m. at Goshen High School and admission will be $1.25 per person.

Eastside plays in game 4 against the winner of the South Bend Riley-North Judson contest. If they win, they will immediately face the game 3 winner, which is the winner of the Concord v winner of game 1 winner, which is a contest between Northridge and John Glenn.

Funds Sought For Orphans

Coburn Corners Church of Christ is again sponsoring an effort to raise funds for the Inchon Orphanage in Korea. The cash donations sent each year eliminate the export duties on merchandise shipped overseas.

A letter to members of the local congregation tells the following story:

"There have been some changes made since last year. The building which served as the home for 24 years was needed by the University which owns it. A new building has been erected and the children have been moved into it. Many inconveniences have been encountered such as having no doors, no interior decorations, or inadequate bath facilities. The Coburn Corners Church of Christ has already sent $500 to Korea for a new well. This has been taken out of the local, 'Christmas Cheer Fund.' Thus, you see, we need your help more than ever to raise an adequate amount for our 'Korean Kids.'

"It may seem early to be thinking about Christmas, but time slips by so quickly and the money should be sent off to Korea by the first of December. So, won't you please give this need your special consideration? Help us again to see that these children receive much needed articles this year. It has been found that clothing has many bad habits. Not only do they become too small but they also wear out. Korean winters are damp and co-o-o-ld!"

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the project may send check or money order to:

Gifts Sought For Patients

Brown Furniture & Hardware in Saint Joe is the collection depot for gifts for patients in mental hospitals. Each patient is to receive two $3 gifts, and these gifts can be turned in at the local depot.

Mrs. James Watson, chairman of the project for DeKalb County, reminds area residents that gifts are to be new, are to be unwrapped—or the county committee will do the shopping if a monetary donation is more convenient for those who wish to help brighten the Christmas holidays for mental patients.

Checks may be made payable to: DeKalb County Mental Health Association. They can be sent to Mrs. Watson at 108 South Clark Street in Auburn, or turned in at the local hardware which serves the Riverdale area in the gift drive.

Jean Carpenter and Mrs. Phil Lutz are Riverdale area co-chairmen.

Gifts collected in DeKalb County will be given to patients in DeKalb County nursing homes and the Fort Wayne State Hospital.

Dilley-Peppers

Douglas Lee Dilley of Saint Joe and Connie Jo Peppers of Hicksville were united in marriage Saturday, October 29. The double-ring ceremony took place at St. Mark Evangelical Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Leading the service of marriage was Rev. Wilbur Miller, pastor of the local church.

Pre- and post-nuptial music was provided by Ted Haberkorn.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

Lloyd Mertz gave devotions on "Promises" and read from Ruth 15. He ended with prayer and the pledge to the flag.

A report on the success of the fair booth was given by Edna Perkins. We popped 250 pounds of popcorn, more than we did last year. The board voted to reserve space next year.

Remember to order your fruit and fruit concentrate. The deadline is November 14. The grapefruit concentrate is priced at $15.50 a carton, not $13 as previously reported. Orders are taken at the Farm Bureau building and must be accompanied by payment.

December 5 is the date for the Indiana Farm Bureau Convention in Indianapolis. The board voted to charter a bus for the trip.

Irene Nelson will have devotions in November.

After roll call, Edna Perkins served cider and doughnuts.

Letters to the Editor

To Whom It May Concern:

I, Ben Graber, MD, wish to announce my decision to take "time out" from the practice of medicine. This decision is totally mine, and not the request of any person or organization, of which I am a member. Taking "time out" of the practice of medicine now has been made to facilitate the evaluation and the direction of my professional life, and my family.

Presently, it is uncertain as to when or whether I will return to medical practice.

Therefore, I urge all persons who consider themselves to be my patients to acquire another physician for their medical care, permanently.

The decision to re-establish medical practice and a location will be a future event.

To have this kind of development is regretful, but necessary.

Respectfully yours,
Ben Graber, M.D.

You'll be amazed when you see how really deep down clean your carpets can be. RINSENVAC rinses and vacuums out dirt and grime in a single sweep. Cleans the way professionals do—but at a fraction of the cost!

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

How sick our society has become when a spokesman for homosexuals accuses police of violation of human rights by videotaping a demonstration by homosexuals in front of a theater on the night that a private gathering is making use of the theater.

That's what happened in Fort Wayne. Police videotaped a protest march of homosexuals when their "arch-enemy," Anita Bryant, appeared at the Embassy Theater for a private gathering of insurance company employees. The American Civil Liberties Union spokesman said the videotape represented an act "against the rights of citizens." City officials were also criticized for not having an EMS unit at the scene, if the police really were acting to prevent a possible violent act by one individual.

As the Mrs. noted, why should EMS be there if nothing happened? Such a comment by the ICLU spokesman is just a way to cause more trouble for the police.

It was reported later that the police had erased the tape, as is their normal practice when no problems arise.

One thing I don't understand about the homosexuals' representative: how can you violate the rights of citizens by taking pictures of a demonstration when the demonstration is being held on public property (the sidewalk in front of the theater)?

In our book—the Mrs. and me—Anita Bryant is definitely in the right in her fears about homosexuals "coming out of the closet" and into the classrooms of our public schools. A reader of and believer in the Bible as God-given truth has no trouble deciding whether abnormal sexual relationships (men with men and women with women) are blessed or condemned by the Almighty. "Condemn the sin; forgive the sinners." But forgiveness does not mean that we are obligated to allow homosexuals to be recognized as an acceptable "social group."

Last week Kenny Roberts brought in a twig from a bush in his yard. It had new blossoms coming forth due to the mild weather the past couple of weeks.

The rose bushes in our back yard also started popping some new leaves.

—Then came Thursday morning this week and — br-r-r-r-r—snowflakes and a brisk breeze brought the shivvers.

Jennings Construction of Auburn put in new sidewalk at the Lutheran church in Saint Joe this week. They really did a good job. The work looks A-1 and they didn't waste any time in their labors.

Notice the item in the "did you know thats" about the ISTA president being invited to the White House to discuss Panama treaties? It makes me wonder how President Carter can expect constructive input from the president of a teachers' union when the leadership of that union just this past summer put pressure on several larger school corporation teacher negotiators NOT to make an early settlement ("treaty") so that other teacher groups would have more clout against school boards in negotiations.

LadyBlazersLose

The Lady Blazers volleyball sectional champs were downed in the regional by South Bend Riley. After the locals won 15-13, South Bend took two games 15-7 and 15-2. Riley then went on to win the regional championship by defeating Concord 15-12 and 15-5.

The local gals had an excellent year under coach Pat Markey. They won 20 while losing only 3 through sectional play.

School Board Sets New Procedure To Control Student Smoking

A recommendation by Principal Robert Williams led the school board of the DeKalb eastern school district to change the manner of handling student smoking violations. The action was taken Monday night at a regular session of the board.

In the past, a violation of the no-student-smoking rule resulted in an automatic three-day suspension. For some students, suspension apparently became a virtual three-day "vacation."

New procedure will substitute attendance at a smoking clinic in place of the suspension. Mr. Williams said that a student ought to be accompanied by a parents or parents and made the adoption of the clinic program dependent upon that requirement.

The suggestion by Mr. Williams was accepted by the board.

Another discussion centered around recent complaints from patrons about school buses. A representative of the drivers, Richard Meek, said recent criticism of drivers for alleged high speeds was unfair. He indicated that tests of bus speedometers showed that they registered higher speeds than the buses were traveling.

According to unofficial minutes of the meeting, there was no discussion of unruly conduct by students riding the school buses. This matter had been brought to the board's attention at a previous meeting.

Annual Bazaar, Bake Sale

The United Methodist Women of Butler will hold their annual Christmas Bazaar and Bake Sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 18, 18 and 19.

The church is located at 501 West Green Street in Butler.

Hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p. m. Thursday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

The public is invited to patronize the annual event, proceeds of which go to the building fund of the church.

Heart Board

The DeKalb Heart Association held its annual meeting October 25 at Auburn.

Directors attending were Lottie Graffis and Wendell Graffis of Waterloo; Esther Close, LeRoy Close, Richard Fink, Barb Oren and Russell Kruse of Auburn; Frank Sechler of Saint Joe; and Marilyn Laub of Spencerville.

It was decided that more information should be given to distinguish the difference between DeKalb Heart Association and the American Heart Association. The DeKalb Heart Association is an agency of the United Fund of DeKalb County. It receives funds for use only in DeKalb County. Thus all money given to the DeKalb Heart Association has been and will be spent in DeKalb County.

Several bequeaths have been helpful to the board. Anyone wishing to make a donation or wishing to make provision for the association in a will should contact Barbara Oren at Auburn or any of the directors.

Information has been made available to funeral homes, churches, banks and attorneys.

Henry Walter Grows Giant Turnip

Henry [illegible] Spencerville dropped in at the News Office recently to show what Mother Nature occasionally puts out. He is shown above with a large turnip which weighed 5¼ pounds and measured 23 inches around. Where the top had been cut off, the stalks were as thick as celery stalks. Henry says he didn't use any special fertilizer or magic to produce the giant—it just grew—and grew—and grew.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

The women of the United Methodist Church will hold their annual Christmas Bazaar and Bake Sale soon.

I wonder if you would run the enclosed information for us.

If you will let me know the cost, either by phone or mail, I will see that the bill is paid.

Your paper carried a nice article about us last year, and we appreciated it very much. Our Bazaar earnings go to the church building fund, and we're very proud of our new church. We're thankful to God for giving us women a way to help pay for such a nice place to worship.

Thank you and hope to see you at our Bazaar.

Helen Jane Billings
Butler, Indiana

Additional information appears elsewhere in this issue. We are happy to be of assistance. And there is no charge for church-related announcements, even for money-raising projects. It's poor business procedure according to today's standards, but we prefer to be old-fashioned and do some things for nothing. That's what community newspapers are for. —Ed.

Thank you for sending me the dues notice. I don't get to St. Joe too often, but I enjoy receiving the St. Joe News because I know a lot of the people in the area. I was born in Spencerville and enjoy reading about people I know.

Thanks.

Mrs. Bonnie Furnish Raeke

Dear Ted:

Thanks for the reminder that my subscription is due.

I still enjoy the News, altho' most of my old acquaintances are gone. But it is good to read of the next generation and their interest in civic and religious affairs.

Congratulations for the continued publication of an old establishment, The Saint Joe News. The old town still looks good, and I'm proud of it!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Flossie Mavis
(Auburn)

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

This letter is the epitome of belated social graces. (If my children ever did this, I would probably never let them forget it.)

Anyway, after many, many moons, will you please accept my sincere thanks for all you did in making arrangements for our St. Joe Open House. Although the quantity of people who came was not phenomenal, we made some solid friends with those who did.

Again, THANK YOU! Much continued success with your great little paper. I personally enjoyed your recent "letter to the editor" in the Fort Wayne Newspapers.

Very truly yours,
Louise Rennecker

Ban ALL School Smoking

I think some of the problems taking so much of our school board's time could be solved if some "old-fashioned" regulations were instituted. But before telling what I mean, I would like to say that the automatic three-day suspension of a student caught smoking on school grounds was too harsh for a first offender. Principal Williams' suggestion of a clinic is good—for first offenders.

Some schools "solve" the smoking problem by designating certain areas in school facilities for smoking. I imagine some of our Eastside students have been impressed by that idea.

But there is a better way to take care of the matter and avoid arguments about anyone's "rights" related to smoking. The idea is this:

Ban ALL smoking on school grounds. I mean not only students but also teachers, administrators, office personnel, and any other people working in the school system. I mean an absolute ban—no smoking in the teachers lounge included.

I know that suggestion will bring protests from some faculty members who will fall back on their adulthood to justify their smoking "pleasure" during school hours. However, I believe the matter hinges on one specific point:

Teachers have rights, as we well know in recent years. But they also have responsibilities. One of these responsibilties is to set a good example for students to follow.

All the evidence points toward smoking as a hindrance to good health—for smokers themselves and non-smokers who must inhale "second hand" smoke-laden air.

One of the most irritating sights to my mind is the appearance of a young woman holding her baby while a cigarette either dangles from her lips or is held between her fingers as she struggles to do three things at a time—hold or control the child, open a door or carry a package or what have you—and smoke a cigarette. There is one word to describe such adults—just plain "selfish."

Sure, in years past there were some "boiler-room breaks" by students AND teachers who apparently were subject to nicotine fits. However, the general rule was "no smoking" and the sneak sessions were generally kept "in the closet." The vast majority of students and teachers abided by the rules.

Student smoking can be controlled more effectively by banning ALL smoking—period—if you ask me.

The clinic idea is fine, the suspension is fine—but they are treating the symptoms, not the disease.

Anyone in the school system who thinks my outlook is unreasonable should consider the following question:

"What is more important—the health and welfare of young people, or a 'right' to smoke?"

—And don't forget—I am a parent, too.

Social Security, Pensions In Trouble

In recent months, it has become obvious that the Pension Act of 1974, which was supposed to protect the average American who was a potential recipient of a private company pension at retirement, just is not working. Instead, the opposite has happened. More companies are cancelling pension programs because of future obligations which could not possibly be met. (This is a good example of government meddling in what is a private and individual matter, said meddling being more destructive than preservative.)

In addition to the private pension problem, Social Security is now openly described as facing disaster unless more money comes in to meet rising obligations.

For many years, I have periodically expressed opinions in these columns critical of the Social Security program. It goes back as far as the early 1950's, when I urged readers to protest against the direction the Social Security program was taking. I said we should stop that mis-direction "before it becomes an economic monster destroying us all."

It is not really satisfying, it is not really an expression of joy to say, "I told you so." But I'll say it.—I told you so. Social Security now IS an economic monster.

I note that Senator Barry Goldwater, whose outlook on matters has been "right on target" in my opinion, has cosponsored a bill to allow those over 65 collecting Social Security income checks to earn as much as they can and not be penalized in their Social Security check for doing it.

I think he is wrong for one primary reason. Social Security was not begun to serve as a "retirement pension." The original purpose was to serve as supplemental income especially for the aged and indigent.

To be fair, I must admit that at one time, I also felt that the limit on earnings was unfair. But I changed my mind after I was made aware of the "pay-as-we-go" manner in which Social Security is operated. You and I aren't "setting aside" a little nestegg for retirement through Social Security. Instead, we are paying a tax—a heavy tax—which is paid out immediately to those receiving benefits.

As the years passed, benefits were increased AND the number eligible for benefits. So expansive is the program now that the average citizen does not know how "spread out" Social Security has become.

For instance, my comments in the past have ALWAYS resulted in a response from an elderly person or persons because they thought of—and many elderly persons still think of—Social Security as a retirement pension. Thus, when I criticized the program, I was "against" the elderly.

This was not true and it still is not true. My concern, which is now being expressed by those who ought to have done something about it before disaster loomed in the horizon, was and is that the Social Security program goes beyond reasonable boundaries.

How many people realize that more benefits paid by Social Security go to people UNDER 65 than over 65? Yet, our elderly consider Social Security as a "retirement pension."

How many people realize that the money they have had withheld from their employee-pay (matched by their employer) year after year has already been spent? Yes, there is a so-called trust fund. But it would not pay just one year's obligations.

How many citizens think in this way, "I paid in for so many years; I'm entitled to get my money back when I retire regardless of how much income I might make part-time"?

How many people realize the terrible financial condition Social Security is in when they read now that the disability assistance program will go "on the rocks" first, then old age benefits, as things now stand?

How many realize that Social Security taxes are used to pay disability benefits to persons of any working age?

The concern now being shown by President Carter, and before him President Ford, the concern expressed by members of Congress is comparable to locking the door after the horse is out of the barn. The "solutions" being suggested are more treatment of symptoms than curing the disease.

How can any elected representative of the American people propose raising Social Security taxes and at the same time they establish automatic "cost of living" increases in benefits—then express concern about inflation???

The suggestion that employers pay Social Security taxes on an employee's TOTAL wages or salary is another example of the ever-popular idea that business and industry has the money and can afford it. The truth of the matter is: ANY increase in taxes for ANY designated group IS ALWAYS PAID BY THE AVERAGE CITIZEN, THE CONSUMER. No way can business and industry pay higher taxes and not increase their prices.

What is the solution to the entire situation? I have some ideas, but they won't appeal to very many people because the ideas revolve around "giving up" something. But here they are, anyhow:

1. Prohibit the payment of more than one pension benefit.

2. Prohibit the payment of any type of disability benefit if the individual is able to function full-time in any of the many vocations existing in society.

3. Eliminate pensions paid to retired military service personel, from privates to top brass, if they have other income.

4. Eliminate pensions paid to past Presidents and on down the line including members of Congress, except for hardship.

Whoa, you say—that's going a bit too far. Well, you're entitled to your opinion. My opinion is that we have already gone too far—too far in making it possible for people to collect some sort of benefit while still able to function in the work force in the nation.

I think it is leading to our national destruction to have the degree of socialism in our society as we have today. I think it is a lousy deal that legislators from local to national levels have made government our keeper by giving it the power to be our resources' taker.

The Saint Joe News

Established Saturday, March 7, 1883, as free paper—Second class subscription Jan. 28, 1887 November 17, 1977 VOL. 95—41

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

When Lula Schlatter stopped in recently to renew her subscription, she brought along an old but well-preserved sale bill which was printed by "St. Joe News Print." as indicated in small type the lower left hand corner. The sale bill was for livestock and equipment owned by her grandfather, Elias Klopfenstine.

The bill reads as follows:

"I will at public auction, at my residence on the County Line, one and a half miles east of Rowley's Store, on the old Beard place, on Saturday, March 28th, 1891, the following property to-wit: 3 Brood Mares in foal, 4 Cows (will be fresh soon), 4 Yearling Calves, 1 two-year-old Heifer, 15 Shoats, 1 Brood Sow, 1 Truck Wagon, (good as new,) 1 Fanning Mill, 3 Plows, 3 Harrows, 2 Shovel Plows, Harness, Bob-sleds, Long Sled and Log Chains, 1 Fence Machine, Hay Fork, Rope and Pulleys, Cook Stove, Grain Cradle, Apple Butter, Sink, and other articles. Terms: a credit of ten months will be given. Sale to commence at ten; A.M. James Campbell, Auctioneer. Jerry Klopfenstine, Clerk."

Mrs. Schlatter said the farm was located a half-mile east of the present County Line Cheese factory and that Rowley's Store was on the east side of what we now call "old 427."

A correction I should have made sooner goes back to the October 13 issue. In a report of the junior high all conference cross country meet, Gilbert Ortiz was reported to have come in 10th. It should have been 8th. And Jeff Dangler should have been listed as 10th, not 13th.

Thanks to Vivian Ortiz for the corrections.

Are we at war? That thought went through my mind recently when a Chessie westbound train was made up entirely of flat cars with military equipment on them—tanks, half-tracks, big trucks, little trucks, Jeeps, a Red Cross vehicle and other types of motorized equipment.

Musta been shipped somewhere for maneuvers.

Effiebelle McCann reported Saturday that she saw a big buck deer walking down Jefferson Street in front of the McCann residence early one morning last week. She said it had a good-sized rack.

When the weather was still good for boating early this fall, I was at Lake James one Sunday evening at Feick Point. As I left, I saw Esther's brother (Ed Hauke), Ellen Gill and another couple enjoying the evening in Ellen's back yard, so I stopped. The other couple turned out to be Mr. and Mrs. Ed Howe of Auburn. When I said I was from Saint Joe, they said, "Oh, that's where the good pickles come from." Mrs. Howe said their niece married Dean Schrader of Saint Joe. And Ralph said he graduated from Spencerville High School.

We had a very pleasant visit before I headed back home.

Annual Bazaar, Bake Sale

Hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

Ivan O. Miller

Word has been received of the death of Rev. Ivan O. Miller, former pastor in the local Lutheran parish. He died of pneumonia Tuesday in Avon Park (Florida) Hospital. The Millers had gone south within the past two weeks to spend the winter.

The funeral was set for 10:30 a.m. Thursday of this week at Resurrection Lutheran Church in Avon Park, with Dr. Royall Yount, bishop of the Florida Synod, and Rev. Elmer Gregg officiating. Burial will be in Maplewood Cemetery at Reading, Michigan.

Survivors include his wife, the former Ruby Krafft of Spencerville; a son and a daughter.

Pastor Miller served the local parish in the late '50's and early '60's.

School Board Meets Monday

The school board of the DeKalb eastern school district will meet Monday, November 21, at 8 p.m. in regular session.

The agenda includes:

Minutes.

Claims and checks.

School board consideration of "Additional Appropriation" as same was legally advertised.

School board directive to Superintendent Cole regarding the purchase or non-purchase of 24 hurdles for high school track.

Need for school board consideration regarding the Northern Regional Service Center, and conceivably the need for a school board motion depending upon school board attitude.

School board members consider obligating themselves to attend or not attend the NSBA Convention April 1-4, 1978, in the Anaheim, California, convention center.

Need for action regarding the new unemployment compensation act.

Any other business that may come before the board.

The final item will be an executive session to review a situation concerning Principal Robert E. Williams.

Gifts Needed

The need for Christmas gifts has by no means been filled for the mentally ill patients at area nursing homes and the Fort Wayne State Hospital and Training Center, according to Carolyn Watson, DeKalb County gift chairman.

Additional gifts are needed in order to give patients a joyous Christmas. They are asked to indicate the sort of gifts they would like to have at Christmas. The list includes gloves, scarves, comb and brush sets, simple puzzles, instant coffee, and so on.

Then volunteers woring on the Christmas project make every effort to fulfill their wishes.

The collection depots around the county include Brown Furniture & Hardware at Saint Joe, Kandel Insurance Agency in Butler, the Boston stores in Auburn and Garrett, and Henderson Plumbing at Waterloo.

A suggested gift list is available at each depot.

Deadline for the gift collection is Thanksgiving. This allows volunteer workers time to wrap and tag gifts for delivery to the nursing homes and the state hospital by the first week in December.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted,

We have been gone from Mesa since September, so finally realized it was time to send payment for the News.

. . . .Thanks for sending the paper. We enjoy your editorials. Glad someone isn't afraid of speaking his mind on different issues. We need more people to stand up and be counted — we don't like what has been happening to our country the past few years. We were sorry to see so many people taken in by that Southern charm, which can be so deceiving.

Hope you and your family have a happy Holiday Season.

Sincerely,

Marcellean Hanauer

Basketball Starts Thanksgiving Eve

1977-79 season basketball tickets are now on sale at Eastside High School. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

There are nine home games on the Blazers' schedule. Price for an adult season ticket is $11.25 and for student $9.00. Admission at the door will be $1.50. The purchase of a season ticket thus represents a saving of $2.25 for adults and $4.50 for students.

Coach Bill Peden indicated this week that practice has gone well. Recently the Blazers have been plagued by injuries which slowed progress. Injured are Randy Cook, Ed Moughler and Neil Haverstock.

Said Coach Peden, "This is definitely a rebuilding year with only three returning lettermen. At the end of the 1976-77 season, Randy Cook and Jeff Hudson held starting roles and Ed Moughler was seeing a lot of relief duty on a team that had a 9 and 13 record and progressed to the finals of the sectional against DeKalb. Randy Cook and Jeff Hudson, both seniors, will be joined by fellow classmates Bill Cannon, Dave Fee, Maro Lorencatto and Dan Shaffer. Junior Ed Moughler has been looking good along with other juniors Lance Billings, Rex Buell, Don DeLong and Neil Haverstock.

"At this point it appears that Cook, Hudson and Moughler will be in the starting lineup against Angola on November 23 at the Eastside gym. The other two starting spots are up for grabs.

"Unlike past Eastside teams, it appears that the above listed eleven players will probably be seeing action. To make up for the lack of height and experience, the Blazers are expected to use a lot of pressure defense. Therefore, it will be necessary to have a strong bench and use numerous players. At this point, I'm optimistic about the upcoming basketball season."

Reserve coach is Stan Pasch.

Team managers are Rick Beard, Jeff Ott and Roger Powers.

Varsity cheerleaders are Connie Snyder, Debbie Hall, Michelle Zeigler, Jody Phillips and Joy Zeigler.

Eastside's enrollment is 512 in grades 9 through 12.

EHS Football: Telling It Like It Is

It was a year ago this fall that a crisis occurred in the DeKalb eastern school district. That crisis occurred because of a teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities. The boycott was resorted to in an effort to exert pressure on the school board to grant the teachers a raise which the board said it could not afford. The board said there wasn't enough money to meet teacher salary demands; the teachers (through their spokesmen) said there was.

When the matter came down to facts, it was shown that the board had been correct in its assertions and that the teachers had been very wrong or very misleading in their reasoning.

One of the results of the unfortunate, unreasonable and unethical boycott by the teachers was the resignation of the head football coach due to lack of cooperation from his assistants. There was additional dissention-causing activity in that situation but I won't go into repetition of those circumstances. There is something more important — and — disturbing — than a re-hash of all the details.

Of more importance is the fact that the conduct of certain faculty members in the eastern district (who thus cast a bad reflection on ALL teachers in the district) demoralized the students. The high school principal reported officially to the school board this spring that school spirit was low and he felt it was due to last fall's situation.

The drop in school spirit was reflected this fall in that a small number of students went out for varsity football. There were only some 20 to 25 players on the varsity squad. It was hardly a wonder then that our team was defeated in every game by lopsided scores. An indication of the burden carried by the new head football coach and the faithful small group who participated in varsity football lies in the fact that the latter portion of the reserve football squad's schedule was cancelled. With the IHSAA limit of four quarters per week for football participants, the reserve squad was needed [illegible] varsity.

Although publicity was given elsewhere — extensive publicity — to statements and accusations of the assistant coaches involved in the conflict with the former head coach, there has been no follow-up by other media to make the public aware of what happened to Eastside football this year. The true circumstance, bluntly speaking, is that students at DeKalb Eastside High School were used, abused and confused by the activities of the faculty. Boys who participated in football last year didn't go out this year because of the tactics of teacher leadership, aided by the Indiana State Teachers Association and UniServ.

When an outstanding athlete and a student of good character tells his parent that he knows adults have arguments and he knows parents have arguments but he has never heard such things as were being said by certain faculty members last fall, the concern felt by many parents about the presence of "teacher power" in schools ceases to be imagination or exaggeration.

Teachers as a whole have had their way for quite some time. And they "blew it." Instead of sticking to basic fundamentals of professional teaching, they became union activists. As a result, we have students coming out of high school with high grades but low learning capabilities.

This has come due in great part to our legislators who allow themselves to be influenced more by teacher lobbying and "teacher power" than by the concern of parents.

Eastside's situation in football this year shows how far-reaching are the efforts of a comparatively small number who think they know it all and force their "expertness" on the student, the parent and the taxpayer because of "teacher power."

This writing is not intended to re-open old wounds. Its purpose is based on my belief that (1) students need to have some things spelled out for them in black and white concerning the conditions under which they are forced to function; and (2) other news media showed slanted and favored handling of the rough time Blazer football players had because of the actions of teachers a year ago.

Had Eastside's winless season resulted from school board or school administrators' activities, I have no doubt that the situation would have been made public in no uncertain terms. But because it was teachers, not school administration, who demoralized our kids, the matter was politely left alone.

When you "tell it like it is," Eastside's dismal football season was the result of one factor, and only one — the selfish and unethical methods used by teachers to "sell" their false and misleading contentions last fall.

—And keep it in mind'— I am a parent, too.

You have more power over your electric bill than you think.

No matter what we do to help keep your electric bill in line, there's one thing we have no power over.

The amount of power you use.

So we'd like to point out the most significant places where only you have the biggest opportunities to save.

Insulation

6 to 12 inches of insulation in your attic could save you real money each year.

You'll save even more if you insulate your walls, heating ducts and hot water pipes.

Caulking, weatherstripping, storm windows, shades and drapes also help keep heat inside in winter, and outside in summer.

Thermostat Control

Lower your thermostat in winter. Each degree below 68°F can save three percent of the energy needed for heating. If you have air conditioning, a higher thermostat setting will also save energy in summer.

Hot Water Use

You can save up to 5% a year of the energy needed to heat water if you turn your water heater thermostat down to 120 degrees and take quick showers instead of baths.

Fix leaky hot water faucets promptly. And wash clothes in cold water, if you can.

Washing and drying only full loads of clothes and dishes is more economical, too.

Appliance Efficiency

If you're in the market for appliances and equipment, look for the new energy saving features on refrigerators, freezers, and dishwashers. Choose an Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) of 8 or higher on room air conditioners.

While there are a lot more ways to save electricity, these are the ones that will make the biggest impression on your bill.

Will Student Misbehavior End Use Of Activity Bus?

By The Editor

Will the "activity bus" for junior and senior high school students in the Riverdale area be eliminated?

That is the question which arises out of damage caused to the activity bus during the past year or so.

When the Riverdale and Butler school systems were consolidated several years ago, one of the points agreed upon by the school board was the provision of a bus after school hours to transport upper grade students from Butler to the Riverdale area to ease the burden on parents in the southern portion of the school district. The bus has left Butler some two hours after the end of class sessions, giving Riverdale students an opportunity to participate in after-school activities and still have transportation to the Riverdale area. However, the activity bus provides only partial relief in transportation. With the extra-curricular schedule of practices and games, there have been and still are many instances where parents must make a trip to Butler to pick up their kids. But the activity bus is a big help.

At Monday's school board meeting, the problem of damage to school buses which are used on the activity run brought an expression of the possibility of doing away with the service.

Some people look to the school board to do something about it, some look to the superintendent and principals, some to the bus drivers, some to the students' parents, and some to the students themselves. An overall view of the problem would seem to indicate that everyone has a part to play in solving the problem.

The school bus vandalism is a part of the general problem concerning discipline. While the inclination by school personnel is to look to parents to correct the situation, there is also the fact that school bus drivers are the primary source of behavior control on school buses. But their job is made difficult if there is a lack of discipline in the home—which means parental responsibility.

But what about the students themselves? If they wish to be treated like responsible individuals and not like "children," it is not too much to ask that they do some monitoring of behavior themselves. A cut-up on a school bus is mindful of criticism from his peer group, that is, those his own age. Rejection by fellow students is a bitter pill for most young people.

I am told that bus drivers do have a "right" to report unruly students. But they have two deterents to that procedure. One is that they are dealing with a friend's or neighbor's offspring and there is a natural tendency to not want to cause any trouble. The second is that they are occupied by the responsibility of operating the bus safely and can't be watching the students all the time.

I understand that a school board member offered to ride the activity bus to help maintain order. At first, that sounds like a good idea. But when you stop to think about it, why should such action be necessary? And what about all the other buses on their regular daily runs? Are we going to ask EVERY board member to ride a bus and chaperon the kids???

No, the answer in my mind is that the individuals, not the entire group, should be denied use of the activity bus, the individuals who create disturbances and cause damage. And they should be reported to the bus driver by the students themselves. Those who cause damage should be reported by any student who sees the damage being done. THAT ISN'T SQUEALING. THAT IS PROTECTING PUBLIC PROPERTY — AND THE CONTINUANCE OF THE ACTIVITY BUS SERVICE.

The school board just this week had to approve an additional expenditure of some $3,000 to cover damage from smeared paint and broken doors at the school. Quite possibly those who did the damage are—or were in the past— the unruly ones on school buses.

The problem is mutual. The school board can't solve it alone, the superintendent can't, the principals can't, the bus drivers can't, the teachers can't, parents can't, and students can't. It can only be taken care of by cooperation among all of them.

One thing is for sure—the activity bus should never be cancelled. It is essential to the students in families residing in the Riverdale area. To curtail the activity bus run would be an admission of weakness, a form of blackmail, if you please. We have already been "blackmailed" into distributing grade cards at the end of the school year by mail instead of the by student attendance at school on the final day, due to unruly and undisciplined behavior by certain students two years ago.

The overemphasis on permissiveness, "students' rights," and general looseness in the public education system is now definitely seen to be bearing fruit—rotten fruit. A lot of money has been wasted, and more will be wasted, unless a start is made to re-establish a firmness and discipline in schools. In rural areas, that change must begin the first thing in the morning, on the school buses. And there should be no doubt as to who is "boss."

It will take cooperation between school board members, the superintendent, the principals, the teachers, the bus drivers, the parents and the students to get the job done.

Large Crowd At Open House

An overflow crowd of parents, relatives, friends and students once again attended the Riverdale Elementary School Open House last week, according to Principal Charles Ray.

Several special attractions of this year's Open House included a music program by Miss Judy Washler's sixth grade chorus; a slide-tape presentation of the school faculty by the Riverdale Student Council; displays about the effect of television on children; questions concerning education; and informational handouts for parents.

The theme of the Open House was the development of a Positive Mental Attitude by the students as well as emphasis on respect and courtesy. PMA classroom banners were recently awarded to Mr. Mark Beck's fifth grade and Mrs. Alice Kagey's third grade.

Mrs. Tondalaya Miller, president of the Riverdale P.T.O., conducted a brief meeting prior to the start of Open House. An announcement was made at the meeting that the P.T.O. would soon be selling school supplies such as pencils, erasers and paper through the office at Riverdale. A note will be sent home to parents as soon as the service can be set up.

Charles Ray Named Principal Of Year

(Editor's note: Dave Kurtz' column in the Auburn Evening Star could not be improved upon to relate the success of Riverdale and Butler elementary schools' principal Charles Ray. The column, therefore, is is presented herewith.)

Students in Butler Elementary school are concentrating on being "positive" this week.

One thing they can all feel positive about is their principal, Charles M. Ray, Jr. Last week he was named "Elementary Principal of the Year" for northeast Indiana by his fellow principals.

Charlie is certain that his "Positive Mental Attitude Week" (PMA for short) is one reason he was honored. Another reason is the energy he puts into publishing a magazine for elementary principals twice each year.

PMA Week, which is going on this week at Butler Elementary (it was last week at Riverdale), is not Charlie's personal brainstorm. PMA is a program which was originally designed for insurance salesmen, to help them deal with the many rejections they meet.

Charlie was the first to see that the program could be put to use in education. This is the second year for PMA in Butler and Riverdale schools.

During PMA Week, students are encouraged to be positive towards each other and their work, and show it in such things as courtesy to each other.

At the end of the week, the students who best showed their PMA are rewarded in a school assembly. There's also an award for the most "positive" class.

This year the PMA programs were at the same time as the open houses for parents. Charlie is proud of his school open houses—the one at Butler is tonight.

Last week at Riverdale, he said at one time "the hallway was packed from end to end with so many people you couldn't move."

The highlight of the PMA program this year was the phone call that students placed Friday to Henry Winkler, who plays "The Fonz" in TV's "Happy Days."

Ray was still marveling on Monday at how well Winkler did in talking to students. On the spur of the moment, he came up with some very inspiring advice to the youngsters. The tape of the conversation was played to a school assembly Monday, and even the youngest students listened intently for the entire 20 minutes.

Charlie is in his fifth year as principal at both Riverdale and Butler. When his award was announced Monday, one school board member said "Lookout, they'll all be coming after him with contracts."

Another board member said not to worry, "he likes it here." Charlie would be the first to agree.

Mildred Wilson

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Johnson Funeral Home in Butler for Mildred I. Wilson, 96, a former resident of Saint Joe. She had resided at the Butler Hotel Rest Home the past 8½ years.

Born April 10, 1881, in Concord Township, Mrs. Wilson was the daughter of Dennis and Louisa Tustison Burley. She married George Wilson April 22, 1903. Mr. Wilson died in 1936.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Rosenberry and Mrs. Violet Hartman of Fort Wayne, Miss Merle Wilson of Lewisville, and Mrs. Kathryn Krontz of Hammond; a son, Harold, of Des Moines, Iowa; seven grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Rev. Wilbur Miller officiated at the funeral. Burial was in White City Cemetery. Mrs. Wilson was a member of St. Mark Evangelical Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

'Thanks' In Thanksgiving???

As we observe Thanksgiving 1977, it is appropriate to note the need for examining our progress with the blessings God has bestowed upon us. The picture is not encouraging.

While there are those who will speak of the richness of the land and the high standard of living the vast mapority of our people enjoy, there is a tendency to "trust in God" to the point of negligence in individual obligations. There is a tendency in the minds of some people to think of this nation as shielded from economic disaster by the hand of the Almighty—a blind trust which ignores danger signs and continues in its gratification of human wants.

Today, we are in economic and social trouble not because of what other nations have done and are doing but because of what WE have done and are doing—or not doing.

We are proud of our nation, but lack humility in that we trust in men, not God. The very coins we use as a means of exchange have the words "In God We Trust." But we seek those coins before any other thing. Our young people are bombarded with headlines about sports stars who place themselves and their self-satisfaction through million-dollar contracts above loyalty to a team. The "independence" represented by the "free-agent" system now prevailing in professional sports is not the independence declared by our forefathers when this nation was established.

Our young people are exposed daily to the demand for "rights" by this or that group, to the point where our history appears to be totally shameful. It is not. No other nation ever set such high ideals as ours. Because mankind is imperfect, our efforts have been imperfect. But there has always been a basic fundamental striving to improve.

Our young people are faced with the practical condition that, despite the importance of self-reliance and self-determination, especially in the business world, our working force is almost totally in the category of "employee." In 1876, half the businesses in operation were represented as self-employed. In 1976, 100 years later, only 2% were self-employed.
What happened? So much, "security," so much "guaranteed income" either in a weekly paycheck or unemployment benefits and other inducements were dangled before our people that they have become complacent. Who wants to risk failure nowadays by being "independent" in their occupation when it's so difficult to be "small business" anymore? Who wants to take on the headaches of business responsibility when a steady paycheck can be obtained? Under the conditions which exist today in our society, with the burdens heaped upon the self-employed with no consideration evident in the minds of our legislators for the importance of independent self-employed business men and women, a person is crazy to go in business for himself with that business representing the primary source of income.

How contrary the situation is, when viewed in the light of the origin of this nation.

Trust in God? That comes after trust in money. And if you don't get the money—"see, you CAN'T trust in God!"

There is a direct relationship between what happens to us as individuals and what happens to us as a nation and our society. If we fail in our trust in God, if we expect to be able to provide for every need, every emergency and eliminate hardship, our society finds itself in trouble, just as individuals do. There is no "security" except trust in God. That trust is not impressed by materialism and power. Instead of using adversity to strengthen our individual and national character, we have used it to regulate lives, making the mass rather than the individual most important. We are so regimented today that the words "In God We Trust" are a mockery. Today we trust in "jobs," fringe benefits, company or institution retirement programs, government handouts. An increasing number of "jobs" are paid for by taxpayers who are then subject to the decisions and controls declared by those "public servants."

Thanksgiving? Well — there are still some people and some families where recognition of God's presence makes Thanksgiving a truly happy occasion because blessings are appreciated no matter how "small" they may be.

But in a large number of homes in this nation in 1977, Thanksgiving means two days off from work—with pay. For that, they are thankful.

The Hunting Danger Near Town

As I drove Mark to Butler Saturday morning for bowling, we passed three men at the east edge of town and they were carrying guns; it's hunting season. Town limit signs at the east edge have never lasted very long due to vandalism. So I can not say the men were in or outside town boundaries. And they couldn't know either.

But within 500 feet of the hunters was the heavily populated mobile home court. In the opposite direction were three residences, possibly a little farther distant.

I checked with Deputy Larry Thrush concerning any state laws related to limitations on hunting outside the town corporate limits but within a specified distance from a concentration of population. He said there were none he knew of. And prohibition of the use of firearms within town corporate limits is covered by town ordinances.

I hate to say "there oughta be a law," but when hunting is done near a closely-populated area such as a mobile home court, it seems that legislation is the only language some people understand. Hunting that close to a populated area is just plain stupid. I don't care how careful the hunters are, it's still stupid.

How many people have been injured and sometimes killed by an "unloaded" gun (not necessarily while hunting)? How many hunters have been injured and sometimes killed "by accident"? The Sunday paper carried the story of a young man who was sitting in a tree while hunting. He accidentally dropped the gun to the ground. It discharged and he suffered wounds requiring hospitalization. He could have been killed.

I'm not "anti-gun." I do not support the limitation on possession of firearms to the degree that some people do. I'm not against hunting, but I am against those hunters who fail to look beyond their sights or fail to allow for the possibility of the accidental discharge of their weapons near a populated area. Had one of those three hunters stumbled Saturday as they came out of the woods and proceeded along the state road right-of-way toward town, the possible discharge of his gun could have endangered adults and children in the area.

The three hunters are probably "good guys"; they wouldn't knowingly harm anyone. But they certainly were not showing any concern for others by hunting within feet of town corporate limits and a compact housing area.

—that Democrat leaders in the statehouse at Indianapolis have announced their caucuses would oppose any increases in property and gasoline taxes. Instead, they propose to return state surpluses to taxpayers, to local schools and to local governments for repairs of streets and roads. (Editor's note: that sounds fine—but why did the legislature levy high taxes in the first place??? Generally, half the surplus would return to local government. The other half goes to pay the fulltime statehouse employees who do the bookwork needed to return half the surplus to taxpayers.)

Little Hoosiers

—Diane Miller, secretary

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers held a Festive Days Program Tuesday, November 8, at 6 p. m. at the Spencerville Community Building.

Little Hoosier Moms Jeannie Schmucker, Bev Shinabery, Julie Hissong and Dorothy Lepper prepared the festive dinner and decorated the tables with programs, dolls, leaves and crepe paper which related to fall and Thanksgiving.

The dinner included perfection salad, elegante chicken, green beans, cherry crumble, biscuits and applebutter, coffee and milk.

Jody Lepper gave devotions. After the dinner, President Mark Hudson conducted a business meeting. Reports were given concerning the Officers' Workshop at McCormick's Creek held November 5 and 6.

Mrs. Robert Shull then gave a presentation on artifacts and how to look for them. Artifacts have been her hobby for the past four years. She has collected most of her artifacts in the Saint Joe area.

The next Little Hoosier meeting is Tuesday, December 13. There will be a dollar gift exchange and we will trim the large tree we bought for Riverdale School several years ago. Each person will be asked to name a county in Indiana when roll call is taken.

Town Board Pres Resigns; Replacement Sought Monday

—By The Editor

Fred Rayle, president of the Town Board of Saint Joe, has resigned as of November 30, 1977, according to board member Loretta Loy. Present board members were elected in 1975 and took office January 1, 1976.

Mr. Rayle has also been serving as chief of the volunteer fire department. A conflict of interest was apparent in the handling of certain matters to the point that the fire department reportedly re-wrote its by-laws prohibiting the chief from also serving as town board president.

Presumably, Monday night's regular board meeting will include discussion of a replacement for the board vacancy.

The other board member is "Butch" Coburn.

It is reported that no replacement has yet been found for the vacancy. Town residents, therefore, have the opportunity to make suggestions in that matter Monday night.

A replacement must come from the same town ward as the resigned member.

A report of a meeting of the firemen this coming Sunday, December 4, to hold election of officers, was not confirmed by two firemen and one former member still close to department functions. When this paper asked about the matter, the three "didn't know" what the Sunday meeting is for. The third Monday of each month has been the traditional meeting night for the department. There is no particular reason, generally speaking, to have an election on a special date.

The situation suggests an inclination by some firemen to consider department matters "private." However, with the department supported by taxpayers of Saint Joe and Concord Township, the functioning of the department is a public matter. Any citizen within town or township boundaries is entitled to know what is going on and why.

Internal friction has been evident for some time, reported to this paper from time to time. However, no publicity about the matter has appeared in this paper due to past criticism of such publicity as "picking on" the firemen.

One incident involves a recent dismissal of a fireman by voting procedures which were questioned even by certain members of the department.

As stated in a recent issue of this paper, the local fire department is not an independent organization. It operates under the jurisdiction of the town board. Although state law gives the town board the duty of appointing the fire chief, the department has been allowed to hold an election of officers for many, many years and the "mutual agreement" has not presented any problems in the past.

However, a comparatively young and new membership in the department apparently has not been made aware of the relationship between the board and the department as to primary authority and responsibility. Liability for department activities falls not on the department but rather on the town and its citizens. Because of the public's responsibility and liability, the functioning of the department and the manner in which it operates is a matter of public interest. A citizen has the right to know what is happening and why. The public is entitled to more than vague "don't now" answers when questions are asked about a reported special Sunday meeting.

If it's a Christmas party, as someone suggested, why didn't the queried firemen say so???

Blazers Lose

After Gary Rinard sank a 20-foot basket at the buzzer to give the Eastside reserves a 36-34 win over Angola, the varsity found themselves confronted with size and experience. The varsity lost, 69-29.

The Blazers scored only one field goal in the first quarter as the Hornets took a 14-2 first period lead. It was 36-9 at the half and 53-21 at the three-quarter mark.

After the Wednesday night opener last week, the locals had a better scoring night Friday but lost 78-52.

The Blazers led 20-18 at the end of the first quarter. But after that, it was all Norwell, 33-26 at the half, 57-38 at the end of three quarters, and 78-52 at the end of the game.

The reserves lost 57-33.

Lions, Ladies Tour IHC

—Bud Shockley, Public Relations

Lions Club members, wives and guests attended Monday night's meeting with 44 in the group.

Dinner at 6:30 p.m. was enjoyed at the Lucky Steer Steak House in Fort Wayne before the group went to the International Harvester plant for a tour of the company's facilities.

The group was informed that the Fort Wayne plant manufactured over one billion dollars worth of heavy duty trucks, Scouts and componenets in fiscal 1977. Employees manufacturned 32,367 heavy-duty trucks, 35,537 Scouts, plus components such as medium and heavy-duty front axle assemblies, transmissions, rear axle differential assemblies and steel forgings for productions of the components which are used at Fort Wayne and other IH plants.

Projects of major proportions being undertaken at the Fort Wayne plant include preliminary work on a $12.5 million computerized material handling facility, and installation of six new 30,000-gallon propane tanks as a "back-up" energy source, along with IH's own natural gas wells in southern Ohio. Recently announced were new applications of a composite material that truck designers are now developing.

In fiscal 1977, the Fort Wayne plant channeled a total of $301 million into the area economy, including $260 million in payroll (wages, salaries and benefits); $30 million for the purchase of goods and services from 200 area suppliers; and $11 million in taxes, utilities and other services.

Employment at Fort Wayne is near the 9,000 mark.

Green Tobacco Sickness Absorbed

(A health message from your American Lung Association of Northeastern Indiana.)

Nicotine is one of the most powerful poisons. Even when it isn't inhaled.

If you put one drop of nicotine on the gum of a healthy dog, the dog will die. Inject the same amount into a person's bloodstream, and death strikes in minutes.

Even handling tobacco leaves has ill effects. For years, nausea and weakness have been observed among some tobacco workers during harvest. Until recently, the malady was mistakenly believed to be pesticide poisoning. But now experts have pinpointed nicotine, absorbed through the skin, as the culprit. Called "green tobacco sickness", its symptoms are similar to severe seasickness. Smoking six or seven cigarettes in forced, rapid succession produces the same results.

The symptoms most often appear during "priming." This part of the harvesting process involves pulling tobacco leaves off the plant as they ripen. Usually a field must be gone over four to six times to complete the harvesting process. Unlike other types of farming, tobacco growing is one of the very few where planting and harvesting are not highly mechanizeed.

Fortunately for the farm workers, green tobacco sickness lasts only a dozen or so hours, until the nicotine passes out of their system. But for the people who smoke the crop these workers harvest, the hazards are far worse and more long lasting. According to the American Lung Association, inhaling nicotine as well as many other toxic substances in cigarette smoke causes the premature deaths of 300,000 Americans every year.

Contributions to Christmas Seals helps combat cigarette smoking and its deadly efects. Because your lung association cares about every breath you take . . . they are the Christmas Seal people located at 802 West Wayne Street in Fort Wayne.

Liquor Taxes Cut Property Taxes

An often-overlooked benefit to taxpayers in Saint Joe is the amount of money returned to the town by the Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission. Receipts from gallonage taxes and fees are distributed to counties, cities and towns by the commission.

Jim Sims, former sheriff of DeKalb County, is chairman of the commission. He recently issued a formal report to the governor which included the fact that Saint Joe received $1,011.48 in gallonage tax distribution and $1,166.66 in permit fee distribution. That's a total of $2,178.14.

To put it in dollars and cents close to your pocketbook, the presence of the Oasis Tavern in Saint Joe has helped to reduce property owners' tax rate in the town by some 43 cents per $100 assessed valuation. That's nothing to be sneezed at. If there were no reimbursements from the commission, the property tax would be higher to make up the difference.

True, taxpayers are also bearing the expense of law enforcement due to abuse of the privilege of consuming aclohol-ic beverages. And there is the property damage, plus the most important item of all — bodily injury and loss of life. We are told time and time again that half the traffic fatalities involve drinking drivers. And that fact I accept. But we don't hear much about the fact that the OTHER half of traffic fatalities involve drivers who are cold sober.

I'm not saying that anyone should drink more so that we get more property tax relief. What I am saying is that drinking is a fact of life; you're not going to eliminate it any more than you are going to eliminate smoking. And because it is a fact of life and has been since the time man began functioning, some recognition should be given to the tax contribution made by those who consume alcoholic beverages and those who pay significant permit fees in order to sell those beverages.

Guest Editorial

(Reprinted from the Muncie Evening Press)

If you have confidence in how Washington has administered the Social Security trust fund...

If you are satisfied with the cost-effectiveness of the U.S. Postal Service . . .

If Amtrak stands out in your mind as the traveler's best friend...

If federal housing failures don't bother you...

And if a $1 billion dollar a year in federal welfare fraud can be overlooked. . .

Then, you will be absolutely thrilled with portions of the National Energy Act which will cover the nation's electric utilities.

The short of it is, Washington would be empowered to have the final say over the rates of every investor-owned power company in the nation, where electric plants are built, what fuels they use, and at what cost new generating capacity will be built.

It is one of the most frightening power grabs in all of Washington's illustrious history of power-grabbing, and no pun is intended.

If the federal government cannot run its trains on time, balance books at the Postal Service, stave off Social Security bankruptcy and end joblessness and poverty, how, pray, can it possibly aspire to do a better management job of the nation's electric-generating industry?

The Carter Administration and some of its errand runners in the House and Senate are trying to capitalize on the public's disenchantment with higher electric bills, and its inability to understand why rates are up.

Under the bill, its backers say, rates will plunge, blackouts will be outlawed by federal perfectionism and a new level of efficiency will develop.

No such thing will happen, of course.

A more certain scenario would include higher rates to pay for new mandated regulatory bureaucracy, mandated delays in rate decisions to allow federal review, increased litigation companies ($5 million is set aside for paying consumer litigants the first year), and new crackpot economic theories which will turn utilities into energy versions of Amtrak.

At the heart of the gibberish in these bills is not a wholesome compulsion to provide better electric service. Electric service in the U.S. is the world's best, an occasional blackout notwithstanding.

What is behind the legislation is regional political and economic warfare, and an attempt to make investor-owned companies responsive to government impulses rather than the marketplace.

Some congressmen in northeastern and north central industrial states don't like the higher utility rates there, and they don't like comparatively lower rates in the south and southwest. They want to equalize rates through a nightmarish manipulation of fuels, interconnection of companies, siting of plants built by more than one company. In short, they hope that a federal utility dictatorship can achieve something politically desirable, but economically impossible.

Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, said it in a newsletter to constituents:

"This (legislation) should help keep jobs from migrating . . . . ."

Rep. John Dingell of Michigan tried unsuccessfully two years ago to have the same bill enacted, largely to shift residential electric costs to industry, and hide the increases in the costs of consumer goods.

If Congress allows this seizure of states' rights, central government with absolute powers is just around the corner.

Safety Quiz

No matter how blase most drivers tend to get as years of accident-free driving roll by, the fact remains that every time you turn on the car ignition, you are turning on potential trouble. And trouble is most likely to occur in the oncoming winter season when accident and death rates tend to increase due to adverse weather conditions.

The Chicago Motor Club-AAA says winter driving survival depends upon two factors: the ability to stay calm and a sound knowledge of defensive driving. A panic reaction can be disastrous, and an inadequate understanding of defensive tactics can be deadly.

Just how much do you know about safe winter driving techniques? Answer true or false to the following questions, but remember - there may be more than one correct decision to a given emergency.

Your shopping cart can tell you a lot about your electric bill.

Like food and everything else you buy these days, inflation has hit us, too.

So, it would be easy to blame inflation for rising electric rates and leave it at that.

And, for sure, inflation has doubled and tripled the cost of everything from towers and transformers to coal and cable.

Take coal, our single largest operating expense. Its cost has gone up fourfold and more in the seventies.

But the reasons for rising rates go beyond those everyday expenses.

We must build pollution control devices like precipitators to help keep our air clean as we burn this coal.

And those devices cost millions. Installing them in existing plants can cost as much as the original plant. For example: our Tanners Creek Generating Plant cost 130 million dollars to build. Installing new pollution control devices on that plant will cost 96 million dollars.

Of course, power plants cost a lot more today, too. And, to keep up with your needs, we'll need more of them.

Which means we're going to have to borrow money to build them. But even that's more expensive these days.

Interest rates and construction costs have doubled in the last ten years.

Obviously, keeping up with these rising costs and trying to stay ahead of the steadily growing need for electricity isn't easy.

But, by sharing the facts and problems as well as the good things electricity brings, we hope you'll better understand some of the forces that have made your electric bill go up.

L.E.T.T.E.R.S—

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted—

We have enjoyed the News all these years and appreciate your sending it to us. We have been in Greenfield ever since we left Saint Joe - I have coached reserve basketball and golf at Lapel High School for the last 12 years - spent five years at Hancock Central before going to Lapel.

Bill, our oldest, is now a pharmacist at a hospital in Hancock County. Barb is married and has two boys and lives here in Greenfield. John, the youngest, just finished high school. We hope to get to Saint Joe sometime and see a lot of old friends.

Tell everyone hello and thanks again.

We anticipate retiring and moving to Pinehurst, North Carolina in a year or two - we have a house there and plan to move there and play a lot of golf.

Sincerely,
Price Brookfield

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

It was sad for me to read the editorial you wrote concerning taxes and the local drinking place. For a man of your position and responsibility, I believe you could have handled the report a little better. First, drinking and places that encourage drinking have never been a benefit to any community, especially to a small community such as Saint Joe. Drinking has caused nothing but sorrow, expense, broken homes and tragedy. It is true that drinking causes ONLY 50 percent of the fatalities on the highway but no other single cause comes even close to that figure.

It is my honest opinion that the Christians of this community would be glad to pay the extra taxes to see all places of sin done away with. I pray that you will reconsider your position and see the evil in all this.

This community will only become a place of decency and safety when its people again return to God and His Son Jesus Christ and trust Him as Lord and King. We have come so far from the way God wants us to live that I pray it's not too late to return.

A Concerned Christian,
Dennis King

P.S. I write this letter in love believing that we must hate the sin but love the sinner.

Ted—

Enjoy the News and your articles are great. Still miss the people of Saint Joe, just can't get that Indiana out of me.

Thanks very much
Richard Beebe

Hi Ted—

Enclosed you will find a check to pay my subscription up to date. When my present subscription expires, will you please stop sending me the Saint Joe News? It is not that we don't enjoy reading our "old" hometown newspaper, but after being gone from the Saint Joe area for the last 21 years, I am afraid that we don't know hardly anybody mentioned in the news except family members.

We plan a visit to Saint Joe next summer to check out employment opportunities around Indiana. I will be retiring from the Navy late next year or early the following year with 23 years service. If employment opportunities are not very promising in Indiana, we probably will stay here in the Bremerton/Seattle, Washington area. We like this area except for, occasionally, too much rain.

If you or anyone else ever get out here to the great Northwest, please look us up - Bremerton is not that big - and we will show you our beautiful country.

Thank you for sending us the "News" for all these years.

Don & Peg Baker

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Since I have now been separated from the Saint Joe community for a number of years equal to the number formerly associated with it, I believe I will discontinue my subscription to the "News," since I have pretty well lost contact with the community, the people and the school.

Thanks for nearly eight years of pleasurable reading and season greetings to all the Haberkorns - especially Mark!

Sincerely,
Wray Dunson

Of Signs And Christmas Lights

The May 27, 1976, issue of The Saint Joe News carried a story about the possibilities of a street sign project. Former resident Joyce Mitchell was mentioned in the item as investigating cost of materials. She was quoted as say that she had attended a town board meeting to discuss the matter and "it was thrown back in my lap."

As I recall, another resident made comments later on that the board said it had no money to carry out such a project.

Well, the street signs are in, and they're nice and they're an asset to the town, if you ask me. And it was the town board that got the job done.

There are a few reasons why I bring the matter up. One is that the town board said it couldn't do the job; but after a public item about Joyce's suggestion, the board then DID undertake the project but no information was given to the public.

Another reason is that twice in the past few weeks there has been an inquiry about the local Booster Club and its treasury. Some people have their eye on that money and they believe it should be spent on completing the fire hall addition and maybe to purchase new Christmas decorations for the main street.

There have been no Booster meetings for a year. On a few occasions, a directors' meeting was set, but illness of one key director on more than one occasion, plus absence due to vacations of other directors, resulted in no meetings. Since I am president of the club until new officers are named, I'll take full responsibility for the lack of meetings.

But that isn't what this is all about. What is involved is the fact that someone has been telling others that $250 was raised by Joyce when she raffled an afghan last year specifically to raise money for street signs. Town board member Loretta Loy, who called recently about the matter and some other matters, said she heard it was $400.

The truth is, a grand total of $50 was placed in the Booster Club treasury by Joyce for the street sign project. She sold 50 tickets at $1 each.

I wonder why someone didn't find out the correct amount in the first place, before starting rumors that $250 to $400 was raised. The inference is that the Booster Club has a large sum of money which is not its own.

I told Loretta recently that the $50 probably should be turned over to the town since the town has completed the project and the $50 could be used for something else. She replied that she didn't think that was necessary.

Every so often somebody gets rambunctious and starts agitating for use of Booster Club treasury funds. The latest is a suggestion by a firemen's auxiliary member that the money should be used to furnish the new fire hall addition.

To refresh the memories of those who have been involved in Booster Club activities and for those who have little or no background information, the following is presented. The club was re-organized in the 1950's when prospects of gaining a small industry appeared favorable. At that time, communities enticed industry by offering various benefits, depending on the size and the character of the community. In some instances, land was donated to an incoming industry. In other communities, both land and building were offered on a lease-purchase basis. It was a somewhat competitive atmosphere with communities in effect "bidding" for industry.

At Saint Joe, the Booster Club was comprised mainly of businessmen in the community, comparable to the Chamber of Commerce in today's cities. Later, the membership was opened to the general public.

At one time, when a "hot" prospect appeared to look over the Saint Joe area, local businessmen made tentative pledges amounting to several thousand dollars with which to buy a building site. The prospect fizzled.

But, rather than wait until a new possibility came in view, the Booster Club purchased five acres of land from Leon Kees. The club did not have a large enough treasury to pay the purchase price. So four members underwrote personal notes with Knisely National Bank to obtain the purchase price of the land. Those four were Frank Sechler, Maurice Kline, the late Eddie Halt and Ted Haberkorn.

After a few years, the late Harry Loucks purchased the site on which the mobile home court is now located.

That the club is business-oriented is stated in Article II of its Articles of Organization:

"The object of this organization shall be the promotion of the commercial and manufacturing interests and the general welfare of the Town of St. Joe and vicinity. To obtain land to erect buildings for manufacturing purposes aforesaid. To own real estate and to mortgage same and to spend or donate such portion of its funds and property for the purpose aforesaid and to accept and hold notes, mortgages and other evidence of indebtedness in the furtherances of said purpose and improvement of our Town and vicinity."

The above does not mean that Booster Club money cannot be used for purposes other than commercial growth; another section of the rules and regulations states that the club is to assist the Town Board in civic improvements. However, the main purpose for which the club is intended relates to commercial growth and improvement. If I seem to get "ouchy" sometimes when the club treasury is mentioned, it's because many have forgotten the original purpose of the club which has its foundation based in the business community.

Meanwhile, if you hear about a lot of money raised for the street signs but not turned over to the town, remember that the story is not true.

As for Christmas decorations, they were not put up three winters ago to conserve energy and to save on the electric bill. Though other communities are once again putting up Christmas lights, the need to conserve energy is still present.

The lack of decorative street lighting in Saint Joe the past few years has not been an indication of a lack of Christmas spirit by the Booster Club. Rather, it is an indication of an effort to have the town do its part in conserving energy, an effort all but forgotten by many communities and governmental agencies who tend to think in terms of "we have the money, we can afford it" and ignore the need to cut energy use.

Town Administration A Plaything???

—By The Editor

Last week's issue had just been put in the mails when County Republican Chairman Bob Wilder informed me that the state legislature had passed a law regarding vacancies on town boards.

The new law reportedly turns the job of filling a town board vacancy over to the precinct committeeman of the party to whom a vacated member belongs. I was aware that such a proposal had been considered and clipped a relative article from one of the dailies weeks or months ago. But there are so many clippings around the News Office, I was not certain where to start looking.

The possible existence of a new procedure was made known by me to town board member Loretta Loy. I suggested the town attorney be contacted to find out for sure.

The new law is not fair, in my opinion. Why? Well, Concord Township is a voting precinct and it includes Saint Joe. With the possibility that a precinct committeeman of either or both political parties could reside outside the town corporate limits, we have the possibility of a non-resident of the town making an appointment to the town board with no control over the appointment exercised by other town officials or the people who reside in town.

This is an instance where the state legislature, instead of protecting "home rule" by the public, took away a responsibility that clearly is not properly exercised by only one person. And I'm not showing any favorites; I told Bob it was none of his business as county Republican chairman nor the business of the county Democrat chairman as to filling a vacancy on the town board. It should be left up to the remaining board members, if we are going to preserve home rule to as great an extent as possible.

If the law is as it has been stated, there should have been an exception made in cases where a precinct contained an incorporated town. Even then, it doesn't solve the problem unless you leave the filling of vacancies up to the remaining town board members. They were elected by the public and thus are responsible to the public within the town corporate limits. Leaving the selection up to one individual just doesn't sit right with me.

On the other hand, our problems concerning town board members in the past six years illustrate that the public gets what it asks for. When petty differences influence voters' selections within the voting booth, you can expect petty administration to follow.

Think of it—

In 1971 the town elected three board members, none of whom finished their four-year term. And even one of the appointees to fill a vacancy left office before the end of the term.

In 1975 three board members were elected. And already, just two years later, two of those three have vacated their office.

Sure, a couple of vacancies came when a board member moved from town. But the others didn't.

At the root of the problem is the fact that most people don't know how much responsibility there is and how much time is required in serving as town board member. Some think all you have to do is give orders. Some think somebody else is going to take care of legal matters and also make the decisions in matters of great importance, such as sewage treatment. Put it all together and you come up with a town shortchanged in administrative fulfillments.

But that's what town voters asked for in the past two elections. When you base your selection of candidates and your voting for candidates on petty matters and prejudice, you get petty and prejudiced administration.

Snow, Wind, And Bitter Cold.....

Blowing, blustery snowfall early Monday morning closed schools that day. Drift-covered roads forced the closing of schools also Tuesday and Wednesday. 20 to 25-mile-an-hour winds caused deep drifting of snow in spots.

Wednesday afternoon the temperature plumetted from 20 degrees to 5 above zero in less than an hour.

The snow was preceded a week or so ago by damp, windy and bone-chilling temperatures in the mid to upper 20's. Near 32-degree temperatures Saturday coupled with some snow brought warnings to motorists not to venture forth that morning. Later in the day, roads were fairly clear except for stretches of tree-sheltered pavement.

Along with school closings in the tri-state area came a declaration of a state of emergency in Fort Wayne. DeKalb County p lice warner motorists not to travel.

At Saint Joe, local volunteer firemen maintained a constant vigil at the fire hall, prepared to answer any emergency call.

In total, this week's weather served as a reminder of last year's severe conditions.

The heat pump. An energy-saving idea a lot of people are comfortable with. Even Uncle Sam.

The heat pump is a device that heats and cools your home.

When it cools, it works like any air conditioner.

But when it heats, it works more efficiently than any other electric heating system around.

It captures the heat that exists in outside air, even on cold days.

As a result, you can heat your home using up to one-third less electricity than other electric heating systems.

This more-for-your-money, energy-saving feature has made the heat pump very popular with a lot of people.

Including the federal government, whose energy agencies recommend it over other types of electric heat.

Actually, we don't sell heat pumps. But, the way we figure it, every bit of electric energy that can be saved these da... helps all of us.

Rapping With Youth About.....

Injustices Done To J. Edgar Hoover

If you read the newspapers, if you hear news broadcasts on radio or television, you are aware in the past week or so of publicity concerning the release of previously secret documents about the efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the late 60's and early 70's related to dissenters within the United States.

If you are not careful, you will conclude that the FBI is a terrible thing and ought to be controlled. What the news stories (written by people unknown to you and me for distribution over the national wire services to news media all over the country) do not tell is that during the 1960's and into the 1970's, dissent on university campuses was so well organized by an active minority that demonstrations led to bodily injury to both demonstrators and police and even to burning of buildings. Death came at Kent State, and law enforcement has consistently been blamed for it. What was seldom given national attention on news reports was that leadership of the dissenters came from off-campus. Unless you also read some of the syndicated columnists, you were led to a one-sided opinion in the matter.

Today's news stories about the FBI "infiltrating" dissenting groups makes the efforts of that law enforcement agency sound like "dirty tricks." The writers of today's news stories are seeking sensational headlines with such misleading words as "infiltrate" and "undermine." What is not emphasized (it isn't even mentioned most of the time) is that the the effort of the FBI to find out what was planned by a dissenting group WAS TO PROTECT THE PUBLIC AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS. It was not wrong that, as UPI inferred in a story this week, "the FBI mounted a campaign to confuse and disrupt the New Left at Indiana University in the late 1960's . . . ." It was not shameful that the FBI infiltrated student activist groups to confuse and disrupt their activities. Rather, it was in the public interest — YOUR interest — to do so. Those activist groups were encouraged by people who had subversive ideas — that is, they were attempting to destroy the United States, capitalism, "the establishment" and so on.

(Incidentally, because you as a student enjoy money in your pockets, a car to drive and perhaps your own car, plenty of food, a comfortable home and so on, YOU are part of the "establishment" as were those students who participated in disruptive tactics on campus—but they were too dumb to recognize it!)

Unfortunately, some of those involved in subversive efforts several years ago are still at it. Just a couple of weeks ago, a speaker was allowed to use the Fort Wayne IU-PU campus (wasn't it Eldridge Cleaver??) to openly state that he is still working to overthrow the capitalistic system. That's the same as saying he is working to destroy the United States, to take away the rewards of capitalism which YOU now enjoy. Isn't it strange??? Two tax-suported state universities allow an individual freedom of speech to promote his efforts to undermine this nation, and if his efforts were successful, freedom of speech would be eliminated because that's the only way his kind of society could function—deny freedom of speech in order to control his kind of society.

Not too many years ago, anyone promoting the destruction of this nation would have been imprisoned for treason. But those who keep harping on the right to dissent through recent years regardless of how radical that dissent may be have been so successful in their efforts that the public now has no control over what is being said to university students. The door is wide open.

To give you another illustration of the permissiveness on our public-supported university campuses, a spokesman for the "Moonies" also recently was granted use of Fort Wayne IU-PU facilities for a meeting. The "Moonies" are a cult which destroys individuals' ability to think for themselves, but the leadership doesn't tell you that. News stories from time to time tell of the zombie-like actions of those young people who are indoctrinated into the cult's teaching. They go out day by day raising money for the top leader of the cult who, while leading gullible young people into mental slavery, lives a life of luxury himself.

The criticism you have heard about the late J. Edgar Hoover AFTER he died is an indication of how cowardly those critics are and how deceptive. Some of them were little kids when Mr. Hoover took over the FBI; some weren't even born yet. But they still "know it all" when they point out the power which Mr. Hoover exercised in later years. Despite the exercising of that power in a way which, in his last few years may have been out of bounds, the fact of the matter is that you and your parents are better off today because of J. Edgar Hoover and his maintaining a "tight ship" in the FBI.

So, when you hear about how the FBI tried to confuse this or that group several years ago, about how they infiltrated this or that group, remember — those efforts were to protect your freedom. The FBI has protected the United States from destruction within just as our military services have protected us from destruction from without.

Perfect? No. Faultless? No. Nevertheless, Mr. Hoover was a great American.

Lady Blazers Win

The Lady Blazers from Eastside romped to an 80-50 win at Heritage High School Tuesday night. The 80 points represent the highest total yet achieved through two seasons of play and the start of the third.

The gals jumped to a 20-8 first quarter lead. At the half it was 36-18 and the end of the third period, 57-30. Heritage came to life in the final period and scored 20 points. But the Lady Blazers scored 23 to bring home an impressive win.

Lithe Lisa Johnson scored 24 points to lead scoring. Curvy Connie Oberlin scored 19, Super Sunda Obendorf had 17, Adorable Amy Hampel 16 and Runt Baughman 4.

Two games were cancelled last week due to snow. They will be played at a later date.

Lisa again topped scoring efforts with 32 points, but it is the entire team's defensive ability which "puts it all together."

Christmas Program Dec. 18

The public is invited to attend the Fourth Annual Community Christmas Choral Vespers (Service of Lights) at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, December 18.

The choir, under the direction of Jay Blauser, will perform works by Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, Praetorius, Saint-Saens, as well as the singing of many traditional carols.

Mrs. Kathleen McMaken will be guest accompanist and will be joined by brass instrumentalists from the area.

Rev. Miller will officiate.

Janice Ayers Heads Local 'March'

Janice Ayers, Saint Joe chairman for the St. Jude's Childrens Hospital March, has announced the solicitation will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 27 and 28. Door-to-door soliciting will be held that day and volunteers are sought to contact other residents in their block. Mrs. Ayers can be reached at 337-5172.

Cancer is the second largest killer of little children, second only to accidents. St. Jude's Hospital is the only research center where the sole purpose is to conquer childhood cancer and other death-dealing diseases that strike the young.

Research at St. Jude's has already provided answers that are saving children all over the world. The ultimate goal is to find the cause, prevention and cure for all the diseases that cut off a child's life.

Those who are willing and able to assist in soliciting are asked to contact Mrs. Ayers. The more workers, the less work for each solicitor. And other residents are asked to be ready with whatever amount of donation they can spare when they see a solicitor at the door December 27 or 28.

From the Editor's Desk....

Why Should Labor Leaders Rule?

A condition exists in the functioning of our nation's business and our legislative processes which is puzzling. Part of that "puzzlement" is because national news media devote a lot of time and space to such subjects as women's liberation, equal rights for women, equal rights for minorities and so on. There isn't any room left for MAJORITY viewpoints.

If I didn't contribute to the National Right To Work Committee, I probably wouldn't know of the activities taking place which further reduce the majority to a powerless mass. Unfortunately, the national news media do not give attention to the injustices being fought by the committee in behalf of the majority opinion.

One of the misconceptions I have had for quite some time is that most workers belong to unions. I suppose that conclusion was arrived at because of the crippling effect a truckers' strike, a steelworkers' strike, an airline stewardess' strike, a coalminers' strike, and so on, can have on the lives of millions of Americans who have no say-so in those matters. Or is there really that much effect on the majority of other people? Are the headlines and TV and radio newscasts creating an impression by making those stories of prime importance?

I wonder.

Anyhow—my impression that we are a nation of union members is incorrect. And I would not know it without the information coming in newsletters from the National Right To Work Committee.

In view of the re-election of George Meany as president of the AFL-CIO and the power he exerts on certain members of Congress and President Jimmy Carter, here is an amazing statistic as revealed in the latest Right To Work Committee newsletter:

"Labor Department statistics show that from 1974 to 1976, unions sustained a net loss of 767,000 dues-paying members—the first decline in union membership in 14 years. As a result, union membership now comprises ONLY 20 PERCENT OF THE TOTAL LABOR FORCE—down from 26 percent in 1955 when membership was at its highwater mark."

The capital letters are my doing to emphasize an unbelievable statistic. The figures bring some very significant questions to mind, such as:

If union membership is so low, compared to the total work force, why did Indiana's state legislature repeal its right to work laws?

If union leadership actually represents a minority of the total working force, why do state legislators and members of the U.S. Congress bow to labor lobby demands more often than they resist such lobbying?

If most Americans (according to the Gallup Poll and the Roper Organization Survey) do not believe that membership in a union (or payment of money equal to membership dues) should be a condition of employment, why is the Right To Work Committee forced to resort to court action to have the definition of "member" made clear so that it can legally conduct political fund-raising efforts, while at the same time unions can function in political campaigns without a question of legality?

For almost two years, the Right To Work organization has sought to have "member" defined. Such requests are by law supposed to be answered without undue delay. Until the committee knows what "member" means, it cannot solicit campaign funds from its "members."

Why the delay? The newly-created Federal Election Commission has great power over the conduct of federal elections. The chairman of that commission is Thomas E. Harris who, before taking that post, served FOR 30 YEARS as a top staff lawyer for big labor. Now—YOU answer the question as to why the Right To Work Committee hasn't been given an answer to its request!

This is the kind of "election reform" being made under the guidance of the Congressional Democrat majority which includes Indiana Senator Birch Bayh. Is that the kind of "reform" Hoosiers want??? Is that the kind of reform Americans want???

Why are so many members of Congress, including Indiana Senator Birch Bayh, the pawns of organized labor leadership?

If the labor department statistics are correct, the main conclusion to be drawn is that our elected representatives are not and have not reflected the will of the majority in labor matters. For instance, with the Hoosier background of an independent nature, belief in principles, belief in hard work as the backbone of individual progress and the merits of the individual as the determining factor in the amount of reward received, how did the Indiana state legislature ever repeal right to work laws? Why does Senator Bayh continue to lean toward labor leadership's objectives when that leadership represents only one-fifth of the total working force? If the answer is "money and votes," then we have been double-crossed, because an elected representative has the basic responsibility to vote according to the wishes of his or her constituents, for the most part. If labor money and support is influencing our legislators and President, but organized labor's numbers are but 20% of the total American working force, it would appear that fear and intimidation rule instead of reason and representation.

Keep that statistic in mind as George Meany and his minority followers attempt to repeal Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley law and gain absolute control over the American working force. Remember—ONLY 20% of the American working force belong to unions. And every time a segment of organized labor inconveniences other American citizens because of a strike or work stoppage, it means a minority controls and the majority suffers.

Federated Clubs

—Mrs. Kenneth Crowe, reporter

The Christmas dinner of the Past Officers of the DeKalb County Federation was held December 1 at Platner's Steak House. Mrs. Arthur Gallatin, Mrs. Gray Woodcox, Mrs. Florence Morgan, Mrs. K. M. Crowe and Mrs. Norman Funk were hostesses. Mrs. Funk was chairman and created a lovely hospitality table.

At the brief business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Raymond Dunn of Waterloo, it was noted that the treasurer, Mrs. John Grogg, had sent a monetary gift to the Indiana Federation of Clubs for the ongoing art, music and scholarship funds.

Mrs. Kenneth Crowe gave the book review on "We Dickinsons," as told by the son, Austin. It is the childhood and late life story of poet Emily Dickinson.

More than 1,000 brief lyrics were found in Emily Dickinson's bureau drawer after her death. Three small volumes were published in the 1890's. More were published in 1914-1929 and in 1936. Her poems have enjoyed steady, increasing popularity. They speak of New England, God, nature, human life, love, death and eternity.

Thomas H. Johnson published 1775 poems of Miss Dickinson in two volumes in the 1950's. A complete book of 1775 poems was published last in 1960 by Mary Lynn Hampson and are in the Garrett Library.

Mrs. Dale Heitz and her Auburn committee will be hostesses for the February 3 meeting of the club.

Indiana high school sophomores, juniors and seniors are eligible to compete.

That Farmer-Quayle Conference

Dan Quayle ought to feel pretty good.

Farmers in this area, concerned about low prices for their production efforts, have met in Auburn and in other locations to decide a course of action. Across the nation, a series of tractor and implement "demonstrations" have been utilized to bring public and government attention to the farmers' plight. The ag men are proceeding cautiously, however, to avoid the taint of radicalism. And that is to their credit.

A meeting has been set for December 29 in Fort Wayne. Fourth District Congressman Dan Quayle has agreed to meet with area farmers for an hour and a half, it has been reported. Bob Ridge of Butler has apparently been instrumental in arranging the meeting.

Why should Dan Quayle feel good? Well, although political party affiliation might be a factor guiding Mr. Ridge, it would seem there is a more significant and encouraging factor.

At this time, Senator Birch Bayh, who has been in office for many years and considers himself a farmer, is touring the state of Indiana. If seniority counts in Congress (and it certainly does), then the veteran Senator would seem to be the likely choice of farmers, many of whom obviously have voted for him or he wouldn't be in office. Why pass Bayh? —unless there is a conflict in scheduling.

The answer lies in the fact that in only one year in office, Dan Quayle has stated views, expressed opinions, answe ed questions directly and without hesitation in such a way as to indicate true representation of the large majority views of voters in his district. He listens. He votes in accordance with what he says.

Perhaps Mr. Quayle has not "accomplished" anything, literally speaking, as far as changing the picture in Washington, D.C. But he has challenged the Washington scene persistently (did you ever hear Senator Bayh say Congress and its staff cost the taxpayers too much?). And Mr. Quayle's challenge against big government, government edict, government control and so on has given the Fourth District more representation in one year than it experienced for the past several years combined.

One of the comments by a farmer, reported elsewhere, was that the meeting in Fort Wayne was set up purposely to have Mr. Quayle "listen." That is a very significant comment. It reflects an unspoken recognition that Senator Bayh has not listened and does not listen to Hoosier voters. His recent visit to Auburn included a radio call-in show. During one 20-minute segment, only two questions were answered from callers. The remainder of that time, the Senator was "telling." That is hardly a good example of getting to know voters' thoughts. And if as much advance publicity were to be given about a call-in program for Mr. Quayle or freshman Senator Dick Lugar, it's a sure bet that more voters would participate in asking questions. However, their character is such that they would not think of asking for free radio time, as did Senator Bayh.

Ordinarily, the setting of a meeting of farmers with a member of Congress, under economic conditions as they exist today, would seem to be potentially embarrassing to that member of Congress. Mr. Quayle undoubtedly will have some "toughies" thrown at him at the get-together, and he certainly cannot be expected to have a satisfactory or pleasing answer, as a whole.

But the positive and bright side is that Mr. Quayle HAS been asked to meet with farmers despite his newspaper-business background. That means farmers, both Republican and Democrat, have recognized Mr. Quayle's forthrightnes and his total interest in all segments of society. He is not one to gain special legislative favors for one group if such favors will be harmful to another group. That speaks well of him after but one year in office.

Janice Ayers Heads Local 'March'

Janice Ayers, Saint Joe chairman for the St. Jude's Childrens Hospital March, has announced the solicitation will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 27 and 28. Door-to-door soliciting will be held that day and volunteers are sought to contact other residents in their block. Mrs. Ayers can be reached at 337-5172.

Cancer is the second largest killer of little children, second only to accidents. St. Jude's Hospital is the only research center where the sole purpose is to conquer childhood cancer and other death-dealing diseases that strike the young.

Research at St. Jude's has already provided answers that are saving children all over the world. The ultimate goal is to find the cause, prevention and cure for all the diseases that cut off a child's life.

Those who are willing and able to assist in soliciting are asked to contact Mrs. Ayers. The more workers, the less work for each solicitor. And other residents are asked to be ready with whatever amount of donation they can spare when they see a solicitor at the door December 27 or 28.

Carillon Given Spencerville Church

The Spencerville United Methodist Church is the recipient of a memorial gift of a Schulmerich Carillon. The "MagneBell II" Carillon was given in memory of "Doc" Clyde Baumgartner by his wife, Pauline, and friends of the Baumgartners. The late Dr. Baumgartner was a veterinarian in the Spencerville community and member of the Spencerville U. M. Church.

The carillon was installed December 12 and has been featuring a selection of four Christmas carols which play at noon and 6 p.m. daily. The installation also features a "Call to Worship" bell which plays at 9 a.m. each Sunday as the worship hour begins.

The "MagneBell" Carillon is an exclusive development of Schulmerich Carillons, Inc., Sellersville, Pa., the world's largest producer of carillons, bells, and chimes, with over ten thousand installations over the world. The instrument consists of two clock-controlled magnetic tape players with an audio-amplification system. The instrument is set to automatically play a predetermined number of carillon selections at chosen times of the day.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Committee, I want to express our sincere appreciation to you and all our other supporters in Saint Joe for your steadfast support of Right to Work.

With your financial assistance and active participation,, we've really made ourselves heard on Capitol Hill and in the state legislatures.

I know you're pleased with our many recent successes – especially the victories in Louisiana and Arkansas, the two dramatic defeats of the common situs picketing bill, and the scuttling of the phony "cam-reform" bill.

But Big Labor isn't about to give up now!

The misnamed Labor Law "Reform" bill that passed the U.S. House of Representatives on October 6 is just another example of their determination to increase their power.

That's why I'm writing for your continued suport at this critical time. Enclosed is a memo invoice made out in the same amount you contributed a year ago. Please be even more generous, if possible.

Sincerely,
Reed Larson

Guest Editorial

—from The Hoosier Farmer, December 1977.

A nationwide campaign to halt a federal move to dictate the size and ownership of private farm land has been launched by Farm Bureau.It is gaining momentum.

The problem is that the U.S. Interior Department has proposed far-reaching regulations on land using irrigation water from federal reclamation projects in 17 states. Among the rules are: (1) a 160-acre limitation, (2) residency requirements, (3) types of ownership, (4) leasing restrictions, and (5) disposition of so-called excess land (that in excess of 160 acres).

The Interior Department's action came as a result of a court ruling in a case filed by a land reform group.

The proposals are seen by Farm Bureau as the first step to government land use control. This is why the outcome of this move is so important to Indiana farmers. If it can be done in the West under one guise, then it could be done here later under another.

General feeling of the agricultural community as well as Farm Bureau is that it is counter-productive and un-American to start enforcing an antiquated law first passed in 1902, limiting the family farmer to owning and/or leasing 160 acres, and mandating that owner live within 50 miles of his farm.

Farmers feel strongly that Congress should review the matter, and take action to come up with a modern answer to this ridiculous problem.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I see where outhouses are coming back in style. There's one west of Saint Joe and it's sorta fancy—it has windows, and it's painted black. It's located in a funny place, though —right next to the road.

Virginia Duke was tormenting Postmaster George Armstrong Wednesday when I went in the post office. She asked me, "Why don't you put something good about me in the paper to fill up the space?" I imagine she had noticed the blank spaces in the last issue due to my strained back toward the end of last week, and I had to cut corners to get the paper out.

I asked her, "Well, what's good about you?"

The answer, "Well—I'm cute and kinda pretty."

—That she is.

—And that fills up some of the space.

Gerry Mansfield stopped in last week during a visit home. He works and resides in Atlanta, Georgia. He told of a trip to an island 12 miles off the Argentina coast where the wind blows at 30 miles an hour constantly and it gets hot during the day. Thus there are no insects. There also is no vegetation to speak of. The water is so clear that you can see coral in water over 100 feet deep. He said it's a nice place to visit—once.

Steve Monroe stopped in to remind me to mention the rescue of a deer by the Spencerville and Saint Joe fire departments. A call came from the conservation officer that a deer had gone through the ice near the Spencerville dam. Spencerville firemen answered after a call to Saint Joe was cancelled but Jim Miller and John Sechler from Saint Joe went anyhow. Butch Coburn remained at the fire hall in case of further need for assistance.

I understand the conservation officer went through the ice, too. Shivering, he went to his car while the rescuers used a rope and crawled to the deer to wrap the rope around the floundering animal. They managed to rescue the deer and released it.

Steve thought it was a pretty good story to tell, efforts by the firemen to save a helpless deer. I agree. And there it is.

— Remember, this is LAST week's paper you're reading — due to the hassle accompanying observance of the New Year.

TO THE EDITOR—

United States Senate
December 8, 1977

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for sharing with me a copy of the editorial on the Social Security system which appeared recently in the Saint Joe News.

I was particularly impressed by your recognition of the fact that increasing contributions to the Social Security fund by business and industry results in increased costs to the consumer. It is surprising to me how many persons believe that by making employers pay more into the fund, the system (in some mysterious fashion) costs less money. As you point out, the increase is always paid by the average citizen through higher costs of goods and services provided by employers.

Thanks again for providing me with a copy of your editorial.

It is always gratifying to hear from those who are addressing, in a forthright and perceptive way, the critical issues now facing all Americans.

Sincerely,
Dick Lugar

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I've enclosed your new sustaining member card for the 1978 year from the Republican National Committee.

As you'll notice, your card carries a special number, 100414, which I've reserved in your name for your use throughout the year. As soon as you can send me your renewal, I will cancel your old card and officially register you as a 1978 active sustaining member.

The whole success of our campaign program for this critical election year is built around you and our other loyal sustaining members, so I urge you to send in your 1978 dues as soon as possible.

I hesitate to suggest a specific amount, Mr. Haberkorn, but as a valued and important sustaining member of our committee, I hope you will consider sending a $10 or $15 or even a $20 contribution today in the enclosed envelope.

People are alarmed at the reckless and radical changes being made by Mr. Carter to our foreign policy and national defense such as the troop pull-out from Korea, cancellation of the B-1 bomber, and severe cutbacks in the defense budget.

But beyond that, people are just plain sick and tired of the Democrats' vicious "tax and spend" policies. And now their latest scheme is Mr. Carter's new energy bill.

I can remember when Mr. Carter made his campaign promise not to raise taxes for working people, especially lower and middle income groups. Yet now he's proposed taxes on energy which will cost Americans over $50 billion a year!

Right now our goal is to raise the largest campaign budget in our history. That's what it will take to defeat these powerful, liberal Democrats across the board.

For example, we must provide a minimum of $1.2 billion for 33 Senate races; $2 million for 36 governorships; $2.4 million for 200 Congressional races; and a special budget of $3 million for nearly 3,000 state legislative races.

In 1976, of the $16.6 million contributed by just 24 labor unions, over 97% was given to the Democrats. So that's what Republicans are up against.

Whatever amount you finally decide to send, please let me hear from you as soon as possible. I need to let our candidates know exactly how much financial support they can expect from us.

Sincerely,
Bill Brock

Lady Blazers Win Tourney

—by The Editor

Super Sunda Obendorf netted 26 points against East Noble in the Eastside Lady Blazers' first game Thursday night of the DeKalb Cenutral Invitational Tourney. Despite an injured ankle not yet fully recovered, she scored 9 field goals and 8 free throws.

The Lady Blazers won 58-43.

East Noble, obviously aware of top-scorer Lisa Johnson as the "big gun" in previous Blazer games, concentrated on defensive maneuvers to hold Lithe Lisa in check. In so doing, they fell victims to Coach Bob Brown's counter-move using a set play which found Sunda wide open under the net time after time.

The Lady Blazers led 20-16 at the quarter, 35-30 at the half and 45-34 at three quarters. The East Noble lasses scored only 13 points the second half.

In the championship game against Garrett, The Blazers' defensive strength was once again obvious as the Railroaderettes never scored in double figures in any period. They managed 4, 6, 4 and 8 points in the first through fourth periods.

Meanwhile, Lithe Lisa set the pace once again in scoring, getting 8 fielders and 9 free throws for 25 points. Adorable Amy Hampel looped in 6 fielders for 12 points.

Curvy Connie Oberlin had 9 points in each of the games and played her usual all-out-effort game. She is a battler under the boards.

But perhaps the most telling influence in both wins was the defensive play of Jo Baughman. Though scoring only one field goal in the first game though having several shots at the basket as East Noble concentrated on Lisa, Runt made up for it with consistent defensive efforts. In the final quarter, she broke up several possible break away layups by East Noble, knocking the ball away from a potential scorer on the drivein.

In the East Noble game, the Blazers outscored their opponents by only one field goal. The big spread in the score came at the free throw line where the Lady Blazers had a 16-3 advantage.

Against Garrett, it was a 20-9 field goal advantage for the Lady Blazers and 19-4 at the free throw line.

Eastside by far had the largest fan representation at the tourney.

The opening tournament game was won by Garrett 47-43 43 over the host school. The DeKalb Baronesses had opened the game with an 8-0 lead. But Garrett kept picking away and finally took the lead just before the final buzzer. They actually had only a 1-point lead but desperation fouls by DeKalb Central brought free throw opportunities which the Garrett team scored on.

In the consolation game, East Noble downed DeKalb Central 65-45.

An unfortunate oddity occurred late in the championship game. When the Garrett coach protested a call against one of his players, he stood up and hollered that it should have been the other way. One official promptly called a technical foul. The coach again protested and the official signaled another technical. The coach then kicked his chair and the other official signaled a third technical. And the coach was ordered to leave the gym. Lisa then had something like 8 free throw attempts as a result of the personal foul and the technicals.

The Garrett coach really did not react in an obnoxious manner. He simply protested loudly. It would appear that some consideration could have been given by the officials to the coach's situation—his team was 'way behind, and any questionable call just added to his frustration. One technical would have been enough; the following technicals were the coach's reaction to the previous calls.

However, the officials are supposed to keep coaches "under control" so the two officials involved were doing what their job called for, "technically." A news release the past few days indicates the ISHAA has instructed basketball officials to strictly enforce a rule that prohibits a coach from getting on his feet except for a time out or quarter break. The purpose is to keep games under control and thus keep spectators under control. But such a drastic measure overlooks two important elements: (1) some coaches add color to a game by their antics (ala Jim Roush when he coached Eastside in the 1960's); (2) the rule ignores the emotional involvement of human beings, including coaches, and sometimes that involvement involves rising to one's feet. The rule is as ridiculous as passing one to prohibit the fans from coming to their feet.

The Garrett coach did not deserve to be ordered from the gym. His actions were normal and he should have been allowed to cool off. The lack of jeering or taunts aimed at the Garrett coach by Eastside fans indicated that they did not believe he deserved the punishment dealt by the officials.

Sometimes technicals get too technical.

Sen. Curtis Seeks Protection Of Workers' Freedom Of Choice

Dear Friend:

What will happen to your business . . . your job . . . your state and local taxes . . .

What will happen to you . . . your family's safety . . . and our American way of life if the czars of organized labor have their way in the 95th Congress?

These are important questions. That's why I'm enclosing your personal questionnaire and asking you to return it immediately. IT'S VITAL THAT YOU DO.

And will you also send the enclosed postcards to your U.S. Senators?

You see, the big Labor bosses did enough lobbying and arm-twisting to win a huge legislative victory in the House of Representatives this October.

They forced H.R. 8410, their phony labor law "reform" bill, through the House.

H.R. 8410 — and its Senate counterpart, S. 1883 — is anything BUT reform. It is a shameless attempt by Big Labor to seize more power.

The big union bosses poured more than $35 million into political election campaigns in 1976.

But with hundreds of thousands of cards and letters, we've upset their power grabs in the 95th Congress. We've stalled their steamroller — so far.

You and I know, however, that the union bosses aren't about to give up.

They've put their steamroller back on the track. They're determined to cash in on their political debts — REGARDLESS OF HOW THIS AFFECTS YOU, your family, or your friends and neighbors.

They want to impose compulsory unionism on more than 12 million state and local government employees. With public employees under union control, ruthless union officials would have almost unlimited power!

The union bosses still want to pass a common situs picketing bill to legalize secondary boycotts in the construction industry.

And they want to destroy all state Right To Work laws by repealing Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

TO THE UNION BOSSES, S. 1883 IS THE FIRST STEP. Big Labor is counting on pushing S. 1883 through Congress, to gain the momentum they need to achieve their other legislative goals.

What's so bad about S. 1883? Why is it so urgent that you and I take action?

The Big Unions and their Congressional allies who pushed its companion bill, H.R. 8410, through the House call it "Labor Reform."

But what this bill really is, is pushbutton unionism. And you and I know that's not "Labor Reform."

S. 1883 would place new pressures on employers — blackmailing them into signing COMPULSORY UNIONISM contracts. Any employer who balked at forcing his employees into a union would risk penalties imposed by government edict.

This pushbutton unionism bill, if passed by the Senate, will . . .

—Push hundreds of thousands of workers into Big Unions, even though they may not want to join unions. . .

—Force thousands of employers, big and small, to cave in to Big Labor's demand for compulsory unionism. . .

—Allow Jimmy Carter to appoint 2 more union patsies to the National Labor Relations Board — 2 new members who will support the Big Labor bosses. . .

—Give Big Labor the boost it needs for its ultimate goal — abolition of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

AFL-CIO President George Meany openly brags that S. 1883 would pave the way for other destructive measures — including the repeal of 14(b) and the wiping out of all state Right To Work laws!

That's why I'm writing to you on behalf of the National Right To Work Committee. Your help is urgently needed.

We must stop Big Labor's pushbutton unionism bill, just as we stopped their earlier power grabs.

We completely smashed their attempts to abolish Arkansas's Right To Work law last fall . . . to legalize common situs picketing in 1975 and 1977 . . . and to gain even more political power through phony "campaign reform" last August.

Just like Big Labor had for its successful House fight, the National Right To Work Committee must raise an $800,000 war chest to defeat pushbutton unionism in the Senate.

And unlike Big Labor, our funds come entirely from the VOLUNTARY contributions of Americans who care about freedom.

No matter how much you send, it will be warmly and gratefully received. I assure that your contribution is critical in the fight to defeat S. 1883.

. . . remember this:

If S. 1883 becomes law, hundreds of thousands of hard-working Americans will be forced into Big Unions against their will.

And the Big Union bosses will be a giant step closer to abolishing Right To Work and gaining virtually unlimited power.

Sincerely,
Carl T. Curtis
United States Senator

Readers who may wish to contribute toward the effort to protect freedom of choice in the nation's working force can do so by sending their contributions to: National Right To Work Committee, 8316 Arlington Boulevard, Fairfax, Virginia 22031. Checks should be made out to "National Right To Work Committee."

To illustrate the one sided and unrepresentative power wielded by big union leadership, the current coal strike has shut down not only union mines but also non-union mines. YET, MORE THAN HALF THE NATION'S COAL PRODUCTION COMES FROM NON-UNION MINES!

Another unfair factor—LESS THAN 25% OF THE NATION'S TOTAL WORKING FORCE BELONG TO UNIONS—YET UNION STRIKES ARE ALLOWED TO CRIPPLE OUR ECONOMIC EFFORTS YEAR AFTER YEAR.

In addition to donations, the effort to block the Big Union power play can be helped tremendously if citizens send a post card or letter to either of Indiana's two Senators. Just say, "Dear Senator: I am opposed to S. 1883 or any similar legislation which promotes compulsory union membership. (signed). . . . . "

The address for both Senator Richard Lugar and Senator Birch Bayh is: Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Our Fourth District Representative, Dan Quayle, has already voted against compulsory unionism in the House, but the House bill passed, as noted in Senator Curtis' letter. —Ed.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

There were some cars at the fire hall Tuesday and I wasn't sure if the town board was meeting that night or the next Monday. I went over and found out that there was a first aid training session going on with Fred Ravle and Chuck Laux giving some pointers on aid to a heart attack victim. The oxygen unit was being used in the training session.

Others in the group were Rich Gfeller, Tony Beard, Dave Yates and Jim Norris. Jim was serving the trainees as the "victim" when I entered. I jokingly asked, "Where'd you get the dummy?" (manequins are often used in training courses). The others laughed, but Jim didn't appear to think it was funny; he usually has a comeback of some sort in such situations, but remained silent this time. Maybe it was the oxygen.

Anyhow, despite whatever disagreement or dissatisfaction I may feel or have felt in recent years about fire department-town board intermixing of affairs, it was reassuring to know as I left the training session that certain people are giving their time to learn techniques which will be a benefit to others in the community in emergency situations.

I think it's very thoughtful of Janice Ayers and son, Doug, and Missy Alday to go out in the cold of winter to collect funds for children's diseases research.

Their volunteer "do it yourself" participation is a welcome relief from the "let government do it" attitudes seen so often in today's society. It's such so-called "little people" doing that sort of thing which is a true indication of what is meant by "the American way," of people helping themselves and thus getting more out of their money and their own efforts.

As a small token of appreciation, in behalf of the Saint Joe community, I believe I'll send them the paper for a year, "on the house."

Esther Bowman, a Saint Joe "senior citizen" who now resides at Meadowhaven in Butler, sends a note of thanks for the Christmas gift she received from her "home" church, Saint Mark at Saint Joe. She says in part:

" I am so grateful to the church and I am so glad it is from my old home, Saint Joe. It means much to me to remember the members now. . . . I am now 95 years old."

Mrs. Bowman and her late husband, "Deac," resided in a house where Knisely Branch Bank is now located. In "the good old days," the Bowman home was the center of many social activities, from what some of the other old-timers have told me in the past.

Residents Give For Kids

Residents of Saint Joe responded recently to a solicitation of funds for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. The amount given was $79.41, according to Janice Ayers who was Saint Joe chairman for the drive.

"We had a great response and the money raised was for a great cause. We have been able to show that Saint Joe is interested in St. Jude's work in children's diseases and that the progress made in Memphis benefits children all over the world," Mrs. Ayers said.

The door to door solicitation was done with only two other volunteers, Doug Ayers who was possibly "drafted" and Missy Alday who didn't let her pregnancy interfere with helping a worthy cause.

Lady Blazers Win 10th

The Lady Blazers downed Woodlan Wednesday at Butler by a 65-23 score.

Connie led scoring with 20 points despite Woodlan's taller defenders. Lisa had 18, Amy 15 and Sunda 12.

As the Lady Blazers go into the ACAC tourney Monday, they have a 10-0 won-lost record. They have their work cut out for them in Monday's game as they face the talented Leo Lionesses.

From the Editor's Desk....

Dr. Stauderman's Insight

One of the most solid and sound presentations about current homosexual problems appeared in the July 13, 1977, issue of "The Lutheran."

Dr. Albert P. Stauderman is editor of the widely-circulated publication and he has often presented thoughts based on Christian principles, relating them to contemporary living. His writings reflect "telling it like it is." He is tolerant, but only to the point where tolerance is in conflict with Christian teachings and the Bible itself.

The article reads as follows:

Some time in the near future our church may have to take a formal position about privileges that are being demanded by homosexuals. While this scarcely seems a doctrinal issue worthy of the church's official attention, it has been pushed to the fore by the homosexuals themselves. As part of the sexual obsession which seems to rule our society, some of them have been calling for public acceptance of what many regard as a perverted lifestyle.

There's little dispute about the fact that homosexuals can be children of God as well as anyone else. They have every right to worship and some of them have probably served the church in noble capacities. A distinction is quite properly made between those who have a homosexual inclination or leaning which they resist and those who openly display homosexual behavior. One who recognizes unnatural desires can always choose chastity and celibacy. Only when such desires are flaunted in public with the demand that they be approved as an acceptable way of life do they offend society.

There's considerable dispute about whether or not homosexuals and lesbians are the product of a quirk of nature which has denied them normal sexuality or whether their condition is a matter of choice. If the latter, it can be corrected. In either case, it does not fit into the biblical norm. As a basis for procreation and the maintenance of family life, God made human beings male and female. And Paul warns that no homosexual will inherit the kingdom of God.

Our church now has a brief statement adopted in 1970 to the effect that homosexuals are sinners like other sinners and that their behavior in private is not a reason for police action. Unfortunately, such brevity evades basic questions of morality, sin and judgment. The statement also calls for understanding and justice for homosexuals. This affirms their "civil rights."

However, parents and others responsible for community standards and for the upbringing of children also have rights. They must make moral judgments about what is decent and what is not. They have a duty to protect children from exposure to flagrant examples of unsatisfactory lifestyles. If this bars avowed homosexuals from some teaching and leadership positions and from the pulpit, it's a burden they will have to bear.

Happiness Is...

PERSISTENCE

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

The world was against him, but he kept on. Everybody laughed at him, his helpers turned on him, his crew mutinied, but he kept on. And every day Christopher Columbus entered in his ship's log, "Yesterday we sailed due west, which was our course."

He wanted to find the northwest passage to India as a short cut for commerce. But fortune held something else for him. Another might find quicker routes, but he, over-riding the rage of men and the battle of angry waters, found something better than he sought.

America, four and a half centuries later, has plenty of place for us. But it means holding tight when things hang hard and to continue to sail steadily.

Columbus did not get what he set out for, but he found a new world. No telling what reward is waiting for us. It may not be what we are seeking. It may be a whole new world.

Happiness is . . . persistence.

—that Marine Private First Class David Stafford of Auburn recently completed the Basic Automotive Mechanic Course at Camp Lejenue, North Carolina.

—that the Indiana State Highway Commission issued a news release December totaling five pages. The release was about the presumably typical day of the driver of a snow plow-sand scatterer truck driver in Marion County. The release was sent to all newspapers and perhaps radio and TV stations in the state. Meanwhile, Governor Otis Bowen and others are talking about a 3-cent increase in the state per-gallon tax. The state is reportedly 50% behind in expenditures for highway upkeep due to lack of funds.

—that two Democrats, State Representative Marilyn Schultz of Bloomington and State Senator Wayne Townsend of Hartford City, have announced they will introduce a new school funding formula in the current session of the Indiana General Assembly. They say the formula is designed to distribute a portion of the state's surplus to the public schools in order to prevent a property tax increase. A reported $400-plus million surplus is said by some to be one-third that much and using the surplus for specific and permanent programs would bring the need for more taxes when the surplus is depleted.

—that the DeKalb County spelling bee, sponsored by the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette, will be held at the Butler Elementary School cafetorium Tuesday, April 11, at 7:30 p.m. Charles Hampel, a member of the faculty at Butler, is chairman of the local contest.

—that Sarah Smith of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital recently.

—that Indiana unemployment insurance claims rose 2,796 last week to a total of 65,530.

—that the state GOP committee will hold a district meeting in Evansville Wednesday, January 11. The first 30 minutes will be devoted to open public comment.

—that Mark and Melanie Strong are parents of a son born December 26.

—that near 500 Hoosiers are expected to attend the 59th annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation January 8-12 in Houston, Texas.

—that Indiana's Medicaid payments to recipients were 99% correct, April through September 1976, according to Wayne Stanton, State Welfare Director.

—that a "town meeting" will be held January 10 at 6:30 p.m. at Immaculate Conception Parish Hall in Auburn to discuss: "what are older citizens thinking about their own lives, what services do they need, how can they be helped to lead more fruitful rewarding lives, and what can the community do to help?" However, there are no statistics given to indicate that a large segment of the elderly are "needy" or that as vast a program is justified for the nine-county Northeast Area III Council On Aging, Inc.

Dorothy Lepper provided The News with a list of 4-H fair auction supporters several weeks ago. But circumstances, including just plain forgetfulness, prevented publication of the list.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Lakeland smothered the DeKalb Eastside Blazers Friday night 89-37. The locals just never were in the game, quarter scores being 24-8, 45-14 and 65-28. The only consolation was in the knowledge that Lakeland is among the top-rated teams in the state.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

The board met December 20 with Charles Bloom giving devotions, reading about the birth of Christ from Luke 2. He also read Normain Vincent Peale's "Shoe-maker's Dream." He led prayer and the pledge to the flag.

Due to bad weather, Family Night was cancelled and not rescheduled.

Carl Deihl, chairman of the membership drive, presented plans which were approved. The drive will start with a buffet meal February 2 and 6:30 p.m. and will end February 20.

March 13 is the District II membership recognition meeting.

The executive board will meet January 16 at 7 p.m. The co-op annual meeting will be held January 21 at 7:30 p.m. at DeKalb Central High School.

January 15 is the deadline for reservations for the women's convention in Indianapolis. Contact township leaders or Mrs. Francis Nelson in Butler.

District II Fieldman David Hess told about the Marketing Advisory Service. He noted that drug withdrawal in animals could be very costly. He advised reading labels on drugs and taking extra precautions before selling animals after drug use.

Francis Nelson has been named delegate on the National Resolutions Committee by the state convention.

Adeline Stucky will have devotions in January.

Sen. Bayh's Deception About Joint Restroom Use By Women, Men

—By The Editor

When Senator Birch Bayh was in Auburn a few weeks ago and was on WIFF-radio of Auburn on a call-in program, one of the questions asked by Jim Kroemer of the Auburn Evening Star was, "Do you favor or oppose lengthening the time period in which two-thirds of the states must ratify the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA)?"

Senator Bayh didn't answer the question. He exercised his usual expertise in avoiding a direct answer. He spoke at length on his concern that the debate over a delay would divert attention from the ERA itself. In a way, what he said he feared about ERA deliberations was exactly what he himself was doing in failing to answer Mr. Kroemer's question—diverting attention.

But that circumstance isn't the reason for this writing.

The reason is: during Senator Bayh's evasive comments, he directed attention toward the opponents of ERA. And he said that the opponents were using "scare tactics" to gain support. Specifically, he said that ERA opponents are saying passage of the amendment will lead to use of the same restroom facilities by both men and women. He may even have used the word "ridiculous" to describe what he considers "scare tactics."

How wrong the Senator is can be noted in a United Press International (UPI) news release appearing in daily newspapers last week across the nation. The story reads:

"The new (New York) administration taking over New York's City Hall has vowed to open the doors of government to everyone. It started Tuesday with the doors of a men's room.

" 'This facility is now being used by men and women,' reads the sign on the men's room near the council president's office. 'Please determine whether it is being used before entering it. Thank you.'

"The 'person's' room was the idea of City Council President Carol Bellamy, who herself shattered precedent last November as the first female elected to city-wide office here.

"The change brought grumblings from the mostly male press corps stationed in the 165-year-old building, but a spokeswoman for the new council president said it could have been worse for them.

" 'We could have just made it a ladies' room, but then that would have inconvenienced the men,' she said. "So we're trying this to see how it works.'

Thus, Senator Bayh, and any other pro-Era'ers who poohpooh the idea of joint restroom use by men and women are shown to be wrong. IN FACT, WE DON'T EVEN NEED THE ERA TO INSTITUTE JOINT USE OF RESTROOM FACILITIES. It's already being instituted—by a woman.

Two factors stand out:

(1) New York City has been under liberal Republican or Democrat mayors for the past several years during which time the city instituted massive welfare programs, including retirement pensions, leading to a bankrupt city two years ago;

(2) The joint restroom policy has been instituted by a woman despite the presence of a majority of men in city hall.

This is not a man vs woman in government point I'm trying to make. Rather, it is the misleading, soothing, reassuring platitudes uttered by such as Senator Bayh in seeking to change our society. It is the fact that Senator Bayh does not reflect the will of the majority of Hoosiers when he "rides the fence" on the matter of ERA and fails to answer a legitimate question with a "yes" or "no" and then explain his answer.

Senator Bayh doesn't "listen" to the people; he tells the people. Though his recent visit in Indiana was announced as being an opportunity to find out what his constituents were thinking, the purpose appears to have been exactly the opposite. To illustrate: during a 20-minute period of the WIFF call-in program, only two calls were taken by the Senator on the telephone; the remainder of the time was used by the Senator to put forth HIS views and make statements of high-sounding principles which a person could hardly take exception to.

So, as the Senator now attempts to take credit for instituting a "gasohol" program to utilize grain in refining of motor fuel thus reducing a bit our dependency on foreign oil imports, as the Senator proposes legislation to assist "displaced women" because of death or divorce, as he helps to discourage a new system of computerized checking of income tax matters by the Internal Revenue Service because such a program is an "invasion of privacy," keep in mind that the Senator has abortionists and anti-abortionists thinking he is on their side, he has strong gun-control and anti-gun-control groups thinking he is on their side, he has been instrumental in the adoption of the last four Constitutional amendments (which haven't improved our society to any noticeable degree) and now proposes another one to make the election of the President of the United States by direct popular vote, that he has supported or proposed virtually all of the social welfare programs now in existence creating the virtually uncontrolled bureaucracy prevalent in the United States today.

But first of all for the present, keep in mind that just a few weeks ago Senator Bayh made anti-ERA men and women out to be radicals deceiving the public in expressing their fears about joint men-women use of rest rooms. And what he termed "ridiculous" is now happening in New York City.

That's how far down the road we are to social revolution, if you ask me—and it has come because of the extreme "rights" movement—civil rights, human rights, women's rights, child rights, minority rights and so on. And one of the staunchest supporters of programs bringing these social changes has been Indiana Senator Birch Bayh whose social welfare voting record is far from representative of Indiana voters' opinions and ideas.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Reproduction in last week's issue of the paper was not too good. The main reason is that the cold weather makes metal contract, and so there isn't as much "squeeze" between type and newsprint. In average winter weather, the problem is not too noticeable. But when it gets bitter cold and windy, the problem is very evident.

Another reason is that the tympan paper was worn and torn. That's the paper on the press that gives the "squeeze."

That item about the attorney general's ruling on the public's right to inspect claims, contracts, attend school board meetings, and so on—it puzzles me. Why did such a ruling have to be made? Since when WEREN'T we entitled to inspect public records???

I'm not criticizing Mr. Sendak; I know from past experience that he has both feet on the ground. A ruling was made because a State Representative asked for the Attorney General's opinion. So the question is, why did State Representative Kenneth C. Snider (D-Decker) need an official opinion in matters which are basic in our society—or at least I thought they were.

Perhaps this illustrates how little we know about our rights as taxpayers and how that ignorance has been nurtured by the growth of government into the taxpayers' keeper.

Things are all twisted around.

Karen Randol was having a refreshing conversation with Betty Brown outside the post office last Friday. It was refreshing for me, that is—because Karen was wearing a short skirt—not too short—but short enough to be like a refreshing spring breeze, at the sight of nylon-clad legs.

Joey Says Thanks

Hello Everyone!

I'm not able to write, but "Mawmaw" will write for me. I'll tell her what to say. Okay?

My name is Joseph Michael Robinson, but everyone calls me "Joey" and I am nine years old.

They say I was born with a heart defect. That's why I can't romp and play like other kids. But I go to the School For the Handicapped and enjoy being with the other kids and love my teachers very much.

I will have open heart surgery this spring at Riley Hospital, then I'll feel much better.

My Mommie's name is Becky and she likes to bowl (they say she is pretty good). Do you know what the bowlers of DeKalb County did? They had a Benefit Tourney to raise money to help with the expenses of my operation. They sure know how to make a fellow feel good.

My Daddy is Lynn Robinson. He is a DeKalb County Police Department Deputy. Did you now that all the police departments in DeKalb County had a basketball tourney to raise money to help me? Those men really worked hard. They are not used to running up and down a gym floor, but they made it! Some people say policemen are "hard-hearted." Don't you believe it. Just ask ME!!

I want to thank ALL the people who bowled to help me. And thank you to ALL the policemen in DeKalb County (some didn't get to play ball, they had to work to protect us while the games were being played).

There are other people too who have helped, but too many to tell about in a letter. I say THANKS to all of you.

My family says I should say, "God bless you, everyone"!!

Love and kisses,

Joey Robinson

Leo Downs Lady Blazers

Tall basketball players don't indicate a good basketball team—except when they're from Leo.

In addition to one outstanding shooter, the Lions have three tall gals who are also capable all-around players, especially one by name of Sue Miller.

Because of these factors, the Lady Blazers of DeKalb Eastside were eliminated in the opening game of the ACAC girls basketball tourney at Leo Monday night. The score was 52-40.

Down 15-8 at the end of the first quarter, the Lady Blazers pulled up to 25-22 at the half, with Lithe Lisa Johnson leading the attack. The second half included telling domination of the boards by Leo. On several occasions when Eastside pulled up to within 5 points and it appeared just one field goal could turn the tide, a turnover and a basket for Leo eliminated that possibility. The turning point in the second half, in the opinion of coach Bob Brown, was a basket by Leo, a foul on the play by Eastside, and another basket by Leo on the rebound of the missed free throw.

Leo's outstanding defense, centering on their height advantage, effectively stopped Curvy Connie Oberlin many times as she turned to find a mass of arms preventing or blocking her shots. Super Sunda Obendorf was bottled up by Leo's tight defense and did not reach her usual scoring potential. Adorable Amy Hampel tired in the second half and missed on some of her specialty shots, a looping port-side one-hander. Jo "Runt" Baughman was the defensive leader as usual.

The Lady Blazers have another shot at Leo Monday night in a regular-schedule encounter at Eastside.

The Lady Blazers battled until the end of the game. Coach Brown praised their efforts and gave tribute to the Leo girls in stating, "They're good and they deserve their fourth ranking in the state." The Lady Blazers were ranked 20th.

A new feature for indoor gardeners— — —

African violets are perhaps one of the most widely grown flowering house plants in our nation. Yet, they are also probably one of the most feared. For years we have been taught that they are notoriously suicidal. This is not true. They can be grown successfully with little effort . . . . if you know the secrets.

1. African violets do best in plastic pots.

2. Warm, shady, moist conditions are needed with a light soil mixture (3 parts peat, 1 part loam, 1 party sharp sandy soil).

3. Keep them out of drafts.

4. When watering, use water at room temperature or above.

5. Avoid getting water on the leaves. This may cause yellow spots.

These natives of South Africa can grow and bloom for years with these simple rules in mind. For blooms the key word is "light." They can even flourish producing white, violet, pink, coral, blue, purple or green flowers in artificial light if there is enough of it.

Don't be afraid. You can grow beautiful African violets. Just relax and let them grow.

Happiness Is...

INFLUENCE

by Don B Ilock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Few of us remember the old gas lamps that used to light our streets. Nor do we recall the fellow who used to make his rounds at dusk, lighting them. But Sir Harry Lauder remembers.

He remembers one lamplighter in particular. He used to watch the old man moving along in the gathering shadows, leaving a streak of light behind him.

Sir Harry says that even when he was so small that his little legs could not move fast enough to keep up with the lamplighter, he could always tell exactly where he was by the trail of light he had left behind him.

That is true all the way through life. People can tell just about where we are, just about how far we have gone, and just about how much work we have done, by the streak of light — or darkness — we leave behind us as we go.

Happiness is . . . influence.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

I&M Plans Experiment In Water Heater Demand

Indiana & Michigan Electric Company has filed with the Public Service Commission of Indiana for an experimental program which "may have the potential of helping to stabilize the cost of electricity," according to Jack Stark, executive vice-president of I&M in Fort Wayne.

"The experiment will test the value to the company and its customers of controlling the operation of electric water heating equipment," he said.

The program will involve 120 homes. From its operations center in Fort Wayne, I&M will control the customers' water heating equipment through the use of radio signals that will activate a special control unit in each of the homes being tested.

Stark said, "By cycling the equipment off and on for varying lengths of time, we will be able to determine the effect of the company's peak load and ascertain the optimum mode of operations. An important part of the experiment will be an appraisal of customer acceptance of cyclical control of water heating equipment. The tests will be carried out at various times of the day and over the four seasons of the year."

At this time, no prediction can be made about the outcome of the experiment or its benefits. Stark said, however, "We feel this program has considerable potential for reducing electric demands and over the long term could mean a reduction in the need for additional generating capacity or other facilities on I&M's system. If successful, this could be another means of helping to stabilize the cost of electricity."

The information collected from the 120 homes will be evaluated to determine if the experiment has sufficient merit to extend it throughout I&M's service area.

The company will ask residential customers in the Fort Wayne area to participate on a voluntary basis. The customers must be served from the same distribution line in order to measure the results of the test.

The experiment is expected to get underway in about six months and will continue for at least one year. The estimated cost of the test program is $140 000 which includes special equipment and labor to conduct the experiment.

Stark pointed out that the test is another example of an experimental load-management program being conducted by I&M. Last year the utility installed electric-thermal storage systems in 18 homes throughout its service area. These special test furnaces, along with super insulated water heaters, store heat during off-peak hours of the night for use during on-peak hours the following day. The equipment operates on a special off-peak reduced rate.

New State Law, Lack Of Respect For Town And Lady Board Member Bring Powerless Situation For Local Citizenry

--By The Editor

An unusual situation exists in Saint Joe Town affairs at the present time.

Three years ago, Roger Coburn, Fred Rayle and Loretta Loy were elected to the town board by local citizens. Of the three, only Loretta remains in office. Roger moved out of town after a year or so, and Fred resigned in November of 1977, just a month and a half ago. No reason was given for his resignation, although a conflict of interests was evident in that he also is chief of the local fire department.

Loretta, along with "Butch" Coburn who replaced Roger, have continued to function with Loretta serving as acting president of the board.

But a strange action has been taken by Fred, evidenced Monday night at a board meeting, when he handed the board a piece of paper saying, "I have reconsidered and will withdraw my resignation. Fred Rayle."

There was no address to the town board, there was no date on the paper.

Loretta said the withdrawal of resignation was not valid, especially since the date Fred had stated in his resignation (November 30) had passed.

Butch was willing to reinstate Fred despite the improper procedures which had been followed in the attempted withdrawal of resignation.

Loretta has found herself in a position of responsibility but with little respect shown for it. As an example, when she notified Kirk Campbell, DeKalb County Democrat Committee chairman, that a vacancy existed on the town board and an appointment was needed under a new 1977 state law through the precinct committeeman, Joan Morr, her statement was challenged by Mr. Campbell who said no vacancy existed. He also questioned her authority to declare the vacancy. She had to state that she is acting board president and that a resignation had been made effective November 30, 1977. He already knew about the situation from conversation with Loretta on an earlier date. He did not know then about his responsibility under the new law nor did Joan know about her responsibility at that time.

The new law calls for a caucus of precinct committeemen under the chairmanship of the county party chairman to make appointments for such vacancies.

The law is ridiculous in this instance in that a vacancy on the Saint Joe town board is to be filled by appointment by the precinct committeeman who resides OUTSIDE the town. Because Concord Township is a single precinct and Saint Joe is within that precinct, town residents are subject to a decision from someone having no direct ties to the town and under the guidance and chairmanship of a county party chairman having no ties to the town.

Again, the law is ridiculous; an exception should have been made for such circumstances as Saint Joe is now faced with, to allow the town to provide for replacement of town officials within its own area of responsibility, as in the past.

The new law states: "Within ten (10) days of the occurrence of a vacancy in an office subject to the provisions of this chapter, the county chairman of the same political party as the officer who has vacated his office shall call a caucus. . ."

The vacancy occurred December 1. Both Loretta and town clerk-treasurer Emma Frank notified Mr. Carpenter of the vacancy. But no caucus was called. So, one of the provisions of the law was violated when no caucus was called in the specified time.

Then, when Loretta informed Mr. Carpenter a second time that there was a vacancy, he said he had been informed by the town's legal counsel (Mr. Thomas) that no vacancy existed. When Loretta made it clear that she had the authority to declare the vacancy, that there had been a resignation, Mr. Carpenter called the caucus for Monday, January 23. One individual, the Democrat precinct committeeman, Joan, not a resident of the town, will make the appointment.

Despite campaign statements about preserving "home rule," coming from both Democrats and Republicans in the Hoosier state, the state legislature last year DESTROYED "HOME RULE" FOR SAINT JOE with the new appointment system.

Adding to the burden of the situation borne by Loretta is the bold, brash, self-confident and arrogant statement by Mr. Rayle Monday night that not only would he be back on the board but he will be back as president of the board. When Loretta pointed out a fire department by law reportedly passed last year prohibiting the fire chief from serving as town board president, the reply was made that "that's no problem" or words to that effect.

Another conflict of interest is involved in the situation. Town attorney Brad Thomas advised Loretta that no motion was needed to accept Fred's resignation. All that was needed was to have the resignation read and recorded in the minutes by clerk-treasurer Emma Frank Later, it became evident to Loretta that Fred had been advised legally that he could withdraw his resignation if he wanted to. Thus, conflicting advice was given and added to the confusion.

If Mr. Rayle actually thinks he can jump in and jump out, so to speak, as he wishes when he wishes, and if the town attorney actually believes he has not had a conflict of interest in the matter, and if Mr. Carpenter actually believes he has acted and will act in the best interests of the town of Saint Joe, and if Mrs. Morr actually believes her choice of a replacement to fill the vacancy will be without influence from factors other than the best interests of the town of Saint Joe and its citizens, then there is reason to suspect that personalities are a greater factor than fairness. And if there are those who have doubts about our political system from time to time, this situation adds fuel to the fire.

Before anyone comes back at me for what is said here, keep in mind that I have in the past stated my disagreement with Loretta, starting back when she first went on the board. And I told her last week I didn't think the 6 p.m. meeting hour was a good thing. When she came back with, "What difference does it make to you; you never come to the meetings anyway," I shut up.

Nevertheless, the situation involving a resignation, conflicts of interests, and other related factors indicates an attitude of contempt for the public on the part of Mr. Rayle. And Loretta, the only elected member still on the board, is left standing alone. Her authority is questioned by an outsider, the vacancy on the board is doubted by an outsider, legal advice is given to her about recording a document and then someone else is told the document isn't valid, she tries to abide by the new state law and instead of cooperation to serve the best interests of the town, she gets challenges and contradictions.

In fairness to Mr. Thomas, it should be noted that he had suggested to Loretta last month that the board go ahead and fill the vacancy; it wouldn't cause any trouble. And it probably wouldn't have. But Loretta said it was going to be done according to the law. Then the runaround began.

I think the root of the problem is as I told her recently: she's a woman and that rankles a few males in the present situation. Unfortunately, this diverts attention from certain facts which ought to be remembered if the proper thing is to be done and the town is to benefit:

1. Mr. Rayle resigned from the town board; he did not resign as president. The resignation he submitted, to be effective November 30, 1977, was a complete removal from town board obligations;

2. Mr. Rayle's attempted withdrawal of his resignation after the effective date of his total resignation indicates a lack of understanding about proper procedure, or else he is purposely making an issue of the matter to harass the remaining board members.

3. Two conflicts of interest have existed, one that in Mr. Rayle's position as board president and as fire chief at the same time, and the other legal advice to the acting board president about the recording of the original resignation, and apparent contradictory advice to Mr. Rayle about the validity of the original resignation.

3. An almost complete lack of regard or respect for the citizens of the town and the total welfare of the town in the handling of town affairs.

Perhaps Fred is correct in stating that he will be back as board member and board president. But it will be due not to capability in conducting town affairs. Instead, it will be due to control of the situation by those outside the town corporation. For this we have the state legislature to "thank" for it is from that body last year's legislation came, changing entirely the procedure for filling vacancies in Saint Joe's government.

There are those who think that there should be a town ordinance prohibiting a fire department member from serving not only as board president but also from serving as town board member. That solution is understandable. However, it would prevent someone who is able to serve both the town and the fire department from such dual service. The problem is not in the jobs; it is in the individual. There ARE those who can serve both responsibilities properly and respectfully.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Wednesday afternoon, Charles Benjamin of New Haven stopped in to get some information about his great-grandfather, Thomas N. Wade, who died in 1916. We found the obituary in the February 24, 1916, issue. Mr. Wade was born in Pennsylvania in 1832 and came to this area around 1850 at the age of 17.

Mr. Benjamin's family background involves another familiar name in this area—Gee.

We had a pleasant conversation about his background. And while he was copying the obituary, I glanced at a few items in the columns of that February 24 issue. One said, "Peerless Egg Coal @ $3.60 ton from car. St. Joe Mills."

You read it right—$3.60 a ton for coal. Nowadays I throw that much in the stoker hopper EVERY DAY—and it ain't no ton!

Another ad for the News Office read: "50 sheets writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents."

Something for the young 'uns to think about when reading about those "impossible" prices—people were making a living from such prices. No, they didn't live as long on the average as we do now. But, without an abundance of cars, or lots of money, or TV, and so on, I think maybe they did more LIVING than we do now and they did it in a shorter life-span.

An item in the Evening Star about Roy Rogers having a triple heart bypass operation and doing "just fine" had an accompanying photo taken in 1977. His age isn't given, but I know he's no spring chicken. The newspaper photo and the couple of times I have seen him on TV in the last year or two indicate he is carrying his age very well. He just doesn't LOOK that old—whatever age he is.

In proofreading last week, I almost let a "goof" go through but thought maybe I'd better not. In the item about Coburn Corners and its programming, a missing "g" resulted in an announcement of a "sinspiration".

—On the other hand, maybe it would have helped attendance!

Now the high-falootin' language of modern business has infiltrated the armed forces.

Here is a paragraph from a recent announcement of an award to a serviceman:

"Having little prior experience in the field of non-appropriated fund activities and general mess operation and no established organizational base from which to work, he supervised the coordinated establishment of the Non-Appropriated Fund Audit Team and the Subsistence Advisory Team."

I think that means there was a little money left in the kitty and someone decided to buy what they could with it.

Blazers Win First

The victory-starved DeKalb Eastside Blazers won their first game of the current season last Friday night in a thriller, 43-42.

The Blazers led at the quarters, 9-4, 24-20 and 36-33.

The locals had three more field goals than Adams Central but five fewer free throws.

New 'Vacancy Law' Provisions

The new state law which has created some problems in filling a town board vacancy is titled "Senate Enrolled Act No. 77." It relates to vacancies "in all elective, county, township, city and town offices, except the offices of prosecuting attorney, clerk of the circuit court, and judge of any court..."

The eligible vacancies are to be filled through a caucus with the following eligibility rules:

"(a) be a member of the same political party as the officer who vacated the office which is to be filled; and

"(b) be the precinct committeeman of a precinct in which voters were eligible to vote for the officer who vacated the office which is to be filled; and

"(c) have been a precinct committeeman continuously for a period beginning thirty (30) days prior to the date the vacancy occurred until after the caucus has adjourned. . ."

The chairman of the caucus is the chairman of the county central committee of the same political party as the person who vacated the office which is to be filled.

The law provides that the call for a caucus from the county party chairman shall be in writing, state the name of the chairman, the purpose of the caucus, the date, time and place of the caucus and be sent by first class mail at least ten days prior to the caucus.

Another provision is that any candidate to fill a vacancy must file a declaration of candidacy with the chairman of the caucus at least 72 hours before the time set for the caucus.

There can be no vote cast by proxy. The vote shall be by secret ballot.

The result of the caucus shall be certified with the clerk of the circuit court within five days after the caucus.

Thus, the vacancy on the town board of Saint Joe will be filled at a caucus presided over by Kirk Carpenter, DeKalb County Democrat Central Committee chairman. The vote on a replacement will be done by one person, Joan Morr, who is Democrat precinct committeeman for Concord Township.

The caucus reportedly will be held at noon Monday, January 23.

50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. L. Howard Nusbaum of Spencerville will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, January 29, with an open house and reception from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Spencerville Community Building.

The couple married January 28, 1328, in Fort Wayne.

Mr. Nusbaum retired as head custodian of Leo High School May 10, 1973.

Mrs. Nusbaum retired from Universal Tool & Stamping in Butler with 25 years of service.

Hosts for the open house will be their six children, Mrs. Harry (Frances) Sheefel, Mrs. Wade (Dorothy) Fry and Ralph of Fort Wayne; Richard of Corunna; Ronald of Ossian; and Mrs. Blaine (Phyllis) Kimes, formerlyy of Leo now residing in Leesburg, Florida.

There are 18 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The children will host a dinner honoring their parents January 28 at Chaucer's Inn at Fort Wayne.

School Board

The eastern school board met Monday.

A question about the validity of a previous split vote to rehire high school principle Robert E. Williams was resolved with a 3-2 vote not to re-vote in the matter.

It was decided to hold only one board meeting in April, that date to be April 17, due to a conflict with the ISBA National Convention the first week in April.

Letters of resignation were accepted from Richard Smith and DeLana Peden.

Advertising for bids for two new school buses was authorized. School boards for many years have followed the policy of buying two new buses each year as replacements for older buses, thus distributing such costs evenly year by year instead of facing a mass replacement of buses and a massive item for one school year budget.

Faculty member Bill Peden, who teaches, serves as varsity basketball coach and also serves as athletic director, requested to be relieved of teaching duties. Due to drastically increased athletic activities under the equal rights movement, Mr. Peden informed the board that he often puts in 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. working days.

The board tabled the matter for further consideration due to Mr. Peden's value as a classroom teacher.

Board attorney H. Charles Winans was authorized to serve as legal representative for the school district in a suit filed by Dorothy Whitney after she was not rehired for the current year. The board did not renew her contract with the explanation that a decreasing enrollment trend justified a reduction in the faculty.

After a motion was not seconded to negotiate with the teacher negotiating team on the the salary of assistant baseball coach, the board passed a motion to set such salary at $475.

William W. Hill, III, was accepted as teacher replacement for Richard Smith.

No indication was made that any school board member planned to attend a January 31 ISBA legislative dinner in Indianapolis or a January 31 all-day special education meeting at Pokagon State Park.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met Monday at 6 p.m. at the fire hall.

Present were board members Lorreta Loy and Butch Coburn. Others present included Kenny Roberts, Bill Mansfield. Dave Yates, Fred Rayle and Joe McPherson. Clerk-treasurer Emma Frank was not present due to illness.

Mr. McPherson inquired concerning building codes in the town, planning to do some remodeling.

Mr. Rayle submitted a note indicating that he was withdrawing his resignation from the board, notice having been given the board several weeks ago to be effective November 30, 1977. Mrs. Loy, acting board president, said the withdrawal was not valid inasmuch as the effective date had passed. Mr. Rayle is reported to have said in no uncertain terms that he would be back on the board and would again be president. The method of filling town board vacancies was changed by the 1977 Indiana state legislature. Vacancies previously were filled through appointment by the remaining trustees. The new legislation removes such appointments from local government and turns it over to the county party chairman and precinct committeeman of the party to which a vacating member belonges.

A discussion was held on obtaining different legal counsel. Mrs. Loy said that a conflict of interest prevented Brad Thomas of Butler from serving the town. She said that it appeared the attorney had given advice to her and Mr. Rayle which was in conflict. The matter was tabled.

Mr. Coburn appeared to be willing to reinstate Mr. Rayle and to retain Mr. Thomas.

Vandals did considerable damage to the well pump at the local park. Repair is to be made when weather permits.

Mr. Winans advised against accepting any volunteer parents to ride school buses to help maintain discipline on the buses. The trend toward liability suits in more and more matters is a factor in not accepting parent volunteers, unless specific action might be taken at a later date due to new circumstances.

There is no admission charge. The presentation is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary of the Jack Brinker Post 409 in Leo.

The program is described as an opportunity to see and hear facts on the controversial issue related to Panama treaties.

A national security report was given by Freda Engle.

Rozie Mickelson had knife sets to show and sell. All sang "Happy Birthday" to Doris Ball and signed a get-well card for Ira Hook. Houseplant starts were sold to those desiring them.

The February 8 meeting will be at the home of Annabelle Culler with Judy Morrison as co-hostess. Members are to make a Valentine for their secret pal.

Happiness Is...

IMPROVEMENT

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

When they began the construction of subways years ago, it was an annoying process. The streets for miles were rendered impassable, chasms yawned up and down the city, and for many months there was great disturbance to traffic and great loss of business.

Now, however, all that is changed. The work is done with hardly a break in the surface, only a small shaft here and there for the quiet removal of dirt and entrance of steel girders and bags of cement, usually in the night. The city hardly realizes that a subway is under construction till, one fine day, it is invited to use it.

The entire process is illustrative of the way a wise man will make improvements in his life and effect changes in his thinking. Quietly, without fuss, he will be at work under the surface, removing what is useless and building up what is useful, until he has constructed a brand new and greatly improved method of existence or course of thought. The best things should be done in the best way.

Happiness is — improvement.

Cricket's Corner.....

A new feature for indoor gardeners— — —

With our present energy crunch, some of your more delicate house plants may suffer from a chill this winter. There is one house plant that will enjoy the cooler temperatures in your home: the Norfolk Island Pine. In adulthood these trees are frequently used as Christmas trees. But, as mere youths, they can be delightful members of your indoor garden family.

They do best with plenty of indirect light, but in the winter can be moved to an east or south window. Feed them every three or four months. The soil in which they are potted should resemble that used for African violets (50% peat and 50% vermiculite). Do not try to reproduce them at home since it is very difficult, rarely successful and never erect when done from cuttings.

When they become too large for a pot on a sill or table, transplant them into a larger pot to be set on the floor in a bright corner. At this size they are a refreshing addition to a dining or bed room.

Leo Downs Lady Blazers

The Lady Blazer fans probably for the most part attended Monday's game against Leo in anticipation of revenge for a defeat in the recent ACAC tourney. Their hopes were alive through the first half as Leo took a 27-22 lead at the half, after the Lady Blazers recorded a 14-12 first quarter lead.

But the roof fell in during the second half. With Lori Augustyniak finding the range, Leo sent the locals reeling with a 22-point third quarter while the Lady Blazers scored only 7. The locals came back in the final period to outscore 22-20. But that third period margin was too much to overcome.

Lori ended with 28 points. Lisa Johnson led East side with 19 points and Amy Hampel had 16.

Leo's height advantage was evident once again. But it is their all around ability in scoring and defense which prompted Eastside Coach Bob Brown to once again acknowledge that the Leo team is really good. It ranks fourth in the state.

The Lady Blazers have nothing to be ashamed of, however. Monday's loss was their first home loss in two years. And they never give up.

"The fellow who takes hold of a bull by the tail gets 60 to 70 times as much information as a fellow who hasn't."

Mark Twain

Experts all across America are predicting a major electric power shortage in the early 1980's.

That being the case, why are so many of the people who would be most affected by a power shortage so seemingly unconcerned?

We think Mark Twain summarized the answer to that in his little statement about the bull.

You see, at the power company, we're responsible for supplying you power now and in the future. We have that bull right by the tail.

And we know that demand for electricity is increasing faster than supply.

We also know that it takes 6 to 10 years to build a power plant, at least two years of which are spent in getting permits and licenses.

Some people believe that conservation will bail us out. But the truth is, even with conservation, we must build more power plants to see us through the years ahead.

We need your support and understanding. Because the time to face up to the energy shortage of the 1980's is right now.

So let's get this bull by the horns.

'Sneaking In' The Metric System In Education

—By The Editor

An article in "What's Happening," the Riverdale Elementary School paper printed by and distributed through the Butler Bulletin, had information about fourth grade instruction in metrics. Posters and other instructional materials were pictured, including a classroom wall sign saying, "GO METRIC."

The effort to convert to the metric system is one of those things which nobody seems to know about as far as how it got started. Yes, Congress passed legislation to make the conversion in a ten-year period. But the legislation did not mandate the conversion, as I understand it. Thus, our educators are participating in a movement which the public has not approved. In fact, the public probably didn't know about the legislation at the time it passed. The public was not consulted.

And the public is not in favor of converting to metrics. When the question is asked, "Why convert," proponents say "everyone else uses the metric system." I don't know if that is true or not—I don't think it is. But even it were so, why do we have to do what everyone else is doing? That is the same question I have heard others express concerning the conversion to metrics.

One of the most irritating observations when someone expresses concern for what is happening in this country is, "Well, yes—but at least we aren't as bad off as so-and-so nation." If you criticize inflationary government programs, you often hear, "At least our rate of inflation isn't as bad as Japan's—or Chile's—or Timbuktu's!" Comparison should be of ourselves to ourselves, not ourselves to some other country where 20 different leaders have taken over the country in succession in the past two years —or something like that. Such justifications are similar to comparing apples to oranges.

I see no reason to spend so much time on metrics. The metric system still requires a knowledge of how to add and subtract, divide and multiply. Too many kids are being raised on pocket computers nowadays. And the laziness that goes along with pocket computers to a great extent in individual use is seen in the adult world. I had occasion to purchase some four different items last week. I asked for six of this and six of that and four of those and those. When the invoice was made out, the clerk, started punching buttons on a desk calculator which probably cost $100 or so. Think of it—that employee was too lazy to use pencil and paper to figure four times this and four times that and six times this and six times that. And a couple of the computations were so close to even dollars and cents that anyone with an average ability in arithmetic could do the cumputation in their head.

We're becoming a nation of robots. Machines do our thinking. Notice how little attention checkout clerk's pay to what they ring up and what you hand them in payment. All they do is push buttons, wait a few seconds, read the figures that tell how much change you get, and give the change to you. It is almost a totally "unthinking" kind of existence while they are "working."

What does that have to do with metrics? Well, changing to metrics will not automatically mean higher intelligence in Americans. And it definitely DOES mean a tremendous cost to business and industry and ultimately to the public.

And why must we do what everyone else is doing??? We are an INDEPENDENT nation. Our people can't be independent if they can't add, subtract, multiply and divide. The metric system DOES NOT improve those four basic arithmetic functions.

Incidentally, the Riverdale and Butler elementary school newpsapers were recently recognized by the National School Public Relations Association as among the best produced by elementary schools all over the nation.

John Wherry, executive director of the association said "the stories are interesting; the layout is excellent, and the format is brief and very attractive to read."

It ought to be. Joe and Carolyn Shelton, publishers of the Butler Bulletin, provide the expertise in producing the school papers and distribute them with the Butler Bulletin.

Mr. Wherry also said the papers are a good example of providing the public with information about the schools.

That observation is about half correct. Since the school papers are distributed only to those who get the Butler Bulletin, it is obvious that only part of the public is being informed about school classroom activities.

But that doesn't mean the papers are not worthy of praise. I just throw those remarks in to keep local elementary educators' heads from getting too big!

Joe and Carolyn Shelton are doing an outstanding service for the school district in producing the three school papers.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Remember — this is the January 26 issue.

Joan Morr found herself in a situation she didn't want or ask for, in the matter of appointing someone to fill a vacancy on the local town board.

She called in response to the information and opinions I had in the January 19 issue and was upset. because it sounded as if she didn't care what happened to Saint Joe.

When I stated that neither Joan nor Kirk Carpenter had any direct "ties" to the town, I meant that they are not residents of the town and thus are not subject to decisions made by the town governmental officials. That does not mean that they are not "interested" in the town. It refers to the official relationships involved because that is what town government is all about.

There were two possibilities to choose from in making the appointment. Joan said she had talked to certain people in town and concluded that Fred was the better qualified candidate.

Snow Moves In

Snowfall Wednesday night, accompanied by gusty winds, forced closing of schools Thursday. Continuing snowfall resulted in drifts of up to 12 and 15 feet in this area as well as throughout adjoining states.

School was cancelled Friday.

All county roads were closed to traffic as were all state and national highways in the area.

L.E.T.T E.R.S—

TO THE EDITOR—

Sir or Madam:

What would it cost to print this (poem that follows—Ed.) in appreciation for their kindness while I was so critically ill and in the hospital.

Thank God for His blessings. I have never met so many kind sweet neighbors as you have in the communities of Auburn, Saint Joe and Spencerville.

If my prayers are answered, I'm sure God will bless them and keep each and every one in His blessed care. When one is alone and so many come in to help them, then we begin to feel someone cares.

May God's blessings be with each and every one.

MY CHERISHED FRIENDS

My friends is one who speaks to me,
Or takes the time to write.
Who has a thought to spare for me,
Whatever day or night.
Who comforts me and wants to make
My illness their concern,
Who has done so many favors but expects
No favors in return.
The ones who know the faults I have,
But never criticize.
Faithfully they have been by my side
To help and to sympathize.
They are Brothers and Sisters of my soul,
Forever good and so kind.
They are there to help me with my needs
And help my weary heart and mind.

My friends are the ones that keep me in
Their memories and prayers,
And then they turn to God, and say a prayer for me.

I wish to thank every one. I sure had wonderful care at the DeKalb Hospital.

I want to thank my Doctor and the hospital staff, nurses and cooks for their good food they prepared.

Also my minister, Terry Rhine, and all church associates that helped me face my problem.

Also for my beautiful gifts and flowers and the beautiful cards.

Also the gifts and cards from the Lutheran Church of Spencerville.

My prayer is that God will always keep each and every one in His rewarding kindness, and always keep them in His loving care.

Happiness Is...

PREPARATION

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A woman of great wealth, but possessing a worldly mind, dreamed one night that she had passed from earth to heaven. She found that heaven was indeed a place with many mansions and wondered which would be hers. Eventually she met an angel who offered to guide her through the golden streets to her new home.

As they went along she noticed many novel homes, but was surprised to see small houses here and there, beautiful, but insignificant.

Stopping opposite an imposing and beautiful house, the woman asked, "Whose house is this?" "This is the house of your gardener," came the reply of the angel. "But he will not want so large a house as that," said the woman, "he lives in quite a small cottage on earth."

The angel made no reply and the two continued on through heaven until they reached a very small house and the woman learned, to her surprise, that it was to be hers. She was disappointed and said, "But I could not possibly live in that tiny house."

"No other can be yours," the angel replied, sadly. "If it be small, the fault is yours. Remember that the Master Builder can only build with the materials sent up to Him."

Happiness is . . . preparation.

The group is not interested in pointing fingers or finding out names. Its function is to help parents by sharing with one another in child abuse matters.

Cricket's Corner.....

A new feature for indoor gardeners— — —

Are you an expert at neglecting your indoor plants? If that's the case, try raising succulents. They need minimal care and add a colorful accent to any room of the house. Not all succulents are cacti, but all are water-storing. So, if you are frequently absent from home or don't have time to spend pampering a delicate plant if you are home, they may be just the thing for you.

A clay pot of any style, casserole dish, or over-sized ashtray will make a suitable home for your new friend. Since they are native to arid climates, they need plenty of sun and very little water. If your cactus is the type to be used in a hanging pot, be sure to cover the soil with fine colored gravel. This is to keep your cactus clean since they cannot be washed or wiped.

Don't think you are a hopeless case just because you forget to water your house plants. Perhaps with a succulent, you may come into your own as an indoor gardener.

Town Board Vacancy Filled; Butch Coburn Named President

Fred Rayle was appointed to the Saint Joe Town Board by Democrat Precinct Committeeman Joan Morr Monday, January 23. The appointment filled a vacancy left by Mr. Rayle when he resigned as of November 30, 1977.

The appointment was made at a meeting called by DeKalb County Democrat Chairman Kirk Carpenter. The procedure to fill the vacancy was changed by the 1977 Indiana State Legislature which took the appointment process out of the hands of the local elected town officials and turned it over to a caucus of precinct committeemen. Since Concord Township is but one voting precinct and the town of Saint Joe lies within the precinct, the appointment was made in this instance by a non-resident of Saint Joe.

Thus, the town is now being governed by a board which has only one elected member still serving—Loretta Loy. The other two are appointees.

Following Mr. Rayle's appointment, the town board held a meeting to determine the permanent president. Mrs. Loy had been serving as acting president since the vacancy occurred. Contrary to rumors, she had been serving in that capacity with the consent of board member Butch Coburn. A story was being circulated the past few weeks that she had arbitrarily "taken over".

Upon motion by Mr. Rayle, seconded by Mr. Coburn, the latter was elected president of the town board.

S 1883 Would Strengthen Labor Boss' Minority-Rule

—By The Editor

A few weeks ago, I published a statement that is difficult to believe. I wonder if its significance "soaked in." When I first saw the statement, published material coming from the National Right To Work Committee and based on Labor Department statistics (so it's not a myth), I couldn't believe it. It took a while to "soak in" my grey matter.

The statement, or statistic, is that only one out of five workers in the United States belongs to a union. Then a fact-of-life about unionism was forthcoming just a couple of weeks ago as the nation began to feel the pinch from the coal miners' strike. It added to what I would call an "incredible story." The fact-of-life is: only half the coal produced in the United States comes from union-represented mines. The other half is from non-union mines.

President Carter made a statement this week that makes me wonder how "in touch" he is with the people. He said he would not invoke the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act at the present time because the situation is not serious enough.

How "serious" is serious in the President's opinion? Electric utilities have only a two-month supply of coal in reserve right now; they have been drawing on reserves since the beginning of the miners' strike weeks ago. In some instances, utilities have switched over to oil to generate electricity. That means you and I are going to have an increased "fuel adjustment factor" on our electric bills. That factor has already risen this winter.

It is said that if the coal strike were settled immediately, it would still be a month before coal would reach power-generating plants. So, in effect, there is only a month's supply of coal remaining in reserves. If winter should extend into the end of March and the beginning of April, as it has on occasion in the past, we will face a crisis in electrical energy.

Some important points ought to be recognized:

1. President Carter is NOT representing the best interests of citizens by failing to take steps to put miners back to work for an 80-day "cooling off" period as provided in the Taft-Hartley Act.

2. A minority is causing inconvenience and a higher cost of living despite the American principle of majority rule.

3. The leadership of the union minority in our work force has since the 1930's and the beginning of Franklin D. Roosevelt's terms in the Presidency given its financial support to one major political party by a ratio of over $9 to one party and its candidates to $1 or less to candidates from the other major political party.

4. The intrusion of government by legislation which tells business and industry what it must do while saying virtually nothing as to what organized labor must do lies at the feet of members of Congres.

5. When the coal strike is settled, the cost of living will increase for all Americans, and the strikers, despite a raise, will have less purchasing power from more money.

What can YOU do about it?

Right now, the Senate is considering a bill (S-1883) which organized labor wants passed. Though called a "labor reform" bill, it is actually a "labor-power" bill because it would place employers under threat of stiff penalties if unions were not able to solicit non-union workers at their place of work to get the workers to join the union. The "reform" has been termed "push-button" unionism by the National Right To Work Committee. The president of that committee has said:

"If passed, S.-1883 would provide union organizers with dangerous new legal weapons to force employers into delivering employees into unwanted unions. Any employer who balked at signing away his employee's freedom would risk severe new penalities imposed by government edicts."

Of particular consequence is the fact that organized labor leadership is seeking to have COMPULSORY withholding of money from non-union employee's paychecks equivalent to the amount withheld for union dues from union members' paychecks. And the non-union employees' withheld money would go into the union treasury.

If this is not what you believe is fair, if this is not what you think "the American Way" is all about, drop a line to Senator Birch Bayh or Senator Richard Lugar in Washington. The address for either one is: Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. Tell them you oppose S.-1883 and any other legislation which deprives the American worker of freedom of choice when it comes to union membership and contributing to union treasuries. Do this as quickly as possible because the bill is now being considered.

And if you have a $5 or $10 bill (or more) that you want to put to good, constructive use, send it to:

Reed Larson, National Right To Work Committee, 8316 Arlington Boulevard, Fairfax, Virginia 22030.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Remember—this is the February 2 issue.

When I was in the hardware one day last week, before the big snow, David Sullivan came in with his young son. I don't know what the tyke's name is, but I got a big kick out of his enthusiasm at going with Dad to the store and seeing the various items on the shelves.

One thing caught his eye in particular, a flashlight taking some six or eight batteries and thus being quite long. The little fella said, "Hey, look at the stretched-out flashlight!"

AUBURN ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT COMMISSION—

Tuesday, February 14, 8 p.m. at Auburn City Hall. Election of officers and any other business brought before the commission.

Did you know—

—that the average Hoosier's share of the national budget for 1979 will be over $2,000. Indiana taxpayers will be required to pay $11.9 billion in federal taxes to meet their portion of the 1979 spending budget, according to the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce. —That's the per-person share, $2,000 for every man, woman and child—not $2,000 per family.

—that the DeKalb Eastside Blazers were eliminated from the ACAC tourney recently in their first game. Heritage downed the locals 59-42. Scorers were Buell 13, Moughler 9, Hudson 7, Cook 6, Billings 4, Charles 2 and Fee 1.

Storm Brings Out A 'Fellowship Of Need' In Citizenry

A record 17 inches of snow lay on the ground after last weekend's blizzard. But with winds sometimes gusting up to 50 miles per hour, those 17 inches often became 17 feet of snow drifts.

Travel of all sorts, except for emergency purposes (and even then travel was difficult to impossible in some instances), was brought to a halt. The city of Kendallville was blockaded by order of the mayor so that snow removal could be carried out more quickly. The state of Ohio shut off entry to that state in order to carry out snow removal efforts and to curtail the incidence of stranded motorists.

Some of the items of note in the Saint Joe area include (and there unquestionably are many more not immediately known to The News):

Denny Baker kept a one-lane traffic pattern open from the fire hall to the main street even while snow was still falling. But it finally became a losing battle as the wind and snow filled in plowed areas.

Pat and Andy Crow put in many hours also when the snow finally ended, using the small bulk fertilizer loader from the Rainbow Farm Center to push back and dump snow from the street and highway right-of-ways. Dan Crow was using a tractor with a scoop on the front. —And "scoops" is what it ultimately took to really make any progress in getting snow moved back far enough in the street right-of-ways.

Bita General Store was an information center for food needs, with Margaret Wisler staying overnight in case of emergency needs, especially for infants.

Paul Fetters helped neighbors "dig out" using his tractor and scoop west of Saint Joe.

Firemen from Saint Joe and Butler (those few who could get to the fire station) tried to answer a fire call on County Road 69. However, the Concord Township truck got stuck and so did the tanker. Butler firemen also couldn't make it and the house was destroyed.

Harold Yeiser used his tractor and blade to help open traffic lanes in Saint Joe—that is, when he wasn't snowed under (no pun intended) with work at the service station.

Local fireman's auxiliary members maintained a vigil at the fire hall in case of emergency, keeping a pot of coffee handy. Rose Gfeller was "dragging" by Saturday afternoon.

Local milk producers were selling milk cheap (or in some instances giving it away)—if you could get to their place.

Jim Goldner, who had open heart surgery last year, was taken to Parkview Hospital Saturday when he complained of discomfort.

It took four-wheel drive vehicles to get around over the weekend, and even some of those got stuck.

Some local residents took advantage of a temporary "milk station" at Yeiser's. With Ron Provines providing a four-wheel drive vehicle and Neil Prentice the milk (and various residents empty plastic gallon containers), the milk shortage was eased for some families. Jay Loy also made a "milk run" and Fred Durst assisted Ron Provines on the latter's trip. He also scooted home when a fire call came in and it was his house having a fire. Fortunately no heavy damage was suffered.

Martin Bartell started out for work last Thursday morning at 4:30 and got stuck near the Ross place not quite a mile south of town. He was warmed up there, then struggled to the Herschberger home where he again got warmed up, then proceded to the Sechler home for another stop before getting back into town. He told Frank and Fran Sechler he would have gotten lost in the blowing snow but for utility poles along the highway right-of-way.

The Sechlers walked into town Saturday. They reported drifts of some 12 feet or so at the Fuzzy Baker home just south of town.

Mike Sebert made fuel oil deliveries to Saint Joe for those who were running low. But it took a "round trip" (or maybe "square trip" is more accurate) to do it. From Butler, he had to go on US6 to Waterloo, then south through Auburn to County Road 60, then east to Saint Joe.

Bevington-Campbell

Stephen Bevington, son of MM Forrest Bevington of R1 Saint Joe, and Jacolyn Ann Campbell, daughter of MM Jack Campbell of Hicksville, were united in marriage December 30, 1977, at 6:30 p.m.

Wedding vows were exchanged at the Butler Church of Christ with Rev. Wayne Michael officiating in a double-ring ceremony.

A reception followed at the church.

The newlyweds now reside in Fort Wayne.

WIFF - 'Where There's A Phil, There's A Way'

—By The (Boasting) Editor

WOWO radio of Fort Wayne has long held a deserved distinction for its public service efforts. A name familiar to the Tri-State area is Bob Sievers, the "rock" on which that reputation has been built for many years.

DeKalb County has its own public-service oriented radio station — WIFF. And it also has its own "Bob Sievers" in dependability and dedication to public service.

His name is Phil Haberkern.

When weather predictions of Wednesday, January 25, included heavy snowfall for the area, Phil returned to the station located on County Road 29 after having put in a full day's work. When he left his Auburn apartment for the station, he went prepared to stay.

There have been other instances in the past when the 1969 DeKalb Eastside grad anticipated bad weather and the inability of other staff members to get to the broadcasting studios due to weather conditions.

Just a few weeks ago, he began a Saturday broadcast day at 5:30 a.m. and, because the station was short-handed that particular day, remained at the studio until sign-off time at midnight — 18½ hours later.

In last week's episode, John Ober also put in long hours. He resides in a mobile home at the station site. He took telephone calls, kept check on the automation — and cooked meals — while Phil put the AM and FM stations on the air, coordinated the information about emergencies, road conditions and so on, along with the regular programing of news, music, "The Trading Post" — — — — and got it all on the air.

The two were "on our own" for three and one-half days, another staffer able to get in Sunday afternoon. Another staffer made it by Monday.

But for Phil (who now seems to have radio signals in his blood, as they say printer's ink gets in one's blood) — for him, the call to duty and to serving the needs of the public in an emergency situation stuck in his mind until the end of Tuesday's working day.

The Saint Joe native was on the job for six straight days.

From The Editor's Desk....

And We Wonder.....

Ford Motor Company is being sued because of Polock jokes.

An employee of Polish decent is suing the company for $600,000. He says the harassment he has suffered the past 10 years in the form of Polish jokes put on or in his desk is worth that much. He has been with the company 25 years and has not had a promotion in 20 years. The past two years, he has had a poor work performance rating from higher-ups in the company. He blames it on the Polish jokes.

—And we wonder what's wrong with the country!

Cambridge Square residents at Fort Wayne have complained to Congressman Dan Quayle that the federally-supported complex did not provide adequate snow removal after last weekend's heavy snow.

An all too-familiar pattern of behavior these days: when something isn't taken care of RIGHT NOW, run to the government and complain. No matter that it was the heaviest snowfall and blizzard some of the old-timers can remember, today's moderns want their inconveniences removed immediately.

—And we wonder what's wrong with the country!

Conrad Dobler, a high-salaried professional athlete, is traded from one team to another and he says he is happy with the trade. He also says, "I'm probably worth more," in reference to what his new team gave up to get him.

—And we wonder what's wrong with the country!

Congressman Dan Quayle wants President Carter to use the Taft-Hartley Act to require striking union coalminers go back to work. President Carter reportedly said Monday that the situation is not critical enough.

Electric utilities say they now have a less than 60-day supply of coal on hand with which to generate electricity. Striking miners have attacked police, destroyed equipment at non-union mines running into thousands of dollars (one non-union mine had A QUARTER MILLION IN DAMAGES at the hands of the union pickets), in some areas layoffs are already occurring due to electricity shortages, and Indiana's Governor Otis Bowen has called for a voluntary cutback on the use of electricity by state residents (but some people while talking about the prospect of a shortage of electricity go merrily on their way flipping light switches on in broad daylight, taking daily baths and using the same amount of hot water, not lowering the thermostat setting on the water heater, IU-PU at Fort Wayne has its vast parking area fully lighted yet at midnight, and so on.) But the President of the United States says the problem isn't serious enough even in the face of the crimes being committed by striking miners.

—And we wonder what's wrong with the country!

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn cancels another trade involving Vida Blue and denies Charlie Finley the privilege of getting some monetary return for his financially struggling Oakland Athletics. The commissioner already had cancelled Finley trades last year, meaning that, with players having the privilege of playing out their option and becoming a free agent, Mr. Finley got absolutely no return on the value of those players who left the team. They get astronomical salaries, including the time they played with Oakland. But the owner of the club gets nothing and the players get everything.

—And we wonder what's wrong with this country.

National "Pay Your Bills Week" is coming up. We have a federal budget that currently is spending $60 billion a year more than it takes in; we have a national debt of $700 billion—and someone comes up with national "Pay Your Bills Week."

—And we wonder what's wrong with this country!

We have a big blizzard. The snow is piled up several feet deep around the country. Digging out takes some time, including clearing of highways and streets. What does everybody do? They run to Uncle Sam for more money to pay for snow removal. Where does Uncle Sam get that money that he can say, "If you're having trouble paying the bills, we'll help out"? There's that $700 billion national debt, and annual deficit of $60 billion, and Uncle Sam has money to hand out, just like that???

—And we wonder what's wrong with the country!

Members of Congress are elected to represent the people. So is the President. The President goes on TV to "sell" the new Panama treaty. The response to the White House after the fireside chat is 4 to 1 AGAINST the treaty. Yet, the stories from Washington indicate that the treaty will pass with key Republicans and Democrats in favor of the treaty. Yet, the majority of Americans DO NOT approve the treaty. Those elected representatives do not even appear to be concerned with public opinion, yet that is the basis of their responsibility in government.

—And we wonder what's wrong with the country!

They downed Homestead 45-40, then smothered Adams Central 86-16.

In the Adams Central game, Lisa Johnson scored 38 points.

The wins gave the team a 13-2 record for the regular season.

Against Homestead, Lisa had 15, Sunda Obendorf 11, Amy Hampel 10 and Connie Oberlin 9.

Happiness Is...

CHARACTER

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A young man bought a gold watch from a jeweler on a twenty-year guarantee, and soon brought it back, demanding a new case. The case looked as if it were brass, having changed its appearance entirely.

The jeweler looked at the case, rubbed it a little, and then asked the young man if he had been taking any medicine containing iron. The young man said that he had. "Well," said the jeweler, "thee iron has come out with the perspiration and has tarnished the case." Thereupon he took a cloth and speedily polished the case till it shone with all the original golden luster, and the young man went away satisfied.

This incident is a parable of the spiritual life. What is within comes to the surface. "Murder will out," is an old saying. Love also will out. Whatever you are affects whatever you have. Your character tarnishes your house or glorifies it.

Do not expect to carry gold-appearing watches if you have a brass heart. Do not expect that your diamonds will sparkle if your spirit is gloomy. Do not expect that silk and broadcloth will become you if you have not a lovely soul. For the reality, and the only final reality, is the spirit, and everything material in your life is but its shadow.

Inconsiderate Actions Mar Town's Government

—by The Editor

Does Saint Joe have a town board — or two town boards???

Do Saint Joe and Concord Township have a fire department or not???

Recent events in town matters illustrate once again that town government is being mishandled, "played with" in a sense, and local residents are coming out on the short end of a personality clash.

Following a "training meeting" at the fire hall Tuesday, a report came that Fire Chief Fred Rayle, who is also once again on the town board after resigning in November just before fire department elections, then successfully seeking appointment back on the board, told those present at Tuesday's meeting that no fire runs would be made after February 9, Thursday of this week, because firemen's insurance would end on that date.

It is difficult to understand the situation. If the end of the insurance is supposedly due to town board inaction, then Mr. Rayle is blaming himself since he is again a member of the town board.

If the lapse is the fault of the fire department officials, he is again blaming himself in effect since he is fire chief.

If any firemen have been led to believe that they are not protected after February 9, they have been misinformed.

If any firemen have been led to believe the department MUST change insurance companies, they have been misinformed.

According to the town clerk-treasurer, the town has liability, property damage and medical coverage for anyone performing duties in behalf of the town at the request of the town. That includes firemen.

The policy which runs out on February 9 is carried AS MANDATED by state law. It includes death and disability benefits. It is handled through the fire department, not through the town board or the township trustee.

A change in companies giving death and disability coverage was recommended, perhaps last year, by the state volunteer firemen's association. But, according to the secretary of the state association, there was only a recommendation, not a requirement of change.

Since the death and disability insurance is handled through the fire department, any attempt to put the blame elsewhere is totally unfair. Since insurance renewals are customarily sent out at least 30 days prior to the expiration date of policies, it would appear that the lack of renewal, or a change in companies, lies at the feet of the fire chief—and that's Mr. Rayle.

Concerning town board meetings and time of meetings, it is strange that a member of the board (Loretta Loy) and the clerk-treasurer (Emma Frank) were not notified of the change in time, much less asked if the change was acceptable. Since the town board officially made a change in time from the old 7:30 hour to 6:00 p.m. at the December meeting (it's in the minutes) and since Mr. Coburn himself asked for the change and reportedly made the motion to effect the change, it is apparent that proper procedure has gone "out the window." If a board member and the clerk did not know of next week's special meeting before the notice was given to the local paper, the mishandling of town affairs becomes even more obvious.

Though the question of proper parliamentary procedure is involved to an extent, the most disappointing aspect of the entire matter is the lack of respect for the community as a whole. In addition, common courtesy includes notification of a representative body of any proposed changes AND APPROVAL of such changes. Maybe Mrs. Loy can't make it next Wednesday. Maybe Mrs. Frank can't make it next Wednesday. They should have been asked before a special meeting was set.

Since the town has had 12 people serving on the town board since the 1971 and 1975 elections, when the number under normal conditions would be six, three at each election, it is apparent that there is little appreciation of the time, effort and consideration required of a person who serves on the board. Too many people think that serving on the board is a "snap," you just say "do this" and it's done—or you just throw your weight around and command—rather than listen and reason.

The same holds true for the fire department. The training men and women have taken in recent years to qualify for service on the department hasn't been a "picnic." They're dealing with property loss and loss of life. You can't dictate to a volunteer group and have a unified group; they must be in on some of the decisions.

Small as Saint Joe is, it's no toy—it's not a plaything. The functioning of its government and protective agency is every bit as important as that of Auburn or Butler or Garrett or Waterloo—or Fort Wayne!

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

John Paul Hill, minister of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ, recently had a "pacemaker" implanted in his chest. Such units help the heart to maintain a consistent and strong pattern of heartbeat, thus influencing blood pressure.

In a note to the Editor last week, the pastor said:

"The pacer was implanted successfully in 1½ hours and has been accepted by my heart. Whereas my pulsation had been 38 to 54, it is now 70 to 80, thanks to the additional stimulation generated by the pacer. I feel great.

"Since I must avoid bodily contact, my ball-playing must cease. With the vitality of a freshman, I would be the envy of all the "old timers."

"I am thankful that the heart blockage was discovered in time and that, the Lord willing, the pacer will give me extended years of life to use in the Master's service.

"I've learned a great lesson through this ordeal — a lesson that teaches we never know the true worth of good health until we almost lose it. We simply take it for granted.

"May this day find you prospering in soul and good health."

CARD OF THANKS

I am very grateful for the thoughtfulness of our friends during my stay at Parkview Hospital. Thank you for your prayers, calls, cards and many acts of kindness to me and to my family in my absence.

J. Paul Hill

Town Board

A meeting was held Monday night, supposedly of the town board. But a confusing set of circumstances occurred.

Board member Loretta Loy and clerk-treasurer Emma Frank appeared at the fire hall at 6 p.m. for the regular monthly meeting. Larry Mason, local dog warden, also was present. Little business was taken care of, only approval of bills presented and signed by Mrs. Loy. Mr. Mason submitted his resignation as dog warden as of March 1 or whenever a replacement is found.

The meeting was not totally adjourned, since two signatures are needed before the clerk-treasurer can issue checks.

Shortly before 7 p.m., the two women officials began to leave. On the way out, they met board president Butch Coburn who said the meeting was to be held at 7 p.m. and he had put a notice of the meeting and time in "the paper." (Such a notice was not given to and did not appear in The Saint Joe News.)

Third board member Fred Rayle also appeared, as did attorney Brad Thomas.

Mrs. Loy informed Mr. Coburn that the meeting was over. Neither she nor Mrs. Frank had received notice of a change in time from 6 to 7 p.m.

Extensive snow plowing following the recent storm is being paid for in part by the federal government. It is reported that bills presented by Pat Crow and Denny Baker, in behalf of themselves and a few other workers, will have 75% covered by the federal aid.

A notice delivered to the News Office Tuesday indicates that the local town board will meet Wednesday, February 15, at 7:00 p.m.

The notice indicates that the meeting is to discuss appointment of a town attorney, time of meeting, apparently a report from Clyde E. Williams & Associates on the sewage disposal matter, and other town matters.

However, when The News contacted board member Loretta Loy Tuesday and clerk-treasurer Emma Frank Wednesday, neither one had knowledge of the special meeting.

Guy Mausteller Named 'Firefighter'

Guy Mausteller of west of Saint Joe was named "Fire Fighter of the Year of DeKalb County" this week. The award came at a district volunteer firemen's meeting Wednesday.

In addition to serving on the local volunteer fire department, Guy served as the county association president a year ago. He had a series of articles published in this paper three or four years ago telling of the various aspects of training needed in order to have the most efficient use made of fire fighting equipment.

Four 'Ladies' Named By ACAC

Lisa Johnson was third high in vote-getting this week as the ACAC coaches named an all-conference all-star team. She placed on the first five selections along with Laura Augustyniak and Sue Miller of Leo, and two other players, Carol Blauvelt of Heritage and Kelly Meyer of Norwell.

Next highest in the voting were Connie Oberlin and Amy Hampel of DeKalb Eastside, followed by Sara Crabill and Tonya Burns of Leo, Linda Bonar of Churubusco, Donna Hormann of Heritage and Jackie Hirsch of Woodlan.

Sunda Obendorf of Eastside was among those given honorable mention.

With the several schools participating in the ACAC and the limited number of players who can be selected as all-conference or honorable mention, undoubtedly there are grumblings in all of the schools because a player in their school didn't receive recognition but deserves recognition.

In that category, beyond a doubt, falls Jo Baugman of the DeKalb Eastside Lady Blazers. Her presence on the team during the past two seasons has been a major factor in the team's success. The Lady Blazers faced opponents who had a height advantage in virtually every game they played. But that didn't prevent "Runt," the shortest of the starting five, from being possibly the most effective defensive player in the ACAC.

Lady Blazers Win Sectional; Advance To Regional

The Lady Blazers from DeKalb Eastside High School won their second straight sectional basketball championship Monnight by defeating Garrett 79-58. They got into the championship game by downing DeKalb Central 52-36 Saturday afternoon. The sectional was played at the Central gym.

The game against Central was close for the first two quarters. Eastside led 22-17 at the half following a 10-10 first quarter tie.

The Lady Blazers widened their lead to 36-25 at the three quarter mark and spread the gap further in the final period.

The locals could have had a bigger lead at the half, but they were momentarily "cold" at the free throw line. They got back "in the groove" the second half.

With Lithe Lisa Johnson, the Blazers' leading scorer, weakened by the flu bug but still in the game, Adorable Amy Hampel took over the scoring attack and netted 25 points.

In the championship game against Garrett, the locals were assisted by bad breaks for the Garrett team in the opening minutes of play. Garrett didn't score for 2 minutes and 13 seconds while the Blazers took advantage of the opportunities coming their way to score 8 points. The Blazers jumped to a 27-5 first quarter lead. At the half, it was Eastside 48-19. Lisa scored 23 of her game total of 27 in the first half.

Garrett outscored the Blazers 17-12 in the third period and 22-19 in the final period. But that first quarter point spread was too much to overcome.

Amy had 18 points and Curvy Connie Oberlin 16 in the championship game. Super Sunda Obendorf had 14 against Central and 9 against Garrett.

The "unsung" heroine of the tourney for the Blazers, however, was Jo "Runt" Baughman who scored only 4 against Garrett and 6 against Central. Her tight defensive play and aggressive pursuit of the ball were as much a factor in the Lady Blazers' wins as the points scored in higher totals by her teammates.

The Blazers advance to the regional February 11 at Northrop High School north of Fort Wayne. They face Heritage.

Both games included many fouls, the Blazers losing Lisa in the final period. Central had three players foul out.

In the Garrett game, Sunda and Connie fouled out.

Both games showed that the quality of opposition often determines how well a given team will perform. While winning handily, as indicated by the scores, the Lady Blazers played far from their best and usually consistent game. Fouls by Central and Garrett seemed to lure the locals into unnecessary fouling. They were able to get back on track, however, to win the sectional.

Suggestions Given For Coal-Electric Conservation

With the coal strike unsettled and with business and industry and private dwellings facing a cutback on electricity, the Indiana Department of Commerce has issued suggestions on ways to reduce coal consumption.

The suggestions are as follows:

KITCHEN & HOUSEWARE—

* If something is using electricity and you're not using it, shut it off . . . appliances, radio, television and unusued rooms.
* A little maintenance can save a lot of electricity. Avoid dirty furnace filters, leaky faucets, clogged clothes dryer exhausts and worn refrigerator seals.
* If you need to wash clothes or dishes, wait for a full load and conserve electricity. Dishwasher energy consumption can be reduced by one-third by turning off the dishwasher after the final rinse and before the drying cycle.
* Cook to conserve. Countertop cooking uses less electricity than stovetop cooking.
* Do household work, laundry, dishwashing, vacuuming, etc., during the evening hours when business and industry are not using electricity.
* Adjust refrigerator controls to medium or below medium setting.
* Reduce cooking time of casseroles and main dishes by turning off the oven 15 minutes before the prescribed cooking time and leaving the oven door closed for the remainder.
* Reduce energy consumption by using pans that entirely cover the heating element. This way more heat enters the pot and less is lost to the surrounding air.
* When using your oven, save energy by minimizing pre-heating time. If you're using the broiler, there is no need to preheat at all.
* Use glass or ceramic dishes in the oven — you will find you can cook at temperature settings 25 degrees lower than those required for cooking similar meals in metal pans.
* When cooking or baking, avoid frequent "peeking" in the oven. Every time you open the door, the oven temperature drops 25 to 50 degrees and wastes energy.
* Clean the heat reflector below the heating element on your stove — it will reflect the heat better and shorten cooking time.
* Iron batches of clothes at once instead of one or two items.
* Iron low temperature fabrics first. This will save energy by reducing the warm-up time needed to iron linens and other fabrics requiring higher ironing temperatures.
* Whenever possible, cook complete meals in the oven of your range, or better yet, cook in one of the efficient small appliances.
* Cook vegetables in a small amount of water and always cover pots when cooking.
* Thawed or partially thawed foods cook faster than frozen foods, using less energy.
* Let leftovers cool off before puting them into the refrigerator. Putting hot foods directly into the refrigerator makes the unit work harder to cool the air inside the compartment — and wastes energy.
* Hot water is cold water plus electricity. Avoid letting hot water run while washing dishes, shaving or performing similar chores. Take showers instead of baths. Keep showers down to 5 minutes.

HEATING—

* Keep tabs on the temperature. Set your dial to save. Each degree you turn your dial down can save about 2½% of your fuel cost.
* Use fireplaces on those "in-between" days to take off the chill, but cold weather fires waste heat. More heat goes up the chimney than the fire gives off. Keep the damper closed when the fireplace is not in use.
* Keep attic and basement doors as well as doors to unused rooms closed to confine and hold in the heat.
* Open the draperies when the sun is shining. Close them at night to reduce heat loss through the windows.
* When arranging furniture, be careful not to block heating units. Drapes should be arranged so that the air flow is not restricted.

LIGHTING—

* Keep lamps clean to make certain that the maximum light is obtained.
* Select low wattage bulbs for decorative lighting.

CLOTHES WASHER—

* Use hot water only when absolutely necessary.

DRYERS—

* Dry full loads of clothes and remove before they are completely dry.
* Select temperatures for the fabrics being dried.

WATER HEATER—

* Set back temperature on a water heater to the lowest setting possible. it is usually hot enough for most house usages.

CLOTHING—

* Wear warmer clothes. "Wear" less electricity.

The Indiana Emergency Hot Line number is (317) 633-4000.

Happiness Is...

VISION

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ

The man who has vision and no task is a dreamer. The man who has a task and no vision is a drudge. The man who has a task and a vision is a hero.

Vision is one of the greatest needs for man. The Old Testament writing in Proverbs 29:18 says, "Where there is no vision, the people perish . . ."

Let me remind you that if you don't build castles in the air, you won't build anything on the ground. It is true that we must one day stop the dreaming and do the building, but the building starts with the dream or vision.

One day Michaelangelo saw a block of marble which the owner said was of no value.

"It is valuable to me," said Michaelangelo. "There is an angel imprisoned in it and I must set it free." He had a vision. He accomplished his vision. When it was over, he saw his vision in the statue. But more important, he caused the vision to take place.

Each of us should have our visions or dreams of the future. But we must put them to work. Then we can see them accomplished in our lives.

Happiness is . . . vision.

Blazers Lose

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers lost a one-point 60-59 thriller to Fremont last weekend.

Down 34-29 at the half, the Blazers came back to gain a tie with 26 seconds remaining in the game. They got a free throw to take the lead. But a Blazer foul gave a one-and-one opportunity to Fremont—and they made both free throws.

Randy Cook led Blazer scoring with 16. Dave Charles had 11, his highest total this year.

Spring is....
The snow is here,
So pretty and bright.
But it won't last
Much through the night.
Spring is just around the bend,
Garden seeds are now the trend.
The piles of snow
Will soon be gone (we hope)
Then comes the robin
With a bright new song.
So remember, spring will soon be here,
Our seeds are in—planting time is growing near.

A new feature for indoor gardeners— — —

One of the delightful things about a walk in the woods is the fern undergrowth that surrounds your feet. They always look so fresh and healthy. You can transfer some of the natural serenity of a woodland by having a fern in your home. The choice is varied. Here are a few suggestionee to help you be successful with them.

1. Pot your fern in regular potting soil.
2. Keep the soil barely moist and mist frequently.
3. Keep them partially shaded. North windows are best.
4. Feed your fern frequently in the springtime but taper off near winter.
5. Cooler temperatures overnight are desirable.

If your fern is destined to be in heavy traffic at home, be sure your selection is not a "sensitive fern." These plants are lovely but have the tendency to die wherever touched by human body oil. Ferns can be propagated best at home in the early spring. Remember not to fertilize your new plants for the first six months. For northeast Indiana, Rabbit's Foot and Tsussima Holly ferns are suggested. These lovely plants are a fine addition to any indoor garden.

THANK YOU FROM THE HAYNIES

It is with grateful hearts and humble appreciation that we bow to our Father in heaven, thanking Him for the healing of injuries which our adopted son, three foster daughters, and LeRoy received in the automobile accident of December 3rd, and for the many, many kindnesses shown us during their hospital stay and their convalescing at home. We thank Him for the sustaining of life in the accident which could easily have produced fatalities.

We were overwhelmed by the love and goodness shown by friends and neighbors of the Butler-St. Joe area, many of whom we have not met or personally known, but who generously gave "love gifts" of food and money to help us during the time we had no income from work.

We wish to thank the Newville Church of Christ, the Butler Church of Christ, the St. Joe Church of Christ and its Senior Youth Group, the Coburn Corners Church of Christ, the St. Joe-Concord Volunteer Fire Department, and several individuals, for generous financial gifts. We also thank the Riverdale School faculty and staff, Mrs. Violette Kline's class and others of St. Mark's Lutheran Church of St. Joe, the St. Joe Girl Scouts, and individuals for gifts of food and staples, as well as toys and games for the children.

Our special thanks goes to Harry Farrer, evangelist for the Newville Church of Christ, who contacted other churches of Christ concerning our accident.

We also are very grateful to those individuals who helped in so many ways to keep the family going while LeRoy was in the hospital and unable to get around and drive after the time of hospitalization. We appreciated the unselfishness of our daughter and son-in-law, Craig and Fannie Comer who minister with the church at Antwerp, Ohio, as Fannie stayed with and chauffered the family the ten days LeRoy was in the hospital.

We pray God's blessings on all for your help and kindnesses during our hours and days of need.

"God is our Refuge and Strength, a very present Help in trouble." —Psa. 46:1.

Plucky 'Ladies' Edged In Regional Overtime Thriller

—by The Editor

The Lady Blazers from DeKalb Eastside High School displayed their "never-say-die" attitude Saturday noon at the regional basketball tourney held at Northrop High School at Fort Wayne.

Though listed as tourney "favorites" in pre-game predictions by some predictors, the locals were more the underdogs in view of Heritage High School games at the end of the season. Though the Blazers had soundly defeated Heritage earlier this year, Blazer coach Bob Brown had warned last week that the Eastside-Heritage tourney game would be a different story due to the latter's improvement.

But the game wasn't that close until the final quarter. At the end of the first period, Heritage held a 12-7 lead. They expanded it to 22-13 at the half. It was 34-26 at the end of the third period.

Then things began to happen. For one thing, Lisa Johnson began hitting from the field. For another, Amy Hampel began to hit from the field. For still another, Heritage began to falter.

Though down by 10 points yet in the final period, the Lady Blazers caught up and even took a 1-point lead momentarily. Regulation time ended with the score 45-all as the Blazers showed their fans once again that they never give up.

The first overtime ended in a tie score and then two free throws gave Heritage the winning margin at the end of the second overtime.

The locals had opportunities to win, having possession of the ball from out-of-bounds plays on two or three occasions. But the Heritage defense, which included the usual height advantage facing the Blazers, prevented a good shot by the Eastsiders. They also were sub-par in free throw accuracy, getting only 5 out of 12. Heritage had 13 of 15. The Lady Blazers outscored Heritage from the field 24-21.

However, the failures were not the "thing to be remembered" from the game. Much more significant was the determination shown in that final quarter. Curvy Connie Oberlin was riding with 4 fouls in the last period but still was a fighter and carefully avoided fouling out. Lithe Lisa could have "let down" after a first half which saw her so closely guarded by Heritage that she had few opportunities at good shots. But she didn't.

The same goes for Adorable Amy who didn't get off many good shots before the final period and the overtime.

Super Sunda Obendorf could have quit when she missed a free throw that might have won. Jo Baughman could have let frustration take over as she found herself surrounded by Heritage players a couple of times late in the game and had the ball stolen from her. But "Runt" hung in there to the finish. Twice she dove for a loose ball at the sidelines, once sliding into the bleachers in a typical "gutsy" effort by the smallest member of the starting five.

It was a tough game to lose. But the positive factors outweigh the disappointments. To be remembered is that the game appeared lost even after the final quarter began. But it wasn't. To be remembered is the fact that five young women carried the responsibility to be aggressive yet not endanger the team's chances by fouling out. To be remembered is the fact that the team which defeated them in the regional went on to win the regional in an upset win over Fort Wayne North Side, and that a gutsy young lady on the Heritage team (Carol Blauvelt) came back into the final game after suffering an injury which everyone thought put her out of the game for good, and she led her teammates to victory.

Finally, to be remembered is the coaching ability of Bob Brown who had to recognize and cope with the weaknesses of the Lady Blazers and adjust his strategy accordingly.

The Lady Blazers and Coach Brown lost in points Saturday. But they won something more important—respect from their fans for the good example they set in overcoming adversity.

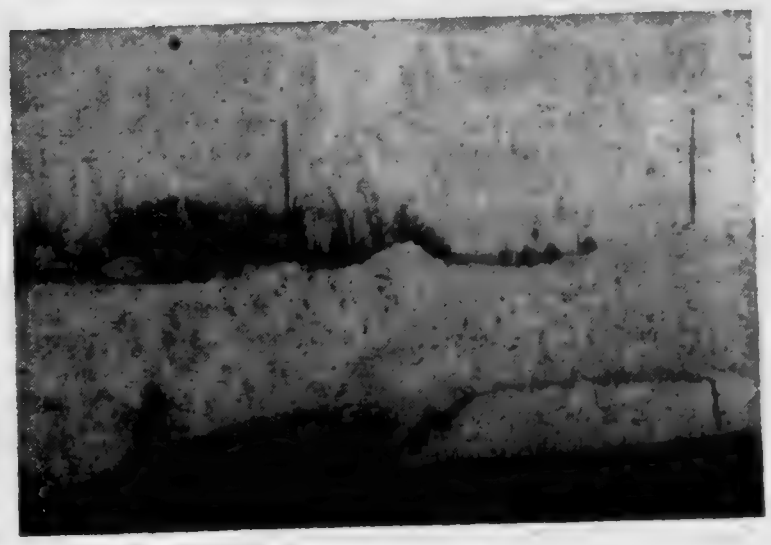
A Few Photos Tell Of The Big Snow Of '78

After the big snow storm of January 26, 1978, Saint Joe's main street appeared as shown above, looking west from the Bita General Store corner. The photo was taken Jan. 28. The local hardware and furniture is at left. Note that clearing of the main street had already been partially accomplished due basically to the efforts of Denny Baker and Pat Crow. The local town board, especially Loretta Loy, was "on the ball" in seeing to it that streets were opened as quickly as possible. The main street in particular, was taken care of. When state highway plows came through, they found relatively little snow to be shoved aside because of the prompt action in town.

The absence of vehicles and the presence of people walking on the main street was somewhat of a pleasant experience, despite the heavy snowfall. Except for emergency situations which fortunately were relatively few in number, the snow storm was a "fun" thing.

The lower photo was also taken January 28, and also looking west from in front of St. Mark Lutheran Church. Visible at right is the Joe Robinson residence, Dave Hagar's barbershop and the gas pumps at Yeiser's Standard Service.

The photo below was taken February 4. Looking south on Hart Street from Washington Street at the west end of Saint Joe, you would normally see several residences on both sides of the street. But deep snow hid them from view.



POClosedMonday

Saint Joe Postmaster George Armstrong reminds patrons that Monday, February 20, is a "national holiday" for the observance of George Washington's birthday. The actual birthday date is February 22. However, the U.S. Congress created a "long weekend" holiday a few years ago by making Monday the official observance of a few historic dates. Washington's birthday is one of them.

There will be no window service or rural delivery Monday. However, the lobby will be open from 7 to 9 a.m.

Any mail ready for dispatch after 9 a.m. should be put in the courtesy box outside the post office for 4 p.m. pickup by the star route carrier.

Spencerville Postmaster Charlotte Hudson announced that the office at Spencerville will be open from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m.. As at Saint Joe, there will be no window or rural carrier service and the courtesy box outside the post office should be used by patrons after the 9:30 hour.

4-H Club To Reorganize

A reorganizational meeting has been announced for the Willing Workers 4-H Club. The meeting will be held Tuesday, February 21, at the Saint Joe Conservation Club from 7 to 9 p.m.

Parents are asked to attend and register their kids. More information is available by calling 337-5289.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser January 18.

The president presided. Mrs. Maurice Kline had the lesson on TV. For entertainment, Mrs. Forrest Bevington had a contest. Mrs. Roy Baker announced gentlemen's evening at Richard's Restaurant in February.

Mrs. Baker gave critic's report. After adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

For its fine arts evening, the club motored to Auburn to see "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living In Paris." It was a musical and greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Sp'ville PO Has Job Openings

Spencerville Postmaster Charlotte Hudson has announced that there are two openings at the Spencerville post office.

One is for flexible-part-time clerk in the post office. Applications for that position are available at the post office and will be accepted until March 1.

The other opening is for substitute rural carrier. That position is open indefinitely and applications will be accepted for an indefinite time.

School Board Meets Monday

The DeKalb eastern school board will meet Monday at 8 p.m. The agenda includes:

Minutes.

Claims and checks.

School board to open and consider competitive bids for the furnishing of two 65-passenger new scohol buses as have been legally advertised.

Sign contracts as necessary.

Consider of a "truck trade" with the city of Butler.

Consideration of the new Title IV application for possible adoption by the board.

Any other business that may come before the board.

Bloodmobile Here March 1

The Bloodmobile will be at the Riverdale cafetorium Wednesday, March 1, from 1 to 6 p.m., according to Delores Hicov, chairman.

The need for donations of whole blood is constant. Last year Riverdale area residents responded with what has been described as an "amazing" total of 123 pints of blood. Those donors, plus any new residents willing to donate, are being urged to continue the good record established by the Riverdale community. That includes those from the Saint Joe, Spencerville and Newville communities, plus a few from farther away.

Mrs. Hicov indicated that surveys conducted at Red Cross Blood Centers and Bloodmobiles reveal most donors give blood because it gives them a feeling of satisfaction to be helping someone else. Some even feel it is a duty.

Nearly all people continue to donate blood because they know that there is a great need for it and because only people can give blood.

Most Bloodmobiles schedule appointments ahead of time so that there is a minimum of waiting for the donor. The entire process takes only about an hour. However, if a definite time cannot be given by the donor for some reason, "walk-ins" are always welcomed.

"If you're interested in helping to keep your community healthy," Mrs. Hicov said, please call 238-4891 or 238-4617 and make an appointment to donate at our Bloodmobile on Wednesday, March 1."

March 11
9:00—Walters vs Gerber-Hud.
10:00—Emenhiser vs Groff
11:00—Kinsey vs Bungard
12:00—Fee vs Campbell

All these games are played in the old gym in Butler and parents and friends are welcome to come to cheer on their teams.

It's really great to see this many boys go out for basketball. I think in the future years Eastside should have a great team. These boys are young but just watching them play makes you want to cheer them on whether they are from Riverdale or Butler, they have the courage to try and that's what the game is all about. Some teams have big boys others have little ones but they are all out there for one purpose to learn the game and give their best. So I encourage everyone to come and watch them play. They are great! Everyone of them.

Each is helping coach a team, and in bending the little league basketball so I somehow ended up keeping score and the time clock. But no matter who's playing who I'm always yelling especially when someone makes a basket either the boys from Riverdale or Butler because someday they'll all be Eastside Blazers.

Thank you.
Nancy Gerber

P.S. Come to the games and see the boys in action!

Having been acquainted with Nancy and "Gerb" for many years, we are certain they will know there is no malice in an observation we feel compelled to make. That is this: It's great that there are so many involved in the program. But one thing overlooked time after time is that such activities for the entire district carried on in Butler require considerable time and expense just for travel for those in the Riverdale area. It is particularly significant in the past few years when the consumption of energy has become a major problem which all Americans must face. Those who are participating in the little league basketball program (adults, I mean) and providing transportation deserve a big "thank you." It is an observation of any that every time an adult provides transportation to Butler from the Riverdale area so that their children can participate in a school or community activity, it has cost that adult about $3. Considering the gasoline we spend on that chore, we should all be already thinking about the energy crisis. Perhaps the Riverdale parents could work out a car pool with Butler parents so that the travel expense would be shared. —Ed.

Spring is....

The snow is here,
So pretty and bright.
But it won't last
Much through the night.
Spring is just around the bend,
Garden seeds are now the trend.

The piles of snow
Will soon be gone (we hope)
Then comes the robin
With a bright new song.
So remember, spring will soon be here,
Our seeds are in—planting time is growing near.

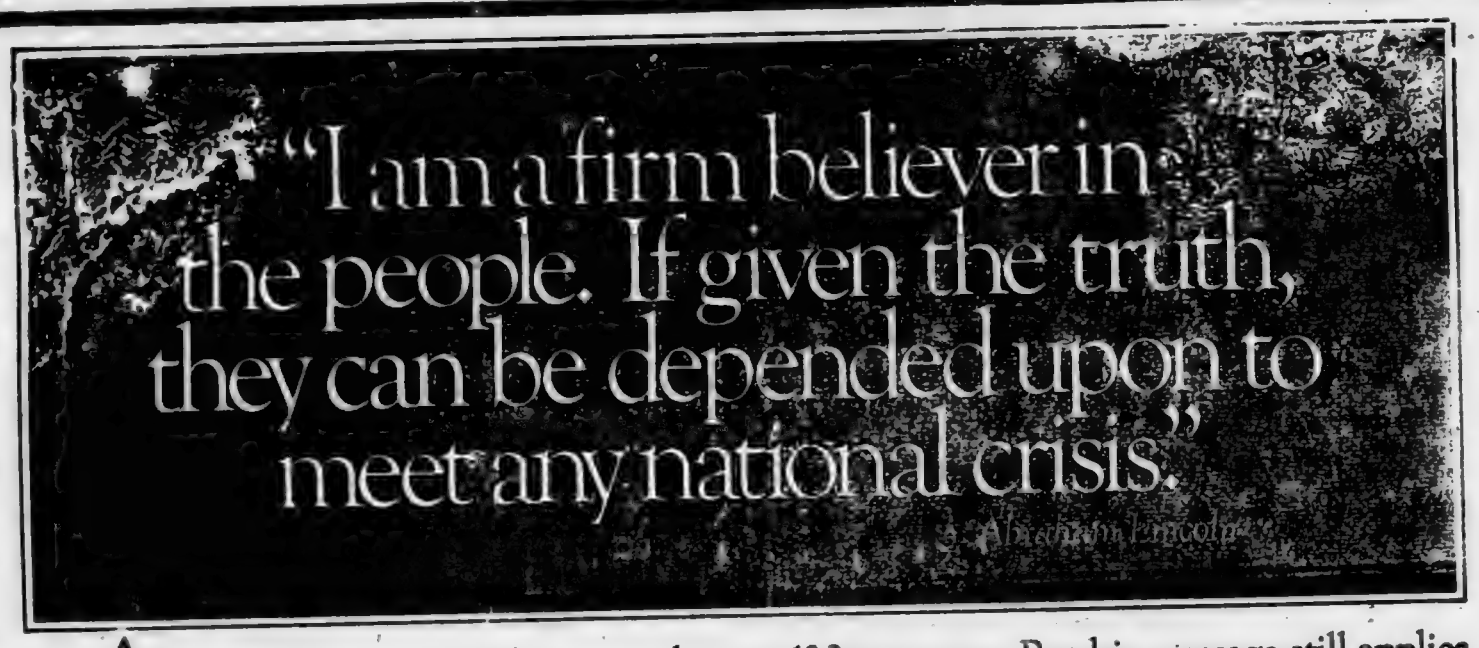
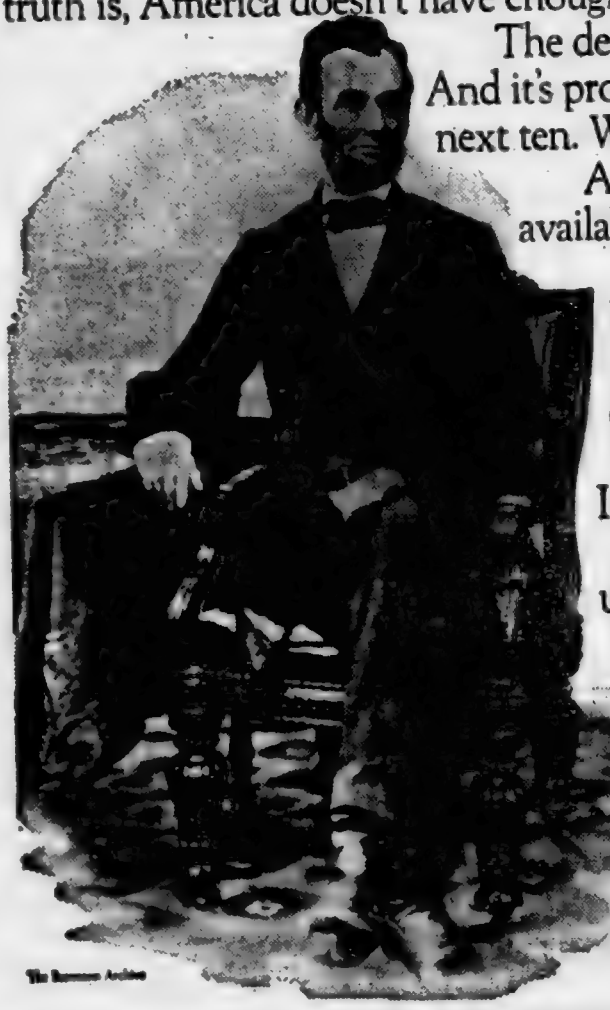
WAYNE FEEDS

—that Indiana Senators Richard Lugar and Birch Bayh and 4th District Representative Dan Quayle are actively opposing the imposition of economy standards by 1980 which would reportedly result in curtailment of production of International Harvester Scouts. It is estimated that it would cost 2,000 jobs at the Fort Wayne plant, 5,000 jobs in the state, and an annual payroll of over $50 million.



Abraham Lincoln said those words over 100 years ago. But his message still applies to our current energy struggle, and our country's need to assure an adequate supply of electricity for the future.

While we may have enough power plant capacity to squeeze through the 70's, the truth is, America doesn't have enough for the 80's.



The demand for electricity grew 7% during the past year. And it's projected to grow an average of 5.7% a year for the next ten. Which amounts to a total increase of 74% by 1988.

And that increase could be even greater if the availability of gas and oil is diminished.

But where is that electricity going to come from? Present power plants can't supply it.

We have to start building power plants to head off this disaster. And now.

Because power plants don't happen overnight. It can take 10 years to get one built.

The solution is not simple. All of us will undoubtedly have to make some sacrifices.

But working together, we can do the job.

As Mr. Lincoln also said, "The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise high with the occasion."

And that's the truth, too.

Working together is the only way.

Rapping With Youth About.....

Popcorn, Pop - - And Profits

You have heard a lot about "profits," if you read the newspapers or listen to newscasts on radio and TV. Unfortunately, you have heard the word used more often in criticism of business and industry than in connection with you and other average Americans. You see, we are all relving on "profits" to buy the things we need and want.

Perhaps the bad image business and industry have in the eyes of many Americans, including you, is reflected in the surveys which show that the majority of people thinks the average profit per dollar of income for business and industry is anywhere from 25 cents up to 50 cents or more. The actual profit, however, is more like a nickel. Remember now, we're talking about what's left over after all expenses have been paid (salaries, wages, insurance, mortgage pavment, taxes, dividend to stockholders, and so on).

You don't hear much about that actual profit figure, unfortunatelv, because certain people are trying to blame high taxes, inflation and the high cost of living on "big business. Their efforts also spill over to create the impression that ALL business, big or small, is "gouging" the public. They conveniently overlook the fact that millions of Americans, including those doing the hollering, get their income from "profits" in another sense—what's left over after a product is made and sold—the difference between the cost price and the selling price.

If there were no profits, there would be no Harvester, no Dana, no Warner Gear, no I&M, no Universal, no General Tel, no Crane-Edmund, no Geddes, no Bulletin, no Yeiser's, no Farm Center, no Margaret's, no farms — — — "no nuthin'."

The truth is:

"Profits" means jobs.

Isn't it strange that so many people let themselves be influenced by the "anti-business" voices? If those people would do a little thinking, they would not be so "anti-profit"; they would realize how essential profits are for their own welfare.

You, as students, have an example of "business and profits" right in your own activities in school, particularly high school. You sell magazines, you get sponsors for your school newspaper, you sell ads in the annual—all these activities involving your getting more from the public ("retail") than the cost to you of whatever you are selling ("wholesale"). Not only are you making a profit, you become the "middleman" in the process. And, if you have read the papers and listened to the news, you know what a "bad guy" the middleman is made out to be. (The next time you hear a politician blame inflation on the "middleman," remember—he's talking about you!)

But the closest lesson in "profits" for you right now is in the funding of the athletic department. High school athletics are not carried on to make money; they are for competitive participation. Since there are expenses involved in that competition, it is necessary to obtain money to pay those expenses. So, you admit spectators to sporting events when they pav a certain amount of money. With all the sports activities nowadays, with girls as well as boys competing in more activities than in the past, the income has not kept up with expenses. Athletic Director Bill Peden even went before the school board recently to tell of the situation. That's how bad it is—here and everywhere else.

One of the ways the athletic department helps to defray expenses is by selling refreshments. The past two summers at baseball games, I bought pop corn and pop, as did many others at the games. Recently, I bought a sack of popcorn and a soft drink at a basketball game. I paid 25 cents for each item. That was more than I paid at baseball games. It wasn't a real big sack of popcorn, and it was a pretty small cup of pop.

You will probably respond to that with, "But we need the money—we have to make more to pay expenses."

You're right! —And that's just the point! When you needed more money to stay in business (that is, keep the athletic department solvent), YOU RAISED THE PRICES—YOU SOUGHT HIGHER "PROFITS"! This applies not only to refreshments, it also applies to admission prices.

That's exactly what business and industry must do in order to keep going. When the expenses go up, prices must go up. And as a result, profits will go up (assuming that the public continues to buy despite the higher prices).

So, whether or not it has been pointed out to you in school, you have had a good lesson in economics "right in your own back yard." And if you are intelligent and observant, you will understand now—if you didn't before—why "profits" are essential to your welfare, and mine, and everyone else's. BUT—you also must recognize a responsibility that goes along with seeking higher profits. You have the responsibility and obligation to seek only a REASONABLE profit. If the sack of popcorn costs only a nickel to produce and you sell it for a quarter, the question is: are you "gouging" the public? After all, at that price, you have made a profit of FOUR HUNDRED PERCENT! You cannot just say, "Well, we need the money," and let it go at that. The fact that more money is needed DOES NOT eliminate the responsibility to gain only a reasonable profit. (Remember that when you gripe or hear others gripe about today's high prices for groceries or cars or clothes and so on—remember that higher expenses bring higher prices.)

Hopefully, you will be more appreciative now of the business and industry which support your school activities. A lot less would be going on in your school life if that business and industry had no profits. You know now, first-hand, "right in your own backyard," how unfair it is to condemn business and industry and profits. You now know that if it weren't for profits, you would have very few athletic contests—and I would have no 25 cents for a sack of popcorn and another 25 cents for a dinky soft drink.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Nancy Gerber called this week to explain the little league basketball question I raised last week concerning travel to Butler for Riverdale area kids and parents.

She said that the coaches had offered to split the games between the two communities. But Bob, who is serving as commissioner for the program, said he wanted the kids to play on a hardwood floor. The local cafetorium has linoleum. The games are being played at the old high school gym which not only has hardwood flooring, it is a larger floor.

The reason for "Gerb's" insistence on the old gym is his desire to have the kids learn right from the start. In other words, his purpose is to instill fundamentals in our future high school basketball players.

So, Nancy says, "If you want to blame somebody, blame it on 'Gerb'!"

How can you "blame" someone who has been such an outstanding example of hustle, good sportsmanship and the desire to do one's best during his high school days, and has been so active in leading youngsters in sports in recent years????

The textbook review committees recently appointed by the school board appear elsewhere in this issue. Look them over and tell me what the glaring weakness is, overall.

I feel miserable. After reading Pastor Bullock's column, I realize I have all the ingredients.

Don't look now—but when the calendar flips over to March 1, it will mark the 95th birthday of the Saint Joe News and my 30th year as editor.

CANDIDATES FILE FOR MAY PRIMARY ELECTION

Marjorie Carr

Marjorie Carr, present DeKalb County Auditor, will seek the Republican nomination for that office in the May primary election. By law, a person can serve no more than two consecutive terms as Auditor. Before her election to that office in 1974, she had served as a deputy in the auditor's office for 5½ years.

Mrs. Carr has made an effort to increase county revenue with interest from investments and by carefully auditing expenditures. During the past three years, she has attended seminars to acquire additional knowledge on budgeting within the tax freeze, investments and federal money guidelines.

Mrs. Carr is a lifelong resident of DeKalb County. She is a member of the Business & Professional Women's Club, Indiana County Auditors' Association, and the Republican Women's Club.

Mrs. Carr says she "considers it a privilege to serve the taxpayers of DeKalb County and I pledge my continued efforts to serve efficiently and economically if elected to a second term. I also would be very happy to answer any individual questions about the auditor's office or my candidacy."

Kirk Carpenter

Kirk D. Carpenter of Auburn has announced his candidacy for the office of DeKalb County Prosecutor on the Democrat ticket in the May primary election.

Mr. Carpenter's decision to seek the office was based on his concern for the community and the state in which he lives. He said, "The citizens of this county and I share a common concern in areas of crime and government, but at the same time recognize the heavy tax burden each of us shares. It is my opinion that the prosecutor can provide necessary services without tax increases."

Mr. Carpenter has resided in the Auburn area all his life with the exception of his college years. He graduated from Anderson College in 1973 with an AB degree in social studies with particular emphasis on American government. He received his JD degree in 1976 at Valparaiso University.

At the present time, Mr. Carpenter is associated with the law firm Husselman, Mefford and Carpenter in Auburn.

Mr. Carpenter is a member of DeKalb Lodge 214 F&AM, Fort Wayne Valley of the Scottish Rite, DeKalb County Bar Association, Indiana State Bar Association, American Bar Association, American Trial Lawyers Association, Auburn Jay-Cees and the board of directors of DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

Ralph Myers

Ralph G. Myers will seek re-election as DeKalb County Assessor. He has served in that capacity since January of 1970. He states that, during that time, he has constantly strived to upgrade the services of the assessor's office.

During his time in office, Mr. Myers has attended many schools and seminars on Indiana Property Tax Administration. Twice a year he has attended seminars on Indiana Inheritance Tax.

In 1971, Mr. Myers attended a school sponsored by Indiana University and the International Association of Assessing Officials. He received a certificate on Indiana Property Tax Appraisal Techniques. In 1975 he received a certificate on Indiana Property Tax Administration from sessions sponsored by the School of Public and Environmental Affairs at IU.

Mr. Myers is currently serving as chairman of the Northeast Indiana County Assessors' Association and is president of the Association of Indiana Counties, Northeast District. He is on the board of directors of the Association of Indiana Counties, helping to form policies for making home rule the best form of county government.

John Ells

John Ells, a candidate for DeKalb County sheriff on the Republican ticket, has a total of 16 years' experience in police work. Since 1967, he has been a deputy in the sheriff's department. As a detective sergeant for the past six years, Mr. Ells has utilized extensive training in law enforcement. This includes training at the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy, Law Enforcement Training School, National Crime Prevention Institute and the State of Indiana Law Enforcement Training Board of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Another 500 hours have been devoted to studies with the FBI in record and bookkeeping.

emergency squad training, civil defense training and with the Fort Wayne School of Judo.

Mr. Ells also has four years' experience as an officer with the Auburn Police Department.

He served with the U.S. Army and was discharged as a sergeant, then worked in food marketing eight years before entering the field of law enforcement.

Charles Quinn

Charles L. Quinn has announced that he will seek re-election as judge of the DeKalb Superior Court on the Republican ticket in the May Primary.

Judge Quinn has served the court since its creation July 1, 1977. The superior court replaced the DeKalb County Court which had been established to handle cases involving small claims. The new superior court still handles small claims and also hears other civil and criminal cases, relieving the DeKalb Circuit Court of a portion of its workload.

Judge Quinn was nominated by DeKalb Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump for the original county court and was approved by Governor Otis Bowen to begin serving January 1, 1976. He was retained as Superior Court judge when the conversion was made.

Judge Quinn served as judge of the Garrett City Court from September of 1974 through December of 1975.

Prior to becoming the county court judge, he was associated in law practice with John Martin Smith in Auburn. He is a member of the DeKalb County, Indiana State and American Bar Associations and has served as president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the DeKalb County Bar Association. He is a 1964 graduate of Manchester College and received his JD in law from Indiana University in 1967. He is a member of the Indiana Judges Association, American Judicature Society, Phi Delta Phi International Legal Fraternity, and during his practice of law was admitted to practice in Indiana, United States District Courts for the Northern and Southern districts of Indiana, the United States Court of Appeals, 7th Circuit and the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Quinn served in 1969 as a law clerk in the Allen Superior Court system in Fort Wayne. He is currently chairman of the board of the Garrett Public Library, chairman of the administrative board of the Garrett United Methodist Church and a member of the Auburn Community Theater, Inc. He was president of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce in 1974, served as a member of the board of the Northeastern Big Brothers and Sisters from 1974 to 1976, was a member of the advisory committee on Child Mental Health from 1973 to 1975, and served as the state chairman of the Indiana Young Republican Federation from 1973 to 1975.

Judge Quinn has served as a special judgee in the circuit and county courts in Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Frederic Romero

Frederic L. Romero, attorney at law, has filed a Declaration of Candidacy for the office of DeKalb County Prosecuting Attorney, on the Republican primary ticket.

Mr. Romero, who practices law in Auburn, is a native of Angola and a graduate of Tri-State College and Ohio Northern University College of Law.

Admitted to the bar in Indiana in 1971, Mr. Romero has practiced law in Auburn since that time. Previously, he was in the sales field 13 years.

Mr. Romero currently serves as DeKalb County Attorney and as the hearing officer for the Garrett-Keyser-Butler Community School District.

Earl Butz To Speak At Lincoln Dinner

One of the nation's most outspoken public figures will be the speaker at the DeKalb County annual Lincoln Day dinner. The speaker will be Earl Butz, former dean at Purdue University and former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

The annual affair will be held Friday, April 7, at DeKalb Central High School south of Waterloo at 6:30 p.m.

Though considered a controversial figure due to his candid views, Mr. Butz is held in high regard by many of those engaged in agriculture. He has been a consistent foe of governmental intrusion into agriculture and continues to circulate his views on brief radio segments, carried locally on WIFF radio of Auburn.

Mr. Butz' downfall came when a member of the news media played a joke told in private conversation by Mr. Butz into a national issue forcing the agriculture secretary's resignation.

Mr. Butz is a native of Noble County.

State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn is chairman of the dinner program.

Ted Voirol

Theodore H. (Ted) Voirol, 65, died Monday, February 20, at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne. Cancer was the cause of death.

An employee at Fruehauf Trailer Company in Fort Wayne Mr. Voirol retired in 1972.

The Voirols moved to Saint Joe in 1952. The past few years their address has been RR Wawaka.

Funeral services were held Wednesday of this week at Immaculate Conception Church in Auburn with burial in the church cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, Josephine; two daughters, Velma Driscoll of Albion and Carolyn McNamara of Saint Joe; four sons, Lavern of Spencerville, Richard of Monroeville, William of Fort Wayne and Michael of Rome City; 23 grandchildren; three sisters; and four brothers.

Happiness Is...

NOT BEING MISERABLE

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

I recently ran across a short article on how to be perfectly miserable. Let me share some of the things that cause this.

1. Think about yourself. 2. Talk about yourself. 3. Use "I" as often as possible. 4. Mirror yourself continually in the opinion of others. 5. Listen greedily to what people say about you. 6. Expect to be appreciated. 7. Be suspicious. 8. Be jealous and envious. 9. Be sensitive to slights. 10. Never forgive a criticism. 11. Trust no one but yourself. 12. Insist on consideration and respect. 13. Demand agreement with your own views of everything. 14. Sulk if people are not grateful to you for favors shown them. 15. Never forget a service you may have rendered. 16. Be on the lookout for a good time for yourself. 17. Shirk your duties if you can. 18. Do as little possible for others. 19. Love yourself supremely. 20. Be selfish.

This recipe is guaranteed to be infallible and will make you miserable.

Happiness is . . . not being miserable.

An Open Letter to Connie Hollabaugh

Dear Connie:

Your indication that you may not seek re-election to the school board comes as a big disappointment to me and I know it is a disappointment to many others in the school district.

Perhaps as this is written, you have already made up your mind. If not, however, I want to explain why your presence on our school board is so important.

The first reason that comes to mind is that you now have four years of experience on the school board. That is an important asset because it means you have knowledge of the pattern of school administration. You are already "broken in" on the job. (Or should it be "broken down"!)

I hate to make reference to arbitration and fact-finding and so on when talking about public school matters; it ought to be more student-related than legal-related. But we must face the way it is, not the way it ought to be. And the way it is, anyone with four years' experience in matters related to contract negotiations, binding arbitration and so on gives the public better representation. And the public has been taking it on the chin for many years now in public-educator relationships.

Another prime reason for being concerned about your decision on seeking re-election is that you have been an example for patience and tolerance, in the face of undeserved "bad" publicity which our school district has received and the accusations made by teacer spokesmen against our school board and administration. I well recall the meeting in October of 1976 when, without malice or hate but with firmness, you declared your resentment at having contract negotiations taken into the classroom by some of our faculty members. You spoke for the majority of parents in that moment; you were the voice of the parent-public in a trying situation—and you did it with dignity.

I know that the many hours taken for school board meetings are a burden. Even with board members' pay doubled the past year, the amount received is far from the value received by the school system from board members. It is a sacrifice to be a board member. But that is the way it is supposed to be. If pay were the motivation in such a position, the worth of the people seeking the job would be less. There are some things that are done just to fulfill a desire to make the world a bit better than it was when we become of age and are faced with making decisions about relative values. Serving on a school board is one of those challenging opportunities which has value not in dollars and cents received, rather in the knowledge that one has done his or her best to serve others.

I know that you have also a situation of being "caught in the middle" in teacher-board relationships, and I appreciate how trying that can be. But your performance has been one lacking in prejudice, as far as I am concerned, and that quality is sorely needed in any responsibility related to people.

In asking you to consider seeking re-election by this public letter, I realize you are "on the spot." It is not intended that you be intimidated by this letter. Rather, I want to convey the confidence the people in this community have in you. If we haven't said so before, it's a case of taking you for granted.

These words are in no way intended to reflect upon the qualifications of others who have declared or will declare their candidacy for the district which you have served. These are, rather, words spoken for a job well done, seeking to encourage still more community service from someone who has gained valuable experience and who has brought integrity to our school board and school administration.

Most sincerely,

Ted Haberkorn

Senior Citizens' Bus Service In Planning Stage

Paul Fetters of Saint Joe is among those serving on the senior citizens' nutrition program in DeKalb County. He is also on a five-man transportation committee within the group.

Mr. Fetters stopped in this week to inform The News of tentative plans for transportation service available to all areas of the county. Recently, this county received a new van to be used for senior citizen transportation to the nutrition center at Immaculate Conception Church in Auburn. Hot meals are served there daily at 11:45 a.m. for those over 60. A set charge is not made, payment for the meal left up to each individual according to their ability to pay. The actual cost of the meal is $1.34. The difference between what a participant can afford and the $1.34 is made up for by tax money.

Attendance has increased in the past year or so. Where some 15 to 20 attended in the past, the average now appears to be from 40 to 50.

Mr. Fetters was instrumental in getting use of the van extended outside the city of Auburn. He said that tentative plans include providing transportation to the nutrition center for Riverdale area senior citizens one day each week.

Those who wish to take advantage of the program should call 925-3652 by 11 a.m. the day before they will attend. This allows time for food preparation in proper amounts.

Spring is....

The snow is here,
So pretty and bright.
But it won't last
Much through the night.
Spring is just around the bend,
Garden seeds are now the trend.

The piles of snow
Will soon be gone (we hope)
Then comes the robin
With a bright new song.
So remember, spring will soon be here,
Our seeds are in—planting time is growing near.

Eight-Hundredths Of 1% Rule

The coal strike by the 160,000-member coal miners' union has reached into every phase of the typical day of the average American. Negotiations seem to be on the verge of bringing a settlement one day, only to have an announcement that negotiations have "broken down."

In the states where cold weather dominates, citizens are curtailing their use of electrical energy, business and industry is cutting back on production (some to the point of closing), and institutions of learning are marked by dark halls, cool classrooms and curtailed extra-curricular activities.

Locally, the strike has meant calling of emergency meetings of county school boards. With the public utility to reach only a 40-day supply of coal Friday of this week, schools face mandatory reduction of 50% in the use of electricity. All decorative and display lighting is to stopped. Households are to cut back electric consumption by 25%. However, security lights are not included in the cutback.

How can this be happening in the United States of America?

The answer is simple. The lure of more of everything has led the American public to allow crippling power to be concentrated in the hands of but a few individuals—the leadership of a few labor unions. Politicians have allowed themselves to be influenced by those leaders despite the fact that less than 25% of the total working force in this country belongs to a union. The figure is closer to 20% actually—about 1 out of 5.

It is contrary to traditional American principles to have government step in and take over in private disputes. However, the government has been stepping into private matters for many recent years. And this has occurred under the leadership of those who gain public support by telling how much more this group or that group is entitled to.

It is political. No matter how deeply you get involved in discussion about the cause of the current miners' strike, the total picture shows that politics has brought America to its knees once again, because of a fragment of the total population. When you consider that we have a total population of over 200 million people and a group of 160,000 is causing discomfort, inconvenience, layoffs and so on, the only conclusion possible is that something is way out of whack. What else is there to conclude when you face the fact that EIGHT-HUNDREDTHS OF ONE PECENT OF OUR TOTAL POPULATION IS RESPONSIBLE FOR OUR CRITICAL SITUATION RIGHT NOW—has brought America to its knees. Yet the Democrat majority in Congress continues to propose "labor reform" that will actually give more power to labor leadership.

The sad part of the entire story is that, when the strike is finally settled and the miners get more money, they will be able to buy less with that "more money" and so will every American citizen. The fact of life which strikers forget time and time again is this:

The increase in worldly goods and "security" comes not from getting higher pay—it comes from a build-up, an accumulation, due to time at work. The worker making $250 a week now is no better off than the worker who made $25 a week 40 years ago.

Another sad—and frightening thing—about the current strike is that a minority group is being allowed to commit crimes without punishment, except for a few scattered instances where arrests have been made. Even police cars have been smashed by the strikers. They have inflicted millions of dollars worth of damage at non-union mines where workers have tried to keep a supply of coal moving. But those workers face death in doing so—yes, death!

We wonder at times why the youth of today commit dishonest acts of varying nature. Can we expect anything other than youth problems when they see such things as the current strike being tolerated AND CONDONED by our elected representatives? The lesson is plain: crime DOES pay!

We have not been left without a voice, however. There are those who are trying to proect the average American and to bring a justifiable and reasonable penalty to those violating the rights of millions of Americans. Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle is one. He (a Republican) and a Democrat colleague have proposed legislation which would deny food stamps to strikers. Most Americans think that penalty should have been in effect long ago. But the majority which controls Congress (and has for 42 of the last 46 years) owes its control to labor unions. President Carter has dragged his feet in protecting the average American not because of a matter of principle, actually—rather because of a debt to the labor leadership which speaks for its membership whether the membership agrees or not.

You haven't heard a word from Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh. There is little wonder. It is no secret that he owes his position in Congress because he has sought for labor what labor wants. He often boasts of his seniority in Congress. What good is it doing us now???

Another public official who has sought to protect the public is Indiana Governor Otis Bowen. He has repeatedly sent requests to President Carter asking for strong and significant steps to be taken by the nation's leader. Among the possible steps is invoking the Taft-Hartley Act which calls for return to work during an 80-day "cooling off" period during which negotiating can be carried on without threat. But the President has refused to do so with the amazing comment that the situation is not serious enough.

Tell that to the miners, both non-union and union, who are being shot at. Tell that to the millions of Americans who face interruption of work and other normal daily routines.

The current situation ought to cause many Americans to ask: "Does the Democrat party really represent me—or does it represent minority special interests?"

'She' - Not 'See'

I have moaned in times past about improper spelling, pronunciation and grammar heard from those who ought to know better—those in the news media. Sometimes I've been caught, too, in a booboo, though there are times when my errors have appeared because I didn't catch them in proof-reading.

Radio and TV announcers and newscasters today are exhibiting inexcusable errors on pronunciation. Some of those mispronunciations are more because of their desire to present an affectation, at the expense of propriety.

The biggest offense against the English language is that evident when announcers put a "see" in "negotiate" or "negotiation." THERE IS NO "SEE" IN "NEGOTIATE." There IS a "SHE" in the word.

If you hear anyone pronounce the word as "ne-GO-see-ate" instead of "ne-GO-she-ate," you can figure they either heard someone else mispronounce it, or else they're trying to be uppity-puppity in the use of our language.

Another mispronunciation in the news nowadays, what with the CETA bureaucracy becoming more firmly entrenched in our socialistic system is that of the word "consortium."

There is no "tee-um" in the word. There is a "shum." The proper pronunciation is "con-SORE-shum," not "con-SORE-tee-um."
